FARM, GARDEN AND HOUSEHOLD.

Hints About Houses

Under the head of "Recommendations for Securing the Healthiness of the Sanitarian reproduces Honses. several tables of select maxims on the subject indicated. Here are some, for example, for securing proper ventilation:

Rows of houses should be arranged in parallel lines, the spaces between the ranks being left open at the ends. Confined squares and courts are very unhealthy.

The height of a house, from the eaves to the ground, ought never to exceed the distance to the nearest building in front. Behind or at the side of every dwelling house, there should be an open space, exclusively belonging to it, at least fifteen feet across, measured in a direc-tion at right angles to the house wall. Back to back houses are unhealthy and inconvenient, and ought never to be built. There should be windows to open on both sides of a house ; where all the windows are on the same side, perfect ventilation is impossible. Every room should have one or more windows opening into the outer air ; the window area should not be less than onetenth of the area of the floor; thus a room twelve feet by ten feet should have a window at least four feet by three

At least half the window should open, and the opening should always reach to the top of the window, which ought not to be more than a foot below the highest part of the ceiling. The form of window frame which opens by swinging on a horizontal pivot is recommended in preference to the ordinary sliding frame, especially for cottages and other places where the window is of small size.

Rooms in newly-built houses should not be less than eight feet high; attics should be of this height over at least half their area.

Air-bricks should be inserted in the wall just below the level of each floor, to ventilate the space under the ioists.

Bedrooms that have no fireplace should have an air-brick near the ceiling ; it is a good plan to make this to open by a hollow architrave above the window, so that the draught may strike upwards and not downwards.

Where gas is used, a ventilator and flue should be placed above the burner to carry off the burnt air.

In building a house it is recommended to leave air-flues in the wall near the chimney, which may easily be done by building around quarter pieces, which are drawn up as the work proceeds.

Hints and Helps.

Mr. S. J. Nash, or North East, informs the Erie Observer that from eighteen acres of clover he has this winter thrashed seventy-two and a half bushels of seed, an average of over four bushels per acre. This is an extra-ordinary yield, two bushels per acre being about the usual amount.

Prompt pay, with a certainty of it as soon as it is carned, prompts and stimu-lates good and faithful work; for men are not apt to ignore the advantages of such pay, and will not be likely to risk losing such a place. We think every farmer who has experimented in this direction will indorse this as a rule.

THE LIFE-CAR.

How it Does its Work--A Case in Point--The Work the Life-Car has Done.

A writer gives the following descrip tion of the life car and its operations in saving life from a wreek. He says : When it so happens that a ship driven ashore on a beach, the surf which precludes the possibility of launching the life-boat, the life-car is brought into service. The car is made of light galvanized iron, and is designed, when closed, to be nearly water-tight. It is sufficiently large to contain four grown persons, or eight children, and is used exclusively in the American service. To either end of this car short ropes of equal length are attached, terainating in metal rings, the use of which will be made apparent as we proceed. On the first signal of distress from the stranded vessel, those in charge of the life-saving station hurry to that point on the beach nearest the wreck. Here it is evident that to make the car line of communication with the crew on the stranded vessel, and that is accomplished as follows : A small mortar of five and one-half inch caliber is loaded with the requisite charge to send a twenty-pound iron ball above and over the wreck. This ball has a small staple in it, to which, before it is placed in the mortar, the end of a light line is attached, the line itself being either spread out on the beach, or so arranged on a frame as to be readily detached. At times a rocket is used in place of the mortar. Should the men at the station be expert or practical marksmen, the first discharge of the mortar send the ball with the line directly over the ship's deck. Here it is eagerly secured and "hauled in," and thus a heavy hawser, nd a light but strong line, are finally stretched from the shore to the ship. All is now in readiness for the life-car-The rings, to which we have alluded to bove, are slipped over the shore-line of the hawser, while the end of the lighter line that accompanies it is attached to the outer end of the car. A second light line is fastened to the rear end, and paid out as the crew of the vessel drag the car toward them through the surf. Thus we have a regular means of communication established between the vessel and the shore. So soon as the car reaches the ship's deck it is opened and loaded with its precious freight, the lid is then closed, the signal given, and the car begins its shoreward journey, drawn by the const-men on shore, and steadied by those who remain on the ship.

