PITTSBURGH GAZETTE

STEPHEN, &c.

The day was dull, and behooved a day
Unedified to caring and eating of hay,
So Stephen, although him to take a trip down
And fetch the other from town;
And he harnessed the horse, and proceeded to go Forth,
With a pail of pale butter, eggs, berries, &c.

Now it happened that Stephen (Ex.) came down
On the day that the show was to enter the town,
And into the village he chanced to come forth
(A wondrous creation this purpose to shew forth,)
Extra, simplicate, mentoys, pastes, tigers, &c.

And Stephen arrived opportunely, I ween,
For soon as Stephen at elephant seen;
So he, with "Old Scrawl" fetched up with the fence,
To see without paying the twenty-five cents.
The long nose came the creature, unwieldly and slow forth,
With tusks, and with trunk, blankets, ribbons, &c.

But scarcely at the sight, or the scent, or the sound,
"Old Scrawl" turned quickly and shortly around,
And in turning so quickly and shortly about
The wagon turned over, and Stephen turned out;
And into the gutter the berries did flow forth,
Together with Stephen, eggs, butter, &c.

Quoth Stephen aloud, as he rose on his pegs,
"A 5c for the berries, &c. and eggs,
But I spare the 25 cents for the elephant, I ween,
And I'm not seen the elephant—nor can he have,
Till I back to the homestead—'Old Scrawl' did go on.
Leaving wagon and Stephen, &c. and so on.
