ANOTHER MURDER.—Give us a Prohibitory Law.—We have never beencalled upon to record more painful death than one which occurred in this place on Saturday last. A sprightly little boy of five tender years, was the victim. Whiskey was the instrument. A doggery, was the cruel slaughter-house. The circumstances are these: A German named Albert, keeps a doggery in the Northern Liberties, and has a son about 9 years of age. An industrious German shoemaker, named Meindel, lives hard by, and had a son of 5 years old. On Friday last while Meindel was industriously at work at his shop, and Albert somewhere else than guarding his deadly Poison, Albert's son took Meindel's little innocent into the place where his father's poison was kept, and dealt out to him a fatal portion, and then indulged himself. The little fellows were discovered sometime after—Meindel's child insensible, and Albert's beastly drunk, but somewhat relieved by throwing up. Medics aide was immediately called, and Meindel's little sufferer so far revived as to lisp "Mother—Mother"—some 12 or 15 hours after, and then soon slept in death! Albert's child has recovered. From some bruises on the head and neck of the little victim, it would seem that he had staggered and fallen about and severely injured himself; perhaps received a fatal hurt.—Now, would this murder have been committed if the "Main Law" were in force? On whose head is the blood of this innocent child?—Hollidaysburg Register.
