PROTOXIDE OF IRON, OR, PERUVIAN SYRUP.—Scrofulous Diseases of the Glands of the Neck.—Letter from Mr. J. R. Collins.

WINCHESTER, MASS., Sept. 23, 1859. MESSRS. N. L. CLARK & CO.—Gentlemen—I cannot refrain from adding my testimony to the great and beneficial results I have experienced from the use of the Peruvian Syrup. I have been afflicted from youth up with a severe and malignant "Scrofulous Humor." My face and neck were covered with eruptions and sores, and at times very badly swollen. My general health failed me, and I suffered from extreme debility of the whole system. I had tried various kinds of medicines, but found them of no avail. Finally I was induced by a friend to try the Peruvian Syrup, at the time of an unusually violent attack of the disease. I soon began to experience the beneficial effects of it, and by the time I had taken one bottle, to my great surprise, the swelling had entirely disappeared from my face and neck, the sores had healed, and my general health had greatly improved. I continued its use, and have taken some half dozen bottles, which have been attended with the most salutary results; there are now no indications of the disease, and my whole system seems to have undergone an entire change. A very respectfully, yours, J. R. COLLINS, No 24 Central street, Boston. ☞ See long advertisement. DR. GEO. H. KEYSER, 140 Wood street, is the Agent for this city. no11:d&wT

COURT OF QUARTER SESSIONS.—Before Judges McClure, Maynard, Adams and Parke.

Thursday, Nov. 10.—The Rutherford trial went on to and through its third day on Thursday. The question under consideration, when court adjourned on Wednesday night was as to the admissibility of certain letters written by Helen M. Hively, from Uniontown. The court having examined the letters, decided that they were not admissible. The defense then called other witnesses.

Rebecca A. Wells testified that she was employed at the House of Refuge as house-keeper; she knows Susan Gallagher. Certain letters of Susan were produced, in which she had taken back the charges made against Mr. Rutherford, and after much discussion were admitted by the court. Witness testified that she had no recollection of inducing Susan to write those or other letters, denying the truth of the charges made.

On the cross-examination, the witness said she had told Mr. Marshall, in the presence of Miss Cutler, that she had no recollection of inducing Susan to write a letter denying the charge.

The plan of the House of Refuge was shown to and identified by Mr. Frewcastle, who made it. He testified that the Superintendent has a general supervision of the House; one duty is to pass through the House daily and see that all is right; a fire took place during the autumn of 1856.

Judge Shaler offered the Superintendent's journal for the year 1856, for the purpose of fixing the date of the fire. Objected to and objection sustained.

The examination of Mr. Frewcastle was continued. He made these plans two years ago and not with reference to this matter. The witness stated to the Court the relative positions of the rooms in the Refuge which had been referred to in the course of the examination. Witness never knew of a male officer of the Refuge having a key to the girls' domitories; never knew any of the officers to be in there at night. The examination was continued on at great length.

James McCandless, Esq., testified that he is one of the Board of Directors of the Refuge; thought he could recognize the hand writing of Susan Gallagher. A note in pencil was handed to him, which he thought was in her hand writing. Over this note there was great contest. Mr. McCandless examined closely as to his means of knowing her hand writing; he had been on the committee of the school room; had seen her writing in copy books. At the time when the examination into certain charges made against Mr. Rutherford some time ago was instigated by the Board of Directors, Mr. Rutherford had given him that note in pencil, as coming from Susan Gallagher, and he believed it to be in her hand writing. (The note was not read to the jury.)

Hugh Gallagher was sworn, and testified that he would not believe on oath his own daughter Susan.

Most of the proceedings during the forenoon were interspersed with passages at arms between the opposing counsel. These were sometimes laughable, sometimes parliamentary, interspersed with "my learned friend," "the learned counsel for defence," etc., and some times quite sharp and serious.

Mr. McCandless was again recalled and examined at some length as to the reputation of Susan Gallager while she was in the institution. He said her reputation for truth, as reported to him by the officers, was bad. He gained his information as to her character from the officers. He would not believe her upon oath. Mr. McCandless was present, on cross-examination, to give the name of an officer who said Susan was not worthy of belief, but could not designate one.

Mrs. McGee, matron of the House of Refuge, was called. Was asked to identify the time when she took a little child that was crying from the room of Mr. Rutherford, but could not; she said, however, it was in the fall; she was about two years ago; Susan never had access to Mr. Rutherford's part of the building; she worked in the kitchen and helped to do the cooking. This examinant fact, but generally to circumstances which are intended to affect the credibility of the witness, Susan Gallagher.

Afternoon Session.—The case dragged its slow length along through the afternoon. The crowd was still more dense, if possible, than before. They hang with eager ears upon the scandalous tales and are sometimes quite demonstrative at the witticisms of the learned counsel.

