GENERAL NEWS OF INDUSTRIES

Bituminous Coal to Be Largely Introduced in Eastern Locomotive Tenders.

SAID TO BE A CHEAPER FUEL

The Experiments Made by the Reading Railroad Have Resulted in Similar Experiments by Other Roads, the Outcome of Which May Be the Banishment of Anthracite for Steam Purposes on Eastern Locomotives. But, Oh, How Dirty This Would Be. Various Minor Glimpses of Industrial Activities.

The Philadelphia Record has convinced itself that the disappearance of anthracite coal as a fuel from the railroads of the east and the substitution for it of bituminous coal, with its intolerably black and dirty smoke, seems to be a matter of a very short time now. Economy, it says, demands the change, as anthracite is becoming far too valuable a product to be consumed by locomotives when equally satisfactory, if not much better, results can be obtained from the much cheaper soft coal. The Reading railroad, after spending many hundreds of thousands of dollars in experiments looking to the economical use of the smaller sizes of anthracite as a good steam-raising fuel, promises to be the leader in its haste to return to soft coal, but it will have plenty of companions. The Central Railroad of New Jersey has been for some years gradually working in bituminous coal as its principal fuel, and since the pressure of the hard times has been felt both the Lehigh Valley and the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroads have ordered considerable quantities of soft coal, with a view to adopting it as their principal fuel. In the case of the Reading railroad, which has already ordered 120,000 tons of bituminous coals to be delivered at various points on its lines, it is said that the discovery was made by accident that the fuel could be used very satisfactorily on the company's anthracite coal-burning engines. Immediately upon this discovery experiments were set on foot to thoroughly test the feasibility of its use, with the result that its superior cheapness as compared with anthracite was soon demonstrated. By the change the Reading expects to effect a saving in its freight and yard engines alone of fully $100,000 per year.

"Bituminous coal," said a well known operator in discussing the subject, "can be bought at the mines by the railroads for as low as 75 cents a ton, as the operators will generally sell cheaper to the railroads because of the large orders they place, thus enabling the operators to keep their mines going and their forces thoroughly organized. Aside from saving the higher prices of the small sizes of anthracite, which it is intended to displace, the railroad companies can find a ready market for this coal and derive a large revenue from its sale and from its freight tonnage. It seems a retrograde movement, but the day is not far distant when motives of economy will compel all railroads to give up the use of high-priced anthracite and adopt the cheaper bituminous coal instead." To Philadelphia and other eastern cities which have been able by anthracite coal to save themselves from the dingy and dirty appearance so common to western communities that use soft coal, this introduction of the cheaper fuel by the railroads will be anything but welcome.

The total production of bituminous coal in Prussia for the year 1893 was 97,639,883 metric tons, an increase of 2,191,352 tons, or 3.4 per cent. over 1892. The output of brown coal or lignite was 17,517,510 tons, showing an increase of 261,259 tons, or 1.5 per cent. over the preceding year.

Both eastern and western lines are noting the usual spring increase in tonnage. It comes rather later than usual and has not reached normal figures, but the improvement embraces all commodities with the exception of heavy iron articles.

MISOR INDUSTRIAL NOTES:

The Lehigh Valley and Traction company at Allentown has posted a notice that on and after April 1 the wages of motormen will be reduced from 16 to 15 cents an hour, and those of the conductors increased from 14 to 15 cents.

About 2,000 tons of foreign iron ore has just been received by the Reading iron company, in Reading.

The Millville, N. J., Cotton mill, which has heretofore been running on half time, will resume operations tomorrow on full time. The employes have consented to go to work on slightly reduced wages.

The first installment of 10 per cent. of the capital stock of the Mohnsville and Adamstown Electric Railway company has been paid and the construction of the road has been commenced. It is expected to have it in operation early in June.

George—What was it?

Charley—Simply blood eruptions. Took a short course of P. P. P. I tell you, it's the boss blood corrector.
