ROMANCE OF WAR.—"I know," writes a Crimean correspondent, "that in England a great number of young ladies believe the tented field to be surrounded with romance, and some older people fancy, perhaps from their experience of cricket matches, laying of foundation stones and flower shows, that a tent is a cool, airy, and desirable summer residence. I like popular delusions—they make a great many good people happy and contented—but feel exasperated by this one in particular, and wish the public were encamped out here for about three days. I should like to see them on their backs on the ground, panting like hard-pressed stags, watching the grain drying up before their eyes, the haze rising from the glassy surface of the sea, the air like the air of a bake-house, and darkened by millions of flies, which break the awful monotonous silence by a confused hum and buz, and would settle on their nose and ears with maddened pertinacity—the water hot, the ground hot, wine hot, beer hot, boxes hot, bed hot, writing impossible, reading impossible—nothing to do but to wait and to suffer. And when at last the evening came, and they stepped out to breathe—the thermometer, after all, would only have fallen about ten degrees, and dinner would be ready—to see them too sleepy and too exhausted to eat, and then go to bed hot, to pass a hot, uncomfortable night, and recommence on the morrow, would afford one melancholy pleasure.

ANOTHER Pittsburgher testifying to the wonderfully curative powers of Berthave's Holland Bitters.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 6th, 1854.
Messrs. Benj. Page, Jr., & Co.—Gentlemen: for a year past I have been afflicted very seriously with dyspepsia, so much so that my stomach refused to retain anything. I have tried almost every remedy, and the opinions of several physicians, but without alleviation, until I began the use of Berthave's Holland Bitters, and have now found relief almost amounting to a cure. I found it efficacious in removing the extreme debility occasioned by the disease, and generally as a tonic it has few equals and no superior. Respectfully, JOHN WYNN, 2d st., below Market.

CAUTION—Be careful to ask for Berthave's Holland Bitters. The great popularity of this medicine has induced many imitations, which the public should guard against. Sold at 1 per bottle, or 6 bottles for $5, by proprietors, BENJ. PAGE, JR., & Co., cor. 2d & Smithfield sts. H. P. SCHWARTZ, Allegheny.

The whole will be sold for the very low price of $5 per acre, or it will be divided to suit purchasers, at from $6 to $8 per acre, according to quality.

One-fifth to be paid down, the balance in three equal annual payments. Title indisputable. Enquire of
