A GAZETTE.

EVENING, MARCH 25, 1853.

BURIED ALIVE A GRAVE.—An account was given some time ago of two men and a boy having been buried six days and six nights in a marl pit at Eversleville, in the department of the Seine Inferieure, and then rescued. A narration of the affair, derived from the sufferers, is now given in a Rouen paper. During the whole of that time they were without food, without water, without light, and almost without clothes; and they were in such a confined place that, with the exception of the boy, they could not stand upright. Boitard, the eldest man, declares that during the whole time he did not sleep more than two hours; but his two companions, and especially the youngest, slept more. They slept back to back. They felt no hunger, and Boitard says that even if they had had provisions, they would not have touched them; but they experienced great thirst.

On the fourth day they found a little water think with marl, by digging into the bottom of the pit. It was this water, probably, which preserved their strength. At first they heard the noise of the pick-axes and spades above them; but during the last three days their breathing was so loud as to prevent it from reaching them, and this circumstance naturally increased their agony of mind; they also feared the miners were digging in a wrong direction. One of them had fifty chemical matches and a small piece of candle; but though they often tried, they could not, for want of air, cause the candle to burn.

During the latter part of the time they became so exhausted as to be unconscious of their position; but they remember that the boy once cried, as if in a dream, "there is the rope Boitard! Let us ascend!" Only one of them, Briard, was able to shed tears; and when he did so, the boy consoled him by telling him that they were sure to be rescued. The moment a breath of air reached them they fainted, but after a while recovered. The first thing Boitard said, on being rescued was—"Give me a pinch of snuff!" and he took it with intense delight.—Galignani.

THE BURNING COAL MOUNTAIN.—That portion of the Broad Mountain called the "Fiery Mountains," from the fact of the Anthracite coal at that point being on fire—which has been burning for the last fifteen years, is situated 5 miles from Minersville and fifteen from Schuylkill Haven. It is now considered a very dangerous experiment to travel over the mountain, as it is supposed that for many places the surface is a mere superficial crust or shell, the coal having been consumed up to the surface, and hence the least pressure thereon, it is presumed, might break through and let the adventurer down into the fiery chasm below. At the base of the mountain is one place a stream of water almost boiling hot issues out. The surface of the mountain presents a desolate appearance as far as the eye can reach. The mountain is either cracked, burned or broken into enormous depths by the approach of the fires to the upper stratums; rocks and trunks of the lofty trees are charred and blackened, mingling their prodigious odor with the sulphurous smoke, issuing from the hot caves and crevices around. The calcined bones of birds, reptiles, and quadrupeds, lie here and there, half mixed with the mineral ashes, to fill up the blasted view, while amidst the vast scene of desolation may be seen a solitary wood-flower, springing from this perpetual "hot bed," and presenting in the unoccupied atmosphere a mockery of bloom.

NOW AND THEN—JESUIT CONSISTENCY.—We observe with some surprise, by the Advertiser's report of the celebration of St. Patrick's day, by the Shields Guards, that both Bishop Leffler and Father Shanahan were participated and joined in the festivities of the occasion. This is itself, of course, is all very proper and right, if they can reconcile the encouragement their example gave in favor of the practice which is inseparable from such occasions, with their holy professions and their duty to their people. But it is the striking inconsistency between what they exhibit, in being present at the celebration this year, and encouraging it with their money as well as by their presence, when last year Bishop Lefevre absolutely prohibited any of his people from participating in it under the pain of excommunication for disobedience, which caused the surprise we felt that they were among the guests of the Shields Guards. They have, of course, some motive for this contradictory conduct. Whether it was from a desire to recover the ground which the late charter election shows the Bishop has lost, even amongst Irish Catholics, that he consented this year to mingle so familiarly with the "common people" of his church, or for some other cause, we leave others to judge. But it must seem evident to the uninitiated in the motives which influence the order of Jesuits, and their system of morals, that if aiding to celebrate the anniversary of St. Patrick last year, was a crime worthy of excommunication, it cannot be free from sin this year.—Detroit Tribune.

MEDICAL.

DR. MORSE'S INVIGORATING CORDIAL.

A PHENOMENON IN MEDICINE.

PROFESSOR MORSE'S INVIGORATING ELIXIR.—OR CORDIAL.
THE EIGHTH WONDER OF THE BOTANIC WORLD.

The Invigorating Elixir and Cordial introduced into medical practice by the great chemist, physician and traveller, Dr. M. Morse., has for its basis an Oriental Herb, first brought from the stony deserts of Arabia Petrea, by that eminent philosopher. The natives of that region are remarkable for their longevity, exemption from sickness, and power of sustaining fatigue, all of which they attribute in a great degree to the use of the herb or plant referred to, which they universally chew, and sometimes smoke. On his return to Europe, after a long residence in the East, Professor Morse commenced experimenting with this wonderful natural production, and the result of his labors is the Invigorating Elixir, which has been endorsed by the medical colleges of all the great cities of Europe, as the best preparation extant for the

CURE OF NERVOUS DISEASES.

No language can convey an adequate idea of the immediate and almost miraculous change which it occasions in the diseased, debilitated and shattered nervous system—Whether broken down by excess, weak by nature, or impaired by sickness, the unstrung and relaxed organization is at once restored, invigorated, and built up. The mental and physical symptoms of nervous disease vanish together, under its influence. The stooping, trembling form of depression, at once becomes a manly form. He stands erect; he moves with a firm step; his mind, which was previously clouded, is now clear; his nerves are healthy, become bright, buoyant, active, and he goes forth to mix in the world, and to be cheerful, and conscious of new vigor, to the accustomed occupations. Joy and happiness return to his bosom. On the contrary, the relief is permanent, for the cordial properties of the medicine reach the capillaries itself, and restore it to its normal condition. Well may the preparation be called the of the nineteenth century. It is, as the first scientific men in the old world have admitted, the greatest discovery of medicine heretofore supposed to have no existence.

A STIMULANT THAT ENTAILS NO REACTION.

It force is not spent upon the system, as is the case with alcoholic preparations, and all other stimulants. The effect of Morse's Elixir, is not such that it may well be said of him who takes them, "the last state of the man is worse than the first?" But the Elixir is an exhilarant without a single drawback—and is in the opinion of many, a great boon to humanity upon the nerves, the mind, and the entire organization.

The Elixir is a sure remedy for Loss of Memory, Universal Lassitude, dyspepsia, general prostration, irritability, nervousness, Hypochondria, Hysteria, Complaints, Want of Confidence, Want of Energy, Want of Nerve, Want of Vigor, Want of Spirits, Want of Appetite, Want of Strength, Want of Flesh, Want of Sleep, Want of Tone, Want of Vitality, Want of Blood, Want of Color, Want of Life, Want of Hope, Want of Ambition, Want of Vigor, Want of Action, Want of Power, Want of Feeling, Want of Something, Want of Everything, Want of Something you know not of, Want of Something you know not why, Want of Something you know not when, Want of Something you know not what, Want of Something you know not wherefore, Want of Something you know not whereabouts, Want of Something you know not whereunto, Want of Something you know not whereunto it doth appertain, Want of Something you know not whereunto it doth appertain, or Want of Something you know not whereunto it doth appertain, or Want of Something you know not whereunto it doth appertain, or
