PITTSBURGH:

THURSDAY, MORNING FEB. 23, 1860.

From Harrisburg.—It will be seen by our telegraph despatches, that no nomination for Governor was made yesterday by the Republican Convention, the matter having been passed over till to-day. It will also be seen that the Convention is strongly in favor of Gen. CAMERON for the Presidency, and go decidedly for the appointment by the Convention of the delegates to Chicago. We shall be able to announce the nominee in to-morrow's Gazette.

ORGANIZE! ORGANIZE!!—Now, that the Republicans will soon have in the field their candidate for Governor, the campaign may be said to have fairly commenced. The duty now becomes imperative upon the Republicans of the State to proceed at once to a thorough organization of their forces. There is no time to be lost. The issues involved in the contest of next fall are of momentous importance. As goes the State at the October election, so will it go at the Presidential contest in November, which follows so closely upon the heels of the first election. Defeat in October is certain defeat in November. It is but seldom indeed that ever a party has been rallied so effectively as to achieve a victory in a second contest, where it was badly beaten in the first. We experienced this in 1852 and 1856. We must carry the State election by a decided majority, and the result in November will not admit of a doubt. In order to do this, our organization must be perfected systematically and thoroughly. Nothing must be taken for granted—everything must be assured—made certain beyond all possible contingencies. This preparation for the contest must not only embrace a general State organization, but that of district, city, borough, township, ward and school districts. The masses of the people must be instructed and enlightened upon the great and momentous interests involved in the contest. Primary meetings must be continually kept up in every school district in the Commonwealth up to the day before the election, and Republican newspapers and Republican documents, the best exponents of our principles, must be spread broadcast among the people. Intelligent, popular speakers must be everywhere at work, and that uninterrmittingly throughout the campaign. The more light and intelligence diffused, the more certainty we have of a triumphant issue for the Republican Cause—which is most obviously and indubitably the cause of the Free Millions of this great country.

We have always been the advocates of the School District system of organization, and have ever found it to work well. Thorough organization always contemplates a careful polling and classification of each separate district. The reliable Republican vote, and the doubtful and luke-warm, should be registered, and the state of the district fairly and surely ascertained, then the arguments to convince the doubtful and the influences to arouse the lukewarm and indifferent can be brought to bear effectively and to good purpose.

It must be borne in mind that our political opponents will put forth such an effort as has never before been witnessed in the political history of this State. The defeat which inevitably awaits them is foreshadowed in all the signs and betokenings of the times. The hand-writing is glaringly upon the wall. The verdict has been pronounced—"weighed in the balance and found wanting!" And though divided counsels may appear to prevail, the party and the ambitious leaders of factions may strive and contend with each other for precedence; and though two boisterous and discordant segments of the same party seem to war against each other with bitterness, we must not be lulled and deceived by these appearances. These bickerings will yield to the imperious demands of exacting party drill—they will give way before the alarming exigencies and extreme necessities of the party, menaced with political annihilation. When it is seen that the sceptre is about to depart from them, bygones will be bygones with them, and and all will fall into line—a united and undivided democratic phalanx, with serried column, marching to the polls under their ancient battle cry of Democracy and the Union, forever!

The political history of parties in our State, in past times, affords a useful lesson to the Republican party of to-day. We never dare count with confidence upon dissensions in the ranks of our opponents. Their quarrels too must resemble "lover's quarrels"—wrangle as they will to-day, they are in a "wooing and cooing" relationship to-morrow. Trust them not; but let us arm thoroughly for the conflict and fail not to do our whole duty as the champions of just and righteous principles—the advocates of a wise and liberal and fostering policy for our country which shall be beneficent in its influences upon the great industrial interests of the Union.

We repeat, then, lose no time in organizing. Let us go heart and soul into this contest, determined to achieve, as we deserve, a triumphant victory.

"Our Flag is There!"

At one o'clock yesterday the magnificent flag of the Allegheny County Republican Club was hoisted from their headquarters at Lafayette Hall. It is of colossal dimensions, measuring 34 feet by 20, and in style and material exceeds anything of the sort perhaps ever displayed in our city. As it was flung to the breeze, a band in attendance played that impressive national air, "The Star Spangled Banner." The enthusiasm produced was unbounded. The noble ensign was greeted with loud and repeated cheers until the welkin rang again, and every one felt an auspicious thrill at this inauguration of the political contest about to begin.