The members of the Board of Managers of the House of Refuge were put upon the stand. Under the ruling of the Court their testimony was confined to what they knew or had heard in reference to Mr. Rutherford's character for chastity. Previous to the year 1857 most of them had heard nothing derogatory thereto, previous to 1857, at which time the first rumors about his proceedings in the House of Refuge were floating about in this community. These rumors caused the investigation which was instituted there by the Board, and dismissed as unworthy of credence. We say most of them had heard nothing on this point previous to 1857, but some had heard rumors of wrong previous to that time.

Edward McCaffrey was called. He had been baker and watchman at the House of Refuge for two years from 1856. He was called to rebut the testimony of Michael Cowan, who had sworn to the pursuit of Rutherford, at midnight, to the bath room. The prosecution objected to the witness, alleging that he had been in the penitentiary for grand larceny, and the record was brought to show that such was the case. He had been incarcerated for stealing canary birds.

Dr. Perchment, physician to the House of Refuge, was called, but his testimony was excluded on technical grounds.

The afternoon was in part occupied as had been the case heretofore since the trial began, with arguments on the admissibility of testimony. With some others their testimony of little apparent importance, the defence rested.

The prosecution then offered, as rebutting evidence, the record of the imprisonment of Mr. Caffrey. The rebutting testimony will be adduced this forenoon. We learn that the case will be carried directly forward to a conclusion. The case may go to the jury on Saturday evening.

SCIENTIFIC LECTURES.—We have before, several times, alluded to the fact that a course of lectures on Chemistry were to be delivered at an early day in this city, by Prof. Blake of Boston. The following correspondence will explain under what auspices that gentleman comes among us:

PITTSBURGH, PA., Oct. 17, 1859.

Mr. GEORGE F. BARKER, Boston.—Dear Sir—Having heard of your high attainments as a Chemist by letters from distinguished gentlemen, among whom are Professors Silliman, senior and junior, Hitchcock and Bacon, and of your "brilliant and thoroughly scientific lectures" in Boston on your favorite science, a science closely connected with the comfort, health, and life of every individual; and as Professor Silliman, senior, in a recent letter justly remarks, "intimately allied to the numerous and important manufactures" of our city, we hereby invite you to deliver a course of lectures on that subject in this city, the present season, believing that they will be highly interesting and instructive to us, they being illustrated by numerous and striking experiments, and also remunerative to you.

Very respectfully, yours,

(Signed)

To Messrs. Thos Bakewell, John Harper, Wm. F. Johnston, H. A. Weaver, A. W. Loomis, J. K. Moorhead and others, Pittsburgh:

GENTLEMEN:—the invitation you have been pleased to extend to me to deliver a course of experimental scientific lectures in your city during the present season, is at hand. Chemistry is, indeed, my "favorite" science, and, in the manufacturing interests of Pittsburgh, doubtless has a large influence, and this mainly of a practical character. Rightly to combine theory and practice, and thus to educe laws which shall connect the every day employments of men with those eternal principles laid down in the Divine mind, is the true mission of Science:

With the hope that such results may follow in our case, and we be thus raised to a contemplation of the great Author of Nature, I accept your invitation, and shall be ready to serve you at such time and place as you may hereafter designate.

Thanking you very sincerely for this expression of your confidence, I remain, gentlemen, Very truly, yours,

(Signed,) GEORGE F. BARKER.

Boston, Oct. 23, 1859

We may add that the subjects of this course of lectures, and the time and place of their delivery, will be announced early next week.

SUPPOSED MURDER.—The Johnstown Echo reports that the body of a man named Wymer, of Milford township, Somerset county, was found in the woods about a mile from his residence, on Sunday last, having been shot and killed, as is supposed; by another man named Fritz. The two had gone out on a hunting excursion a few days previous, and the latter returned alone. Fritz was arrested, and on examination it was found that he was on intimate terms with Wymer's wife. Both were committed to jail.

THE SCHILLER FESTIVAL.—The celebration of the one-hundredth anniversary of the birth-day of Schiller, the poet, was celebrated in this city on Thursday. At ten o'clock a procession consisting principally of the military, formed and paraded through the streets.

The staff of Gen. J. S. Negley, consisting of Major Hay, Capts. Negley, Morton and Irvin, Lieut. Sahl, Cols. Hultz and Magee, and Sergeants Blackburn and Krehan, were in the procession. Then followed the carriages for the orators and committee, the Jackson Blues, Capt. McKee; Smith's Band, of Birmingham, Capt. Foster; Citizens' Brass Band; Washington Infantry, Capt. T. A. Rowley; Turner Rifle Corps, the name of whose Captain we do not know, and the Turner Society.

