SMALL FRUITS.—While we have to mourn over disappointed hopes of a fruit crop from year to year, it is important that we look about us and see by what means, if any, we can supply our tables with such small fruits as are agreeable and healthful during our hot summers. We can supply these wants, for a large portion of the season, by the following:

We begin with the strawberry, the earliest and one of the best of all fruits, and at the same time one that never wholly fails us. We have a few varieties that continue to fruit from three to six weeks, according to the season we may have. Neck Pine, the earliest of all; very acid and light color (not fit for market; being too tender to carry), but with enough sugar is of good flavor, and will fight its way among grass and weeds better than any other variety we know of. Large Early Scarlet, Burr's New Pine, Hovey's Seeding, McAvoy's Superior, Longworth's Proolific, Schenickie's Pistilate, and Ganny's Seeding are all good varieties; the last named the latest bearer, and Burr's Pine the highest flavored and altogether the finest berry we are acquainted with.

Cultivation.—Plant on any land that will grow good corn, that is not wet, after a good deep plowing and harrowing to make it fine, in rows three or four feet apart and eighteen inches apart in the rows. Cultivate the first season with plow or cultivator and hoe, letting the runners form plants until the latter part of the season for fruiting next year. We prefer directing the runners so as to set the plants in the row and get that as full as we want it first, so that they will not be destroyed by cultivating; this may be done by taking the runners disposed to run out between the rows, and laying them lengthways the row, confine them, either by laying on a small clod of earth or by a little stick stuck in the ground; unless the ground is very full of weed seed, two or three times weeding with the hoe will be sufficient to keep the row clean, while you can run the plow or cultivator between the rows as often as is necessary to keep down the weeds and keep the soil in good condition. The spring after setting you will get a good crop of fruit, and the plants will cover the whole ground unless kept down by cutting off with hoe or cultivator, which we advise.

If our readers will follow our directions to the first fruiting, we have an abiding confidence that they will take care of them afterwards.

Gooseberries, currants, and raspberries are also very desirable and follow the strawberry in quick succession. Although the currant does not seem to succeed so well here and further south, yet we advise the planting of a few. The Houghton seedling gooseberry is the best, as it never mildews and does well almost everywhere. The fine English varieties are all affected with mildew and cannot be grown successfully with us. The common black raspberry we think the only one that can be recommended for general planting. Although it is a hard, dry berry, it is good growing and in our hot, dry woods, with good cultivation is productive. There are many kinds much more tender and high flavored, but require winter protection.

THE Marysville Eagle, of Monday, says:

We hear it stated that the fruit in this neighborhood, yet remaining on the trees, is withstanding the temperature of the atmosphere has been below the freezing point two or three nights the past week. The indications are certainly very flattering for a large crop of every kind of fruit, and unless some very cold weather sets in at an early day, this part of the country, will have its full share.

MORAL VS. HUSBANDS.—A correspondent of a Worcester paper relates the following incident: "Just as the train was about starting for Greenfield, Friday morning, on the Vermont and Massachusetts railroad, a sprightly little woman with a child took a seat in a car near where I was sitting. The cars were beginning to move, and the little woman looked anxiously through the end window of the rear car for her missing husband, who was in the depot attending to the purchase of tickets, &c., The speed of the cars increased and the woman looked more anxious. The husband now appears and commenced to run. He gains on the cars at first, but they are too far ahead of him, and soon are leaving him behind, although he "did run well for a season." It is now the wife's turn to try what she can do. In agony she implores the conductor that her husband is left behind, but he cant help that. "I am starting on a journey and cant get along without my husband." "Then let him attend to his business next time," was the cold answer. "But," said the keen Yankee woman, "I have no money with me." The brakes were applied, and the cars brought to a stand still, and the panting husband enters the cars to the delight of all the passengers, especially of his wife.—Moral—money will stop a train of cars much quicker than husbands."

EXTENSIVE SALE OF PINE LOGS.—One of the saw-millers in attendance at the late Convention in this city, informs us that within the last two or three days, about four million feet of pine logs lying along the river at different points, have been purchased mostly by St. Louis parties, which purchasers have very nearly absorbed all of the logs lying over from last season in the hands of the cutters. The prices paid range from $8 to $10 per M. according to quality, and not withstanding the notion of the Convention of Mill owners held in this place on the 6th inst., we understand no provisions has been made by the purchasers in the different bargains for having them re-scaled by the St. Croix scale.

This extensive purchase thus early in the season might indicate that sharp buyers are preparing for a rise in the market, as it is well known that the demand in that quarter for present use is not urgent. The depression in the lumber trade which has existed for the last year or more, has evidently touched bottom, and it is thought by some dealers that under the influence of the prospect of an extraordinarily short supply for the coming summer, prices must necessarily advance to a nominal standard.—Davenport Gaz.

CHILD BURNED TO DEATH.—The Massillon Times says that a little girl of four years was burned to death in that place, last Monday morning, under these circumstances: She had been left with her younger brother while her mother went out for water. She said, as her mother went out, she would put the coffee pot on the stove.

Returning with the water, the mother did not enter the house, but went about performing some out-door duties, although she thought she smelled something burning, but supposed it to proceed from a fire in a neighbor's yard, and seeing her little boy standing on a chair looking out the window at her, she thought no more of the matter. Finishing her work, she opened the door to go into the house, when she discovered that the room was filled with smoke, and her little daughter lying at her feet burnt to a crisp. It is supposed her clothes caught fire when she was putting the coffee pot on the stove. The little boy was uninjured, and was standing on the chair looking out the window when his mother came.

The name of the child was Borchers.

SUFFERING IN MICHIGAN.—The suffering for provisions in the county of Montcalm, Mich., may be judged from the fact that the Detroit Tribune published an affidavit subscribed by 141 heads of families, representing nearly 700 persons, the most of them stating that they are entirely destitute of provisions, and have no means in their possession of procuring them; and the others that they have not enough to last them more than ten days, and no means of obtaining more! The relief voted by the Legislature is being dispensed, but is far short of what is necessary to prevent much suffering.

At a meeting of the Horticultural Society today, full reports were received regarding the fruit prospects. It is gratifying to know that no serious damage has, so far, been sustained, and that the indications are that a full crop will be realized.—Cin. Gaz.

THE BOSTON SCHOOL TROUBLES.—The teacher in the Elliot School, McLaurin F. Cook, brought to trial on a charge of cruelty, in punishing a scholar who refused to repeat the Lord's Prayer has been discharged. Judge Maine delivered a long decision, in the course of which, after alluding to the provocation for the punishment, he says:

"He was punished for insubordination and a determination to stand out against the lawful commands of the school. Every blow given was for a continued resistance and a new offence—The offence and the punishment went hand in hand together. The punishment ceased when offence ceased.

By this the Court is not to be understood as justifying the inflicting of punishment upon a scholar so long as he holds out against the commands of the school. The punishment must not be extended beyond the limits of sound discretion, and this every master must decide at his peril.

In this case the punishment inflicted, when compared with the offence committed, and all the attendant circumstances as they appeared upon the trial, was neither excessive, nor inflicted through malice by the defendant."

Consequently the defendant was discharged.

The decision by Judge Maine appears to be well received by the Boston press. The matter might very well drop here, but there appears to be a desire on the part of some of the Cathol
