PITTSBURGH GAZETTE.

We understand that Gen. Dix intends to resign his office of Sub-Treasurer preparatory to his departure for Europe in the steamer Humboldt. So that though Gen. FRANCHI fails or fears to redeem his purpose of giving Gen. DIX the French Mission, the latter does not change his purpose of going to Europe, where, it is believed, the health of some of his family will be benefitted.

We expressed the other day, pretty freely, our regrets that Gen. Dix should have, in some recent letters, torn out of his political history, its best and brightest pages. While the odor of having maintained the integrity of Free Soil against the curse of Slavery was upon him, he should have rejoiced in the realization of his Diplomatic expectations; but our interest in him ceased when his letters renouncing Free Soil sentiments appeared. It is but an act of justice, however, to Gen. Dix to say that before those letters were written he had informed the President that he was no longer an applicant for the French mission, and that under the circumstances of embarrassment that existed, he neither expected or desired the place. This relieves Gen. Dix from the imputation of having written his Letters for an unworthy purpose. We cannot, however, but regret that a distinguished man should have voluntarily repudiated lofty sentiments and generous sympathies; for, though a little out of fashion just now, they will be in requisition ere long; or even if they should never be wanted, they help to preserve one's self-respect and to keep warm, genial emotions in play about the heart.

It is certain that Gen. DIX was promised the French Mission, and equally certain that the President intended to appoint him. But the Slave and Compromise influences were so rampant in their opposition that Gen. FRANCHI yielded. Gen. DIX would have been a much more capable and creditable Minister than the gentleman who receives it. But Virginia seems to have a prospective right to these things.—Alb. Jour.

UNITED STATES STOCKS.—A Washington correspondent of the New York Courier says that the researches that have been instituted "by the Secretary of the Treasury, under Senator Breadhead's resolution, show that our indebtedness has been concentrated at home. The credit of the United States has never recovered from the demand inflicted upon it by the failure of the United States Bank. Our stocks are held mainly at home. No considerable amount of stocks have been received at the Treasury within the last three days, notwithstanding the arrival of three mail steamers from England and France. The ordinary computation is that $400,000,000 of American stocks are held in London and Paris, and that $60,000,000 are now in the course of negotiation there.—The first amount is overstated four to one, and as to the second, it is of little consequence what quantities of city, county, and corporation bonds may be offered to European capitalists, when we have the best of evidence that they do not intend to take them."

MAY QUEEN.....Capt. R. P. EVANS.
CLEVELAND.....Capt. JAMES BARKER.

By any other route he must spend a night on the cars, or start riding upon the Cars, or the stairs of the Upper Lakes.