The Republicans of our county are all alive and eager for the work of the opening campaign. Convinced that they have no child's play before them, they are resolved to go at it with a will, and never ground their arms or strike their flag until the victory of 1860 is gallantly achieved. Personal preferences for the Presidency all of us have, but while we agree to entertain our differences and avow them dispassionately, when the choice is once made, all differences will be discarded, and with one heart and one mind, all will cheerfully and enthusiastically go in for the Nominee of the Chicago Convention, resolved to put him through gloriously.

The Republican party stand upon a platform of principles of which they may well be proud, and to which they can point the Laboring Millions of the Nation, without causing a tinge to mantle any cheek. There is no baleful sentiments of disunion and disloyalty to the institutions of the country in their confession of political faith. Protection to the industrial interests of the country is one of the cardinal doctrines in their creed, while devotion to the Union in its integrity is the paramount sentiment pervading all its ranks.

Before closing this article, we would call the attention of the Republicans to the Grand Ratification meeting to come off on next Saturday evening at the Head Quarters of the Allegheny County Republican Club, Lafayette Hall. It is hoped that the Republican nominee for Governor will be present to lend spirit and eclat to the occasion. We hope the Republican masses will be present in their majesty, and set the ball fully in motion for the ensuing political contest. Fine speaking may be expected, and a splendid brass band will entertain the meeting with spirit-stirring patriotic airs.

DEATH OF AN OLD RAILROAD CONDUCTOR.—Daniel B. Stanbury formerly conductor on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, and well known in this city, committed suicide at the house of Jennie Murphy in Baltimore Friday last, by shooting his brains out with a pistol. It seems that he has been in the habit of visiting the house of Mrs. M. for some eight years past and some difficulty lately sprung up between them—because he thought she preferred another to him. He had frequently threatened to kill both her and himself and only a short time ago a pistol was wrested from him by some one in the house.—Wheeling Intel.

A TERRIBLE WINTER'S JOURNEY.—Lost and frozen to Death on the Open Prairie.—Mr. Anthony, one of the party who was lost on the prairie, and whose sufferings are depicted below by the editor of the Nor' Wester, published at the Red River Settlement, called upon us yesterday. The following account is taken from the Nor' Wester, the second number of which lies before us.

Never have we met with a more sad and melancholy narrative than that which it is our painful duty this week to recount. The boiler of the Anson Northrup not being in a fit state to commence work in the spring, the Messrs. Burbank, of St. Paul, resolved to send over to Fort Garry, during the winter, a competent person to examine it; it was accordingly arranged that he should go to Georgetown, a newly-formed station at the mouth of Buffalo river, about 200 miles from here, and that Gov. Mactavish should despatch a party thither to bring him on to the settlement. The engineer, it would seem, had arrived at Georgetown somewhat sooner than the date fixed upon, and having waited there a few days he grew impatient at the delay, and requested to be sent on. Mr. Mackenzie, the young gentleman in charge of the station, delayed a while longer, and then started with two others, besides the engineer, making the grave mistake of taking mules instead of dogs. None of them have traveled the route before, and of course could not possess a correct knowledge of the road or the distance.

Mr. Mackenzie said it was five or six days' journey, and provided supplies accordingly. On Friday, December 23, they started, going eastward, in order to fall in with the train from Crow Wing. They had not been out longer than two or three days when the mules began to "give up." They then felt that they could not reach their destination in the time anticipated; and, what was worse, that their provisions would fail them. A feeling of incipient despair crept over them. Here they were hopeless, in the heart of a vast, dreary, unknown prairie, in a cold week of the bleak month of December, far beyond the reach of all sympathy and aid, with starvation staring them in the face—their condition was one of desperation. On Thursday, the 29th Mr. Mackenzie resolved to start ahead and try, by a bold effort, to reach Pembina, and send back succor to his companions. The engineer accompanied him. The day was cold and stormy, and a bitter blast from the north drifted the snow in their faces, and drove them back. They all camped together that night near Pine river, about fifty miles from Pembina. In the morning the brave hearted Mackenzie started again—started never to return, and, alas! never to reach his destination.