the end attained, we doubt whether the happy occupants of the life-car would have exchanged their narrow couch for the richest state-room on the proudest ressel that floats the sea. Thus much for the life-car and the method by which its services are rendered. A word now as to the actual value of these services, and this we will confine to a brief story of the wreck of the Ayrshire, as given at the time by a faithful chronicler of the event. It was the middle of January, and during a severe snow storm. The ship Ayrshire, with about two hundred passengers, had been driven upon the shore near Long Branch, New Jersey, by the storm, and lay there stranded, the sea beating over her, and a surf so heavy rolling in as made it impossible for any boat to reach her. It happened that a life-saving station was near, and the lifewas the first fire, that the line fell di-

When the keeper came to his cell one morning in that year, the figure of a man with outstretched hand pre sented the customary check with which each prisoner is designated, and it was not for some time after that the prisoner was gone that he discovered that the figure was a dummy made of ciothing,

Blood Diseases.

The blood being the source from which our systems are built up and from which we derive our mental as well as physical capabilities, how important that it should be kept pure. If how important that it should be kept pure. If it contains vile festering poisons all organic functions are weakened thereby. Settling upon important organs, as the lungs, liver or kidneys, the effect is most disastrons. Hence it behooves every one to keep their blood in a perfectly healthy condition, and more especially does this apply at this particular season of the year than at any other. No matter what the exciting cause may be, the real cause of a large proportion of all diseases is had blood. Now Dr. Pierce does not wish to place his Golden Medical Discovery in the catalogue of Golden Medical Discovery in the catalogue of quack patent nostrums, by recommending it to cure every disease, nor does he so recommend it; on the contrary there are hundreds of diseases that he acknowledges it will not cure ; but what he does claim is this, that there is but one form of blood disease that it will not cure, and that disease is cancer. He does not recommend his Discovery for that disease, yet he knows it to be the most searching blood cleanser yet discovered, and that it will free the blood and system of all other known blood the blood and system of all other known blood poisons, be they animal, vegetable or mineral. The Gold-n Discovery is warranted by him to cure the worst forms of skin diseases, as all forms of blotches, pimples and eruptions, also all glandular swellings, and the worst form of scrofulous and ulcerated sores of neck, legs or other parts, and all scrofulous diseases of the bones as white swellings force core, bin bones, as white swellings, fever sores, hip joint and spinal diseases, all of which belongs to scrofulous diseases.

The proposal that a fat cattle show be held annually in some of the leading cattle-market cities of the United States meets with much favor.

The duty on hops has been increased from five to eight cents per pound.

In order to ascertain the gain in weight of growing cattle, an experiment was tried as follows: A short-horn bull calf was weighed on the 12th of April, 1874, when he was just four months old, and his weight was found to be 503 pounds. May 12, he weighed 593 pounds; June 12, 703 pounds; July 12, 801 pounds; August 12, 886 pounds, and September 12, 966 pounds; a total gain in five months of 463 pounds, or 921 pounds per month.

Grocery Gains,

Persons who buy a pound of tea in Paris will see the grocer put the tea in a paper bag and then put it on the scale, to carry on the war Spain has paid Gerbag and all, so that he sells paper at the many 11,000 thalers of the indemnity for the price of tea. This is a triffe on one purchase, but if a flourishing grocer buys has issued a proclamation urging the loyal a ton of wrapping paper in a year at the citizens of Cuba to renewed efforts to suppress price of paper and sells it to his customers at the price of tea and coffee and says fears are expressed that the raids of sugar and fine groceries generally he armed Mexicans into Texas may result in a makes a good gain. In that city of ingeneral border war The Delaware Legis- genious people the grocers have a special paper-not handsome, not more tena-cious nor more delicate than other paper, only heaver. It is made with china clay and similar substances, which make it white, but make it also weighty. One epicier furnished with this special paper will improve his profits by the consumption of two or three times the quantity of paper, tried in the scales, that would be used by one who serves ordinary paper.