Just as the procession was moving, the clouds which had been for some time threatening, poured forth their rain, making the streets very muddy and the march throughout quite disagreeable. The procession in which was Young's celebrated Brass Band marched their designated course and came back about one o'clock a little wet. They were disbanded on Smithfield street.

At three o'clock the exercises of the afternoon in Masonic Hall commenced by an overture elegantly performed by Young's Band. Mr. Koetken presided on the stage and introduced the speakers. The stage was adorned by a colossal bust of Schiller, made for the occasion by Messrs. Meyer & Stout, and presenting the marked features of this great poet to the life. The stage had been prepared for the tableaux of the evening. A large audience, crowded the hall and listened attentively to the German Oration by Pastor Walther, of the Lutheran Church. It occupied an hour and a quarter in its delivery, and drew down great applause. He gave a truthful and beautiful sketch of the works and prominent features in the life of the man whom to know, whether as a man or as a poet, is to adore. He spoke, in passing, of Goethe and of Luther, whose birth-day was also the tenth of November.

The shadows of the short and smoky autumnal day had closed in before the speaker had concluded, at which point the audience gave three cheers for Schiller, the poet of Germany and of the world. Although the day was somewhat inauspicious, the programme was arranged and carried out in such a manner as to reflect great credit upon the gentlemen who had the arrangements in hand. The meeting was, we learn, highly pleasing, and the oration very satisfactory to all who had the pleasure of hearing it. Rev. Walther is a man of great learning, and is fully versed in German literature and master of the German tongue.

Evening.—The performances of the evening were peculiarly beautiful, and the most perfect success of any thing of the kind ever attempted in this city.

The exercises were introduced by a prologue in German, written by Rev. C. Walther and read by P. Mertz, Esq., with much acceptance. The overture by Young's Band came next.

The Festified, by Ferdinand Freiligrath, dedicated to the Germans in America, was read by Mr. Charles Ludwig, most eloquently and effectually. Then the Frohsinn and Teutonia Societies, numbering in all about sixty, sang the "Power of Song," by Schiller.

Then succeeded the reading of the "Song of the Bell." Mr. A. Charles, an excellent reader, gave the words of this beautiful song. At certain interval in the course of the reading the reader paused, and the idea last suggested by his reading was presented in tableau by a company of youth. The scenes were—"The Foundry," "The Baptism," "The Farewell," "The Return," "The Bridal," "The Mother," "The Casting of the Bell," "Fire," "Funeral," "Revolution," "Battle," "The Bell," and to crown all the bust of Schiller was coronated upon the stage. The audience in the house was vast, and every one entered into the spirit of the occasion with the whole soul. The final chorus was sung—"The Bell, by Romberg"—by the Frohsinn and Teutonia, accompanied by Young's Band. We congratulate our German friends on so successful and happy a day for them as was yesterday.

POLICE ITEMS.—Edward Miller, made oath before the Mayor, yesterday, against Nathaniel Graham, charging him with having knocked him (Miller) down, on Tuesday night, while he was walking along Penn street. Miller is a black eye and his face was badly scarred. Graham protested that on the night in question, he was safe and sound in bed. Miller said that he could bring witnesses to identify Graham as the man who struck him. The case was postponed for a further hearing this morning, and Graham locked up in the watch house for safe keeping.

THE sale of Watches, Silver Plated Ware and Jewelry, at Wilson's establishment, No. 112 Wood street, near Fifth, will be continued by Mr. Davis, auctioneer, this afternoon and evening, at 2 and 7 o'clock. This opportunity to obtain reliable goods, at very low prices, should not be neglected by those desirous of any such articles.

THE administrator's sale of fine furniture at the warerooms of the late H. Ryan, Dispatch building, Fifth street, comprising all his superior work in rosewood, mahogany, walnut and cherry, will be continued this afternoon at one o'clock, with an entirely new supply. The rapid sales are approaching near the close of the stock.

JUDGESHIP.—The Governor has appointed George F. Keener Associate Judge of Armstrong county, vice Hon. Robert Woodward, dec'd.

THE Iron City College, of Pittsburgh, Pa., is now the largest Commercial School of this country.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

TO SEWING MACHINE OPERATORS.—Mr. J. T. Shaw, No. 65 Fifth street, 4th story over J. R. Reed & Co.'s Jewelry Store, is fully prepared to repair and put in perfect order all description of Sewing Machines. Operators having defective and damaged machines will find it to their advantage to give him a call, as he will make all things right and restore the machine to perfect running order. Prices moderate.

Notice to Builders and Contractors. THE UNDERSIGNED (formerly foreman for Rowland Parry) would respectfully inform those for whom he has done work, and the public generally, that he is now prepared to furnish Slate, or put on Slate Roofs, or repairing of Slate Roofs (if left at the office of Alex.