This time he was alone. He seemed to have a presentiment that he would not get through, and he made David Taft, the man who had been with him at Georgetown, a present of his gun, in case that he had himself no further need of it. He wore but one thin coat, and was lightly clad throughout, wishing to be as little burdened with clothes as possible, as he intended to run most of the way. A bit of pemmican, the size of his fist, was all the food the party could supply. He put that into his pocket, provided himself with matches, and shook hands once more. It was a last sad farewell! Had he reached Pembina in due time, his companions would have received assistance on Saturday night or Sunday morning. Sunday morning passed, however, and Sunday night, too, without bringing any help. Their worst forebodings were now confirmed. The feeling of painful suspense gave way to a feeling of desperation. On Monday morning David Taft pushed ahead, and by great exertion he succeeded in reaching Pembina the same evening. A brief inquiry confirmed the worst apprehensions. Mr. Mackenzie had not been there.

Mr. Rolette at once provided two men with every requisite, and sent away, Taft accompanying them. They fell in with the remnant of the party shortly after leaving Pembina on Tuesday, and after supplying their urgent needs, they went off in search of the ill-fated Mackenzie. They sought him in vain all that day and night, and on Wednesday they came upon traces of him which brought them to his corpse. After leaving his companions, he seems to have followed the trail for a considerable distance, and then to have lost his way. Night came upon him, and bewildered by the growing darkness and the drifting snow, he made towards a clump of trees, with the intention, probably, of kindling a fire. If such was his object, he seems to have been unable to accomplish it; and his beaten track shows that to keep himself from freezing, he had spent the hours of that lonesome night in running round in a circle. With the break of day, he started again across the trackless waste, every step that he took carrying him further and further from the spot which he was straining every nerve to reach. Another weary day of fruitless travel was followed by a second night more dreary even than the first. Again he had managed to stave off what he must have felt to have been the hour of his dissolution by long hours of ceaseless activity. A third day's journey brought him to ward Lac des Roseaux. Here he attempted to run round as before. But the strength and courage which had heretofore sustained him, now forsook him.

He dragged his tired footsteps through the loose snow towards a tree, from which he plucked a branch and hung thereon a shred of his tattered coat as a signal to mark his dismal resting place; he next tore off another branch of the same tree, which he placed as a pillow for his cold bed, and then laid upon it his weary head and died. The powerful body and determined spirit which had so long braved the merciless storm, in spite of hunger and fatigue, had at last to succumb! His right hand was on his heart and his left hung by his side, firmly holding a compass. The body gave indications of having undergone intense suffering. Some portions of it had been frozen and thawed many times in succession before death intervened to release him from further anguish. Meanwhile James McCay had been dispatched to Georgetown to bring on the engineer. But, as already stated, the hapless party had left before his arrival. They had taken different roads and thus he missed them.

The remains of the deceased were brought to Pembina on Thursday week, and to Fort Garry on the following day. The body continued there until yesterday, when it was conveyed to St. Andrew's, and interred side by side with Mr. McKenzie's father and mother.

AUSTRIA AND HUNGARY.—The sudden and unpromising peace of Villa Franca, last summer, brought despair to the hearts of many Hungarians. Subsequent events have made the peace less discouraging to the friends of freedom everywhere, and in Hungary there has been a renewed hope of increased liberty, if not of national independence. But the foolish and head-strong young Emperor of Austria, whose empire is wasting away under debt and disaffection, refuses to listen to the reasonable prayers of his Hungarian subjects, and he is thus blindly doing much for the prejudice of his sovereignty and for the advantage of freedom.

In the latter part of January a deputation of Hungarian Protestant gentlemen went from Pesth to Vienna, to present to the Emperor an humble and respectful remonstrance against enforcing the late imperial patent relative to the Protestant religion. After waiting for several days for an audience, they were informed that the Emperor would not receive them. He offered to receive separately two members of the deputation as private citizens, but this was respectfully declined. The deputation returned to Pesth, where the news of the Emperor's treatment of them had created a feeling of consternation among the Protestant inhabitants, which, at the latest accounts, was spreading rapidly through the country.

Since the Concordat between Austria and the Pope, the restraints and disabilities of Protestant Austrian justice have been greater than before, and that instrument binds the Austrian government to a certain submission to the authority of Rome greater than that conceded by any other important temporal power of Europe. The imperial patent, which has caused the late trouble, will, if enforced, wholly destroy the legal basis on which the Protestant Church in Hungary has stood since the reformation. The Protestant portion of the population numbers about two and a half millions, in a total of almost eight millions. The remaining five and a half millions are divided among the people of the Roman, the Greek and the Jewish faith. Of course the Protestant element is an important one, numerically, while it is still more so by its superior intelligence and wealth. It is this portion of his Hungarian subjects that Francis Joseph is now setting at defiance. Knowing how devotedly the Hungarians are attached to their religion, it is easy to see that from this new attempt of the Hapsburg sovereign to deprive them of the religious liberty left to them, the most serious consequences may arise. With impending trouble in Croatia and Transylvania, with Venetia far from tranquilized, with the Zurich treaties concerning Italy still unenforced, it seems like madness or blindness in Austria thus to fairly drive the Hungarians into revolution.

