In his oration delivered on the 4th of July in Elwood, Kansas, the Hon. F. P. Stanton argued that while Slavery was a providential phenomena in man's history, and had been of great use and advantage in this country as well as elsewhere, it must in due time disappear from American society as it has disappeared from among other nations. The necessary condition of the passage from barbarism to civilization, is, must go out of existence when the necessity for it is over. Then it becomes an obstacle instead of an auxiliary to progress, and cannot be preserved without evil consequences. The difficulties connected with its removal will be maintained, be obviated and smoothed away by the peculiar political constitution of the American people, which leaves the subject to the independent decision of the people of each State, and thus Missouri, South Carolina, and the other States, can act upon it each for herself. As for the reopening of the African slave-trade, Mr. Stanton does not believe that the people of the South can ever hesitate "between that policy which would fill our country with white men, or that which would people it with cannibal Africans." With regard to the disputed question in the Territories, he contends for leaving it there as elsewhere to be settled by the people; "even if they be not a matter of absolute right," he argues, "it is a small concession to be made for the sake of peace and harmony. Especially is it insignificant, in view of the great historical facts showing the gradual tendency of Slavery to go South, and finally disappear forever." Mr. Stanton concluded his oration by expressing, in eloquent language, his sympathy with the cause of Italian independence.

REMEDY FOR THE CHINCH BUG.—We learn from Reuben Steely that Chas. Raub, and other farmers in this vicinity have succeeded in stopping the ravages of the chinch bug in this wise: As soon as a field of corn is attacked plow a deep furrow between the sound and damaged corn. Get a log of convenient dimensions, say ten or twelve feet in length, and ten inches in diameter, and, attaching a horse to the end of it, drag it through the furrow. After passing over it in this way three or four times, the soil will be ground to powder, and it will be almost impossible for the bugs to get through it. Mr Raub observed many of the bugs floundering in the dust in less than twelve hours after the furrow had been made, and he now keeps a boy and horse dragging the log all day long through the furrow, crushing millions of the pestilent insects every round. Mr. Mordoch, on the Wea Plains, has made a somewhat similar experiment. He collected the bugs in a furrow, and burned them with straw. This, however, is more tedious and less effectual than the plan adopted by Mr. Raub.—Lafayette Courier.

THEY HAVE a very sensible method of elopement in New Hampshire: e. g.

One Warren, at Goffstown, felt that he had an affinity to the wife of William Nute, and finding that Mrs. N. reciprocated it, he had a talk with the husband about it in the course of which Mr. Nute remarked sarcastically to Warren that if he had any better right to his wife than he himself had, he had better take her. Warren replied that he had thought of doing so, and a few minutes after said to Mrs. Nute, "Come, Sis, make haste, we have a long ways to go," and they prepared to start. Finding them determined to go, Mr. Nute gave his wife some wholesome advice, presented her seventy-five cents to buy a fan, (to cool her off,) and Warren, with Nute's wife, started off on foot, with no luggage or clothing, except what they had on, for Manchester.

GEN. HOUSTON, in a published letter, expresses the opinion that the attempt to revive the African slave trade is intended to bring about disunion, and that, if successful in the efforts to reopen the trade, the South would be overrun by African barbarians, and our lives, and, what is worse, our homes and our families, would be subject to their barbarities, and it would in no possible way advance our general or national prosperity.

New Stock of Melodeons.

JUST RECEIVED, a splendid new lot of Melodeons, from the factory of Mason & Hamlin, Boston, including all the styles made by them. This make of instruments have been approved by the greatest musicians in the country, as Dr. Lowell Mason, Geo. F. Root, W. B. Bradbury and others—consequently they can be relied on as being first class instruments. They are noted for the following points:

1. Their pure and musical quality of tone.
2. Their great power of tone.
3. Their quality of tone.
4. Their prompt and easy touch.
5. Their beautiful style of finish.
6. Their durability.
7. Their cheapness of price.
