WEDNESDAY MORNING, MAY 18, 1853

The ovations of Mrs. Stowe in England, the honors heaped upon John P. Hale, in Massachusetts, and the late demonstrations of the Anti-Slavery Society in this city, have made it evident that abolitionism is recovering from its shocks, and will soon again be at its work of agitation. The exhortation of the Sixteenth resolution of the Tabernacle meeting, to "twelve anti-slavery effort by anti-slavery societies and associations, circulate far and wide anti-slavery publications, meet in anti-slavery concerts of prayer, petition State Legislatures and the Congress of the United States for a redress of grievances," vote only for true-hearted friends of liberty, and in all legitimate ways agitate the country, East and West, North and South," is no mere flourish of rhetoric. The plan for carrying this resolution into effect has already been elaborated by a committee and twenty thousand dollars have been raised to give it a start.

There are no great political issues before the country to occupy men's thoughts and give play to their political energies. For the first time during a generation there are no contending armies in the political field. The parties have stacked their arms, and are fast breaking up their ranks. Party discipline is growing weaker and weaker, and there is little in it now to prevent all who are inclined to rally round any standard white or black, that may be pitched upon the vacant plain. In this regard we cannot deny that the times are favorable for the revival of the anti-slavery controversies. —N. Y. Cour.

The Marquis Battista de Lorino, whose patriotic services and sacrifices of the year 1848 live in the hearts of his countrymen, and who left England in the beginning of 1851 for the United States,—since which time his friends have not received intelligence of him,—is anxiously requested to inform his friends in London of his whereabouts, whenever and where these lines may reach him. His country wants once more his services.—N. Y. Tribune.

KEATING'S EXTRACT OF COFFEE, JUJUBE PASTE, AND MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THE subscriber takes this method of informing his customers and the public generally that he has removed from Wood and Fulton streets to his new store, No. 184 Smithfield street, near Second, where he will continue the manufacture of the above celebrated articles. Entertaining the grateful recollection of the liberal patronage which has long been bestowed on him, he trusts that by a strict attention to business, and the production of articles which have long been a favorite with the public, he may merit a share of their patronage at his new place of business. The Medicinal properties of the Coffee are well known to the public, and the Jujube Paste and Lozenges are recommended by the highest medical authorities as a most valuable remedy for Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Consumption, and all those diseases for which they are recommended. The Lozenges are also a very pleasant cathartic, and are recommended by many of our first physicians as such. The Jujube Paste is also a very pleasant cathartic, and is