That a revolution is looked for in Hungary, by any of the wisest politicians, cannot be doubted. If, simultaneously with it, a war about the lost Papal territories in Italy should arise, the two conflicts might easily become blended. Austria, Naples and Rome, against Sardinia, France and revolted Hungary, would make one of the most direful wars of this century—a war, too, of religions, in which, finally, other European States would become involved. Such a war would be an awful spectacle to contemplate; but its results could not fail to be advantageous to the cause of liberty in Europe.—Phil. Bulletin.

A YOUNG LADY KILLED.—In Woodbridge, New Haven county, Conn., on Tuesday night, Miss Eliza Thomas, daughter of Charles Thomas, was killed by being thrown from a wagon. She had been to a party, and going home, got into the wagon before her brothers and companions, and the horse, made cold by long waiting, started off at a slow trot, with the lines over the dashboard. Miss T. called for help, and several female companions came out, and by their screams frightened the horse into a run, and Miss T. was thrown out, and her head struck on a stone, killing her almost instantly. She was 24 years old.

Tonic, Cathartic and Anti Dyspeptic
PILLS.

WILSON'S PILLS have had a mere local existence for over twenty years, unsupported by advertising of any kind, and held at double the price of what they are now sold at, yet with all these disadvantages, wherever used they have in no instance failed to render the most satisfactory results in performing all the requirements of a valuable family medicine, and are such as we recommend to by some of the most worthy and responsible citizens of the land. Hear for instance what Col. William Hopkins, of Washington, Pa., says:

From Col. Wm. Hopkins, late Canal Commissioner of the State.

WASHINGTON, January 8, 1858.

Dr. R. A. WILSON, Pittsburgh, Pa.—I have been using your Anti-Dyspeptic Pills, when occasion required, for many years, and can truthfully say that I have never found any medicine equal to them in relieving me from affections of the stomach and heart; they have never failed to relieve me from headache, and have always left my system in better condition than they found it. I must confidently recommend your Pills as a safe and highly valuable medicine.

Yours, respectfully, WM HOPKINS

MESSRS B. L. FAHNESTOCK & Co.—I have had considerable experience in the use of those extraordinary Pill compounds by Dr. R. Adams Wilson, of which you are now the proprietors, and have often felt their benign influence in my own case for Nervous Headache, arising from sedentary habits or dilation of the stomach. I have likewise prescribed them for others, in cases of Dyspepsia and other forms of headache, depending on a deranged and irritable condition of the stomach and digestive organs, for which they seem peculiarly adapted, being entirely free from any griping tendency. I regard them as a very valuable Pill, and one that purges, without at all debilitating.

Yours, truly, GEO. H. KEYSER

COUNTRY HOMES
AT PUBLIC SALE.

Six Choice Sites for Country Residences,
Including a 12 Acre Lot in the village of Baden

THE PROPRIETORS OF THE BADEN FARM will offer it at Public Sale, in tracts of suitable for the residences of persons doing business in the Cities of Pittsburgh and Allegheny, or for GARDENERS who desire to raise produce within a convenient distance of the markets, or for Dairy Farms for which it is well suited. This farm is located in Economy Township, Beaver co., on the line of the Pittsburgh, F. W. & C. Railroad, at Baden Station, 20 miles from Pittsburgh. It consists of

160 ACRES,

Part under cultivation and part lying in woodlands, the whole susceptible of the highest cultivation.

Coal, Limestone and Potter's Clay

Are found in abundance. Within a mile of this farm has been discovered a vein of

CANNEL COAL,

Which is pronounced to be the best in the United States.

And it is supposed that the same vein underlies this Farm. For building purposes the Limestone on this place is very superior, and a quarry on this farm has supplied stone for some of the finest public buildings in Pittsburgh.

The elevated plateau command an extensive view of the Ohio, and a magnificent panorama of varying landscape, and are easy of access, surrounding the slopes which rise in natural terraces, presenting picturesque sites for rural cottages.

The portions of the farm further removed from the river are more thickly wooded, and the country, although not so elevated, is eminently rural.

