Reese's Patent Coupling and Foreplate,

FOR RAIL-PLATE AND SHEET-ROLLS,

CAN NOW BE SEEN IN OPERATION at Messrs Baily, Brown & Co.'s Rolling Mill, Pittsburgh, or the "Sharon Works," Mercer county, Pa. The advantages of my improvement are—that it obviates the necessity of stopping the engine or throwing off the crab to assist at the top roll when Scouring, as the top roll is connected and disconnected in an instant without recurrence to the engine, crab or anything else. The FOREPLATE is also constructed so simple and complete that it is placed or displaced in half a minute, without removing a guide, screw, bolt, or nut. The fact, though not least advantage of my improvement is, that by it you are enabled to Scour the Rolls between Ends, thus making a higher polish on Rail-ends and Sheet-iron than has ever been got on before. Further information, or a right to use the same, can be obtained of the inventor.

PITTSBURGH GAZETTE.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 9, 1853.

AN ADMINISTRATION PAPER ON THE LAST GOVERNMENT MANIFESTO.—The New York Evening Post, which has been one of the warmest defenders of the administration in the Bronson affair, takes a different tone in reference to Mr. Cushing's letter to the editor of the Boston Post, which we have already published. It says:

"The letter is rather a serious sample of the epistolary style of Mr. Cushing, but its purport is still more remarkable than its style. Mr. Cushing, who was not long since a whig, and of whom his party were a little ashamed—Mr. Cushing, who was not long since delivering before the American Institute, eulogies of Mr. Clay's American System—comes into the democratic party with the zeal of a veteran, and dictates to democrats who have grown old in the party, what opinions they shall hold, and what candidates they shall vote for. The people, who form the mass of the democratic party, scarcely understand the alphabet of politics, and Caleb Cushing generously undertakes to be their schoolmaster."

It then publishes the letter and the Washington Union's editorial referring to it, and remarks:

"The epistolary article and the editorial article are manifestly the product of the same pen. The object of the writer is evidently to propitiate the South to the administration. All that is now done, is done for effect at the South. All appointments are made to propitiate southern politicians; all letters written, all articles dictated for the journals are composed with that view. The object is manifest on the face of the proceeding. We do not wish to give much prominency to the matter at this time, but the publication of this letter has forced it upon us, and we cannot, as plain-spoken and sincere men, allow it to pass as if it were of no moment.

"Perhaps this mode of dealing with the people may answer its purpose for a while, but we should apprehend not. The public is a stiff-necked and hard-mouthed charger, and is not to be led up and down with a mauma-maker's thread. It is only little minds that resort to petty expedients, and little sometimes amusing themselves their astonishment when their petty expedients bring only petty results.

"Mr. Cushing's horror of coalitions, it appears, has not always been so great as at present. When, not long since, Gov. Brattwell, of Massachusetts, nominated him to the Supreme Bench of that State, she was confirmed by a coalition of the democratic and free soil members of the State Council. This was after the election of Charles Sumner, as United States Senator from Massachusetts, an election which was the result of a coalition of which Mr. Cushing was charged, by some of his own political friends, with being concerned."

ANOTHER VICTIM TO THE SPIRITUAL RAPPINGS.—The Buffalo Courier, relates the story of a young couple in that vicinity, in substance as follows: Though comparative strangers to each other, they received communications from the rapping world, that they should become man and wife, and accordingly went immediately before a justice and became one. The young woman was already in a delicate state of health, probably from the effects of the hum suggested to which she had yielded herself, and continued to decline, notwithstanding the divers hebdomadal prescriptions of her spiritual advisers, and finally died and was buried. Her body, however, was kept for a week or more without burial, owing to fears which some of the friends entertained that she was not dead. Her limbs, though cold, did not grow stiff for three or four days, and if the finger was drawn across her cheek with the slightest pressure, a red spot was left, which gradually died out as a rush of blood in the living body would follow in like circumstances. Neither did the corpse show any symptoms of decay, but remained as it was the first day after death. The spirits, however, told the physician and her spiritual friends quieting all doubts in their own minds by asserting that her spirit was too happy in the sphere wherein she had gone to return again to the cares and pains incident to a tabernacling in the flesh.
