Co-operative Sheep-Farming

Mr. S. Archer, of Kansas City, Mo., makes the following estimates of the re-turns from a flock of sheep kept on joint account, viz.: Supposing ten persons to put in say one hundred ewes each, to be kept during the summer in a flock of one thousand. Each man's account may be estimated about as follows, varying some according to circum-

100 head common grade Merino ewes, at $5 Two thoroughbred rams, at $30

during seven months summer, at $30-$210-one-tenth of 56,00 out. 2.0 bu-hels of corn, at 50c., fed 12.00

Whole cost of keeping.....=219.0) at 30c. 75 lambs, worth €2.50 each.....

Whole income Cost of keeping.....

In this estimate it will be seen that the first cost of the sheep is $560. The net profits, after a liberal allowance for keeping, is $178.50, or nearly thirty-two per cent. on the investment. This is not all the profits from the business, for in it is allowed a liberal profit on the labor in securing and feeding the hay and corn; also, instead of selling the lambs in the fall, at $2.50, they may be wintered, shorn, and put together, making a lot of 750 for another herder during the summer, thus increasing the net proceeds, or compounding the

But suppose a herder costs more than the very low sum of thirty dollars a month and the fleeces yield only four pounds of wool instead of seven pounds, and something has to be paid, as is very probable, for the use of pasture, how much of the above net profits will be left! On the other hand, if each of the ten farmers were to care for his own flock at home he would have a quantity of manure upon his fields, which alone would give a good profit upon his investment.

Medical Hints.

FOR a COLD .- Put six eggs, nine teaspoonfuls of sugar and six small glasses of marsala into a vessel over the fire, and keep it rapidly stirred until it begins to rise. Then serve it up in glasses.

CURE FOR RINGWORM.—A simple and harmless application, said unfailingly to cure this troublesome eruption, is found by washing with a solution made from the root of the common narrow-leafed dock, which belongs to the botanical rumex. Use vinegar as the solvent.

DIFFICULTY OF BREATHING. - Vitrolated spirits of ether, one ounce; camphor, twelve grains. Make a solution, of which take a tablespoonful during the paroxysm. This is usually found to afford instantaneous relief in difficulty of breathing, depending on internal diseases and other causes, where the patient, from a very quick and laborious breathing, is obliged to be in an erect posture.

PURIFY THE BLOOD.—To cure pimples and flesh-worms, you must purity your blood. It is done by living on plain, nutritious food, breathing fresh air day and night, sleeping enough, exercising reely and keeping your skin thoroughly open by frequent baths in soap and water. There is no other way to purify your system but this. These will cure in June 30, 1876, and for other purposes, was persons were drowned by the floods in Tennesyou, and you will stay cured as long as Passed. you employ them.

FOR WEAK EYES. -Make an eye water of of one teaspoonful of pulverized white vitriol and two teaspoonsful of saltpeter dissolved in one quart of rain water. Put one drop in the eye and keep it in as long as possible. If the eye is badly inflamed, repeat the operation every five or ten minutes until the ball of the eye feels cool, after which repeat it two or three times a day. The mixture is perfeetly harmless, cooling and cleansing. It is also good for festering sores.

A PLEASANT COUGH CANDY. - Taketwo tumblers. In one place a gill of flax-seed; fill the other with broken bits of Mills the Force bill was pending in the more objectionable than the "Potter" law.

System on the Farm.

We had two neighbors, in my boyhood, who pursued methods directly opposite in their manner of doing work. One was systematic. The labor for the day was written out in the morning and strictly adhered to. When a job was begun, it was made the order of the day. All hands turned to, and made light work of what would otherwise have been tedious and unpleasant. His work was always done in season; well done, be- term cause done under his supervision, and by previously conceived plan. His premises were very neat and orderly. He added largely to his inheritance.

The other had no system, but worked at random. His forces were divided, each man doing a different kind of work, on different parts of the farm. He seldom finished a job in the time of it, but left them oftentimes for a long time unfinished. His work was almost always behind hand; much of it was poorly done. His premises were ever in a slovenly and disorderly condition. Although a hard-working man, he added but little to his property. Both have long since passed away, but the effect of their different management is as visible to-day as during their lives.

Change of Seed.

The American Agriculturist answers a correspondent by saying: With all other grain than corn a change of seed is now and then considered advisable. Potatoes are especially improved by a change procured from a different locality But corn has not generally been found to deteriorate by long planting; on the other hard, there are many farm ers who are now planting seed produced from the corn their fathers planted a generation ago. Running out of the corn is more likely to be the result of impoverished soil, and the best method of improvement would probably be a crop of clover upon the land, to be plowed under, or some other substantial fertilizer.

The Springfield (Mass.) Republican

says that Mr. Samuel Lawrence, founder of the city of Lawrence, entertained the Lee Literary Club with an hour's familiar talk, contrasting old times with the present. Glancing rapidly over the character and history of the early colonial settlers, he dwelt particularly on the circumstances and customs of the period just succeeding the revolutionary war, when not a pound of cotton had been raised in this country, not a car-load of coal exhumed from the mines, not a steamship traversed our waters, nor any great water-power occupied. The fab ries of the country were mostly spun and wove in families, each farmer raising flax and wool, the mother of the family generally spinning the former on the little wheel, while the daughter walked backward and forward by the side of the big wheel, singing hymns or repeating poetry. Each farm establishment had a oom, which, in some instances, was kept running the year round to supply bed and personal clothing, stacks of the former being piled up for the wedding days of the daughters. Oxen were used for all farm work and horses mainly for riding horseback, the women either riding singly on side-saddle or on pillions behind their husbands, brothers, and sweethearts. Scarcely a light carriage was to be found in the country. Often a hundred women came to one church on horseback. The little cotton cloth used in the country was the "humdrum" from India, made of short staple, costly and poor. Money was comparatively scarce. The salary of the president of Harvard University, after the institution had been in successful operation for over one hundred years, was £100 New England currency, or $3331, and this commanded the services of the best scholars of Oxford and Cambridge. The increase in the valuation of the country and the increase of the expenses of living were alike astonishing.
