Sale of the Ryan Property.—The sale of the real estate of H. H. Ryan, dec'd, will take place at the Court House, to-morrow morning, the 17th inst., at 10 o'clock. Our readers would do well to hear this fact in mind and attend the sale. The terms of sale are favorable, and the property all of a character to increase in value both in city and country. Notwithstanding considerable [illegible] found, it has not been offered in this state by the Administrators, under an order of the Orphans' Court. Full particulars may be seen by referring to the advertisement. Handbills may be procured at the office of Michael C. Palmer, No. 87 Fifth street, or at any opposite the Gazette office, or from F. M. Ryan, No. 21 Pennsylvania Avenue.

[illegible] Case.—Before Judge Mellon and a jury. This case is the case of Deborah Schlegen, the counsel agreed upon a verdict of $251.99, subject to the opinion of the court upon the question of law reserved.

Assault vs. Christian Gebbert.—This was an action on the case in the nature of a writ of detention to recover damages for an alleged breach of warranty. The plaintiff purchased a mare from the defendant for $87. The money was paid down and the plaintiff went off with his purchase. But [illegible] the animal in half an hour after and tendered it back, alleging that it was unsound. The testimony in reference to the warranty, and of unsoundness, is conflicting. One of plaintiff's witnesses swore that Gebbert said the mare was sound and all right. One of defendants witnesses, on the other hand, stated that when Gebbert came to the stable he said, "Philip, take the mare, harness and wagon, and like the devil try her. She [illegible] balky." The mare was worth the money. The horse was frequently seen by Gebbert for $110, and changed hands frequently for prices ranging from that down to $60. The plaintiff took possession of her and sold her for $60. This man was called by defendant and swore that the horse's feet were tender, and that he had, about two weeks before she was sold to plaintiff, spent $45 for her. He thought sending her to the country would cure her. The charge to the jury substantially took away the plaintiff's cause of action. Judge Mellon stated that the jury were the proper persons to determine the whole case, including the question whether the conversation between the parties amounted to a warranty, or whether it was merely an expression of opinion. Verdict, 5 cents. Plaintiff's counsel excepted to the ruling of the court upon the question of law reserved.

Assault and Battery.—Before Alderman Mellon.—Christian Gebbert vs. Michael Palmer. This was an action for the assault and battery of the plaintiff's mare. The defendant claimed that the mare was his property, and that he had a right to take her. The plaintiff claimed that the mare was his property, and that the defendant had no right to take her. The jury rendered a verdict of $5 for the plaintiff.

Fire Works.—Blue Lights and Tremendous Rockets [illegible] Gazette Building, as well as Roman Candles of all colors, and will be rented cheap for the Republican Meeting, on the Capitol Hill, on the 19th inst. [illegible]