The front division, lying next to the town of Baden, comprises 12 acres, on which is erected a small Brick Cottage and an excellent barn. There is on this division a young Orchard of choice Fruit, and a small excellent water near the house.

The sale will take place on the ground at 12 o'clock, M., THURSDAY, March 1st, if not sooner sold. The terms, which will be easy, will be made known on the day of sale.

Persons wishing to buy at private sale can apply to the Committee, who will show them the property and give information in every be desired

MOFFATT'S LIFE PILLS.

THE HIGH AND ENVIED celebrity which this combined medicine has acquired for its invariable efficacy in all the diseases which it professes to cure, has rendered the usual practice of ostentatious puffing not only unnecessary but unwaiting of them. They are known by their fruits; their good works testify for them, and they thrive not by the faith of the credulous. In all cases of costiveness or dyspepsia, biliousness and liver affections, piles, rheumatism and nervous complaints, they are a certain cure. In fevers and all other epidemics, they have invariably proved a certain and speedy remedy. A single trial will place the Life Pills beyond the reach of competition in the estimation of every patient.

Dr. Moffatt's Phoenix Bitters will be found equally efficacious in all cases of nervous debility, dyspepsia, headache, costiveness incident to females, or delicate health, and every kind of weakness of the digestive organs. For sale by Dr. SETH MOFFATT, 375 Broadway, New York, and by Medicine dealers and Druggists generally throughout the country. fe6:3mdawly

To Tourists and Merchants Visiting New York.

THE INTERNATIONAL HOTEL,
365 AND 367 BROADWAY,
Corner of Franklin Street,
NEW YORK.

POSSESSES ADVANTAGES which all travellers appreciate. Its location cannot be surpassed, being convenient to the principal places of business and amusement. The apartments, of which there are two hundred, are well furnished and well ventilated, and being conducted on the European plan, visitors can live in the best style, with the greatest economy. A large parlor, fronting on Broadway, and commanding an extensive view of that world-renowned thoroughfare, has been beautifully furnished for the use of ladies, and the general arrangements of the House are such as to afford the greatest comfort to guests.

The INTERNATIONAL HOTEL is connected with TAYLOR'S CELEBRATED SALOONS, Accommodating over one thousand persons, in which visitors can have their meals, or, if they desire, they will be served in their own apartments. The fare served in the Saloons and Hotel is acknowledged by epicures, to be unsurpassed by that of any hotel in the city.

Crying Baby! Crying Baby!!
A Present for the Little Ones!

In consequence of the superiority of Dr. Katon's INFANTILE CORDIAL over every other preparation of the kind, the druggists of this town have almost all ordered and received a supply of it, we believe up. Mothers! No more crying any drugging! who may not have received Dr. Katon's INFANTILE CORDIAL, or who may on account of getting some worth less article at a cheaper rate be more interested in selling it. Get the last, it is for sale in force—search till you find it.

Dr. BRONSON'S BLOOD FOOD, for diseases of the organs and all pulmonary complaints, is also for sale in town; and if any suffering from the above complaints neglect to try this preparation, they are guilty of suicide. There are five different Nos. of the Blood Food—all on the same principle, but graduated to the different delicacies of the blood arising from the different organs affected. No 1 is for Colds, Bronchitis, Consumption, and other chronic complaints arising from over use, general debility, or nervous prostration. No 2, for Liver Complaints. No 3, for Dyspepsia. No 4, Women's Restorative. No 5, Man's Restorative. Ask for Dr. Bronson's Blood Food.

Mothers! Mothers!!

You are all aware, in one sense of the word, yet can you determine and treat the diseases of your children? or do you not call in a physician when they are ailing. Accept, then, the old Dr. RICE brings you in his INFANTILE CORDIAL. He is a regular physician, and from much experience in infantile Complaints, has compounded this preparation—without paregoric or opiate of any kind—so as to be a sure relief to your suffering little ones in all the ills attending their teething, and for coughs, or croup, or convulsions, and also, for Summer Complaints, it is a certain cure. You may rely on it with perfect confidence, that Dr. RICE'S INFANTILE CORDIAL never has failed the celebrity it has in the United States, if it were not for the very best article for Infantile Complaints that is put up. It is fast superseding all others.

Dr BRONSON'S BLOOD FOOD, advertised with the Cordial is the most invaluable necessity to every Mother as well as every consumptive lady. Buy it and read the circular enveloping the bottle, and you will get the particular information you want.
