THE WASHINGTON MONUMENT UNVEILED

Impressive Ceremonies at Fairmount Park, Philadelphia.

14,000 SOLDIERS AND SAILORS IN LINE

The President of the United States, His Cabinet, and the Governor of Pennsylvania and 500,000 Citizens Witness the Parade--President McKinley's Address--Banquet By the Society of the Cincinnati.

Philadelphia, May 16.—The unveiling of the Washington monument in Fairmount park was celebrated yesterday with one of the most impressive military parades in the history of Philadelphia, in the presence of the president of the United States, his cabinet, the governor of Pennsylvania, the mayor of the city and a distinguished assemblage of citizens surrounding him. More than 14,000 soldiers and sailors marched past the reviewing stand. At least 500,000 people witness the march and the ceremonies.

Promptly at noon the martial columns moved out Broad street toward the park. At 1 o'clock the members of the State Society of the Cincinnati drove to their reviewing stand to receive the president. At 1.45 o'clock a committee from this society met the presidential party, which was escorted along the line of parade by the First City troop. The exercises at the monument at 2.45 o'clock consisted of an address by President McKinley, and participation by notable Philadelphians. The parade passed in review at 4 o'clock—United States regulars of the army and navy, militia of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, with the governors in command, and other organizations. At the moment of unveiling by the president the vessels of war in the Delaware fired salutes of twenty-one guns. President McKinley, Vice President Hobart and the members of the cabinet left for Washington at 6.17.

A banquet was given by the Society of the Cincinnati to 400 distinguished citizens, soldiers and visitors. In the evening a reception, concert and supper were given the visiting military by the City troop. The great parade of bicyclists wheeled over the designated route, in unprecedented numbers, enthusiasm and beauty of illumination. It was one of the greatest days in the annals of the city.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

Following is the text of President McKinley's address:

"A critical study of Washington's career only enhances our estimation of his vast and varied abilities. As commander in chief of the Colonial armies from the beginning of the war to the proclamation of peace, as president of the convention which framed the constitution of the United States, and a the first president of the United States under that constitution, Washington has a distinction differing from that of all other illustrious Americans. No stitution of the United States, and as relation to the government Not only by his military genius—his patience, his sagacity, his courage, and his skill—was our national independence won, but he helped in largest measure to draft the chart by which the nation was guided, and he was the first chosen of the people to put in motion the new government.

"His was not the boldness of material display or the charm of captivating oratory, but his calm and steady judgment won men's support and commanded their confidence by appealing to their best and noblest aspirations. And withal Washington was ever so modest that at no time in his career did his personality seem in the least intrusive. He was above the temptation of power. He spurned the suggested crown. He would have no honor which the people did not bestow.

"An interesting fact—and one which I love to recall—is that the only time Washington formally addressed the Constitutional convention during all its sessions over which he presided in this city, he appealed for a larger representation of the people in the national house of representatives, and his appeal was instantly heeded. Thus was he ever keenly watchful of the rights of the people in whose hands was the destiny of our government then and now.

IN CIVIL LIFE.

"Masterful as were his military campaigns, his civil administration commands equal admiration. His foresight was marvelous; his conception of the philosophy of government, his insistence upon the necessity of education, morality and enlightened citizenship to the progress and permanence of the republic cannot be contemplated even at this period without filling us with astonishment at the breadth of his comprehension and the sweep of his vision.

"His was no narrow view of government. The immediate present was not his sole concern, but our future good his constant theme of study. He blazed the path of liberty. He laid the foundation upon which we have grown from weak and scattered colonial governments to a united republic, whose domains and power as well as whose liberty and freedom have become the admiration of the world. Distance and time have not detracted from the fame and force of his achievements or diminished the grandeur of his life and work. Great deeds do not stop in their growth and those of Washington will expand in influence in all the centuries to follow.

THE LESSON HE TAUGHT.

"The bequest Washington has made to civilization is rich beyond computation. The obligations under which he has placed mankind are sacred and commanding. The responsibility he has left for the American people to preserve and perfect what he accomplished is exacting and solemn. Let us rejoice in every new evidence that the people realize what they enjoy, and cherish with affection the illustrious heroes of Revolutionary story whose valor and sacrifices made us a nation. They live in us and their memory will help us keep the covenant entered into for the maintenance of the freest government of earth.

