And then you'll hear us begin to sing
Of magnificent raiment to wear in the Spring.

Lecture upon Petroleum, GOLD, SILVER, &c.—Professor S. LILLIAM, of Yale College, (his well known, was one of the first, if not the first, to make scientific researches upon the products of Oil Creek, long before any wells were sunk there, since which he has paid much attention to this interesting and all-absorbing subject. He has fully investigated the theories, geological and chemical, connected with the origin and production of this remarkable substance, in all the localities in which it has yet been found in any quantity, including Canada, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Virginia. We need scarcely say that none are more capable of forming a correct judgment on this subject than the Professor, and none more able to impart this knowledge pleasantly.

During the past year he has visited the most wonderful mineral districts of California and Nevada, and has passed over and examined critically the immense deposits of asphaltum and the remarkable oil springs of California.

These deposits were known and mentioned by Vancouver in 1792, and have been closely examined and reported upon by the engineers of the Coast survey Department, and those employed in making explorations for the South Pacific Railroad in 1853 to 1856.

Professor Silliman, in response to the invitation of a number of influential citizens, has consented to deliver a Lecture upon the Mineral and other resources of the Pacific States, for the ben-fit of the Sanitary Commission, in which, besides giving his views upon the origin of petroleum, he will dwell largely upon the oil deposits above mentioned, which he considers as among the most interesting of the localities he has visited.

We strongly recommend all interested in Petroleum and Mining operations of any kind to give this lecture their attention. It will take place at COONEY HALL, THIS EVENING, March 4th, 1865, at 8 o'clock, and will be fully illustrated by maps, diagrams, and paintings, executed by Russell Smith in his best manner. It thereby enabling persons of limited means to secure an interest at a small cost, with every prospect of speedy and handsome returns.

The property consists of 238 acres, in French Creek township, Venango county, Pennsylvania, and but a very short distance from the "Funnel Farm," only one hundred hurdred hurdred, struck last week, on