"The nation and the name of Washington are inseparable. One is linked indissolubly with the other. Both are glorious, both triumphant. Washington lives and will live because what he did was for the exaltation of man, the enthronement of conscience and the establishment of a government which recognizes all the governed. And so, too, will the nation live victorious over all obstacles, adhering to the immortal principles which Washington taught and Lincoln sustained."

INSANE LAD'S ACT.

Frank Machemer Cuts the Throat of Little Mabel Kurtz with a Butcher's Knife.

Philadelphia, May 16.—Frank Machemer, an insane lad of 19 years, this afternoon cut the throat of Mabel Kurtz, the 7-year-old daughter of Adolph Kurtz, in the cellar of the little girl's home. She was removed to the Samaritan hospital and the physicians there say there is very little hope of saving her life. Machemer is in custody. He has for some time been confined in the Norristown hospital. He was yesterday brought to the home of his sister, a neighbor and acquaintance of the Kurtz family and was taken to see the Washington monument as a digression from his hospital life. Late this afternoon the demented youth visited the Kurtz residence and chatted with Mrs. Kurtz and the little girl. When he left Mrs. Kurtz went upstairs to lie down. Shortly afterward she heard her child scream and on running down stairs was horrified to find her daughter lying on the floor with blood gushing from a gaping wound in her throat. Assistance was called and the suffering child was hurriedly taken to the hospital.

A butcher knife covered with blood was found on the floor but there was no evidence to indicate by whom the crime had been committed. Suspicion pointed to Machemer but he could not be found. Shortly afterward he walked into the house from the street and was placed under arrest. He at first denied having any knowledge of the crime but subsequently acknowledged that he cut the child's throat. He gave no explanation for the deed.

HARRISBURG FORECAST.

Measures to Be Considered by the House. Hamilton Road Bill Will Be Taken Up by the Senate.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 16.—The Young bill, giving trolley companies the right to eminent domain, will be considered by the house Monday night, the question being a motion to reconsider the vote by which the resolution to make a special order was defeated. The opposition to the bill is so great that its most sanguine friends are afraid they can not pass it this session.

The Gibson safety bill will be called up in the senate tomorrow night for second reading. It was beaten last week and then reconsidered and laid aside. The purpose of the measure is to require the use of automatic safety controllers on hoisting engines for the prevention of loss of life and limb of employes and other persons from over hoisting or runaways in shafts, slopes, strippings, quarries and mines. There is a strong sentiment among the miners of the state in favor of the bill. After May 20, all postponed second reading bills will be dropped at the same time.

The house may begin holding night sessions this week to expedite business. The senate will be able to keep up with the house bill holding one session a day. The appropriation bills are still in committee and nobody, not even Chairman Marshall, knows when they will be brought out. All depends on what is done with the Bliss beer bills and other revenue measures. The reform bills are also tied up in committee.

The Hamilton road bill, as amended by the house, will be taken up tomorrow night by the senate. Its friends declare it will pass without a change and that it will become a law before the close of this week. If these predictions are fulfilled, it will mark a new era in the history of road management in Pennsylvania.

Pittsburg Contractor Must Serve That Time in Jail.

Pittsburg, May 16.—William J. Dunn, the contractor, who pleaded no defense to a charge of having forged assignments on city work, was sentenced to six months in jail yesterday.

In pronouncing this short sentence, the court was influenced by the fact that Dunn has made full restitution and that he had borne an excellent reputation before his present trouble.

Button May Have Been Washington's

Carlisle, May 16.—Frank Nace, of Middlesex, this county, while plowing in a field recently found a gold button an inch and a half in diameter. On the outer edge are inscribed the initials of the thirteen original colonies and in the center appear the letters "G. W." The supposition is the button was lost by one of a party of Revolutionary heroes who with General Washington in October, 1794, visited the grandfather of the late James G. Blaine, whose home was near Carlisle.

Newspaper Change Hands.

Lancaster, May 16.—The New Era, daily and semi-weekly newspaper, of this city, which was founded by Warfel & Geist and published by them for the past twenty years, has passed into the possession of a new firm. Youthful Horseman Drowned.

Huntingdon, May 16.—Lloyd Pifer, the 11-year-old son of Filmore Pifer, of Porter township, while riding a horse, engaged in dragging brush into the Juniata river, yesterday, fell from the horse into the river and was drowned. His body was swept away by the current, and has not yet been recovered.

Up to the sixth inning the visitors could do nothing with O'Neill's delivery. In the sixth and seventh the Harmonies managed to get six men across the plate by their timely hitting and Minooka's loose fielding. The game was devoid of any startling plays.
