The Object of the Disunionists.

The Southern Secessionists are conducting the contest for the purpose of securing the election of Lane. They know that Breckinridge has no chance, but use his name to give their cause a more respectable appearance. Lane is the man they want. In their hands he would be a supple as well as an unscrupulous tool, and they know it. This desire on their part should be a powerful inducement to every conservative and patriotic citizen in the country to give his hearty support to the nominees of the Chicago Convention—Lincoln and Hamlin—who are the only candidates that have a chance for an election by the people. A month's contest in Congress would endanger our institutions more than years of opposition from the disunionists of the South, and if that contest should terminate in the elevation of Lane to the head of the government, no language can describe the dangers which will menace the country. Lane is a demagogue, and does not possess a single qualification for so responsible a position. He is an illiterate demagogue, too, without any proper standard of morality, and is emphatically a representative of bar-room politicians and political tricksters. Under his administration the country would not only lose the respect and confidence of our own citizens, but it would become a by-word and a reproach among all civilized nations. His policy would be destructive of our best interests—it would open our ports to slave-traders, who would pursue their business in defiance of public sentiment and the enactments of Congress—it would plunge the country into aggressive wars with neighboring States—and it would inaugurate an era of corruption and venality hitherto unknown in our political history. Under the rule of this political profligate, the union of the States, now justly regarded as sacred by every patriotic heart, would soon become the source of oppression and wrong as hard to endure as the veriest despotism on the face of the earth.

With such a possible calamity threatening the future of the country it would be criminal to throw away votes in favor of insignificant organizations, which possess no other power than that of doing mischief. The conflict which we are now entering is a contest for the Union in its original integrity against traitors who would undermine and destroy it. If Lincoln is not elected to the Presidency by the people, Lane will be virtually placed in that office by the disunion majority in the United States Senate.—This is the direct issue, and before it the petty contentions of candidates and factions sink into insignificance. If Bell, Douglas or Breckinridge should carry every State their partizans claim for them, it is morally certain that neither of them can be elected to the Presidency. Lincoln is the only candidate in the field who has a chance for election by the people, and fortunately for the country his standard of political action is as elevated as his rule of personal action. He has never entered into the demoralizing schemes of corrupt politicians, but has ever stood before his country a giant in political honor and a pattern in moral rectitude. If we sincerely desire peace for the country in the future—if we really are in earnest in our deprecation of sectional agitation and excitement—our only course is to so direct our efforts as to end the contest in November, and thus prevent its transference to the halls of Congress.

PIERCE FOR THE SECESSIONISTS.—Rumor is assigning to Breckinridge and Lane the friendship and sympathy of Ex-President Pierce, was for once correct. That personage has recently written a letter to his boson friend, B. F. Hallett, of Boston, sympathizing with him in his ejection from the Baltimore Convention, in which he announces his preference for the candidates of the Southern Disunionists. At the same time the Ex-President deplores the sad condition into which his party has fallen, and mildly suggests that as things are as bad as they can be, this is no time for indulgence in crimination and recrimination. His notion of the matter, supposing him to have any fixed idea on the subject, is, that the Douglas men should drop their candidate and rally in support of his favorite—a course which in his opinion will save them from reaping a "harvest of regrets" in the future. Poor Pierce has so long submitted to Southern dictation that he regards any halting in rendering obedience to it, as something little short of moral treason. It is of very little consequence, however, which side he may take in the contest, as there is not a hamlet in the land that would permit itself to be influenced by any opinions that he might see proper to express on any political subject. In his letter to Mr. Hallett, he adopts the position of the President in his Washington speech, that there has been no nomination made in accordance with the established usages of the party, and that therefore democrats are not bound, as a test of political orthodoxy, to support any particular candidate. But he significantly adds:

"Under these circumstances it would gratify me exceedingly if our friends in all sections of the land could unite earnestly and cordially in the support of Mr. Breckinridge and Gen. Lane, and thus insure for our cause signal victory; but this cannot even be hoped for. What then is to be done with a result so repugnant to our wishes? It is of less consequence to discuss who were right and who were wrong upon the question of membership in the Convention, than it is to determine how the Democratic party, which united is invincible, can avert the calamity of an irreconcilable breach. While it would be culpable weakness to intermit effort for the right, there is neither wisdom nor courage in turning from a full view of the embarrassments which beset our party, and the dangers which threaten our country. The only manly idea on which to act is, 'things are bad, and may be worse; but, with the blessing of God, we will try to make them better.' At all events, it is no time for crimination and recrimination among those who expect hereafter to need and to have each the support of the other. It cannot mend the past—cannot help the present—and cannot fail to be disastrous to the future. He who takes a different view, and acts upon it, will only accumulate a harvest of regrets by uttering sentiments to be explained qualified, or recalled, unless, indeed, he is already at the 'half-way house' (where so many have stopped temporarily before,) only to resume his march, and take his place in the ranks of those whose opinions and action have been in indirect antagonism with his own."

It will be observed that the Ex-President with all his fine talk, proposes no specific remedy for the disorder which prevails in the ranks of the Democracy. He finds it more convenient to indulge in unmeaning generalities, which look very well on paper, but are in reality of little account. In this respect he presents quite a contrast to the savage bluntness of his successor in office.

THE CHICAGO Press and Tribune of the 13th inst., says that so far the campaign has been carried on in that state in guerilla fashion. On the 4th, however, it states: "The State Central Committee met at Springfield on Tuesday last, and in conjunction with the Presidential electors and the Republican nominees for state officers, arranged a plan for a systematic and vigorous campaign, so far as it could be done at the present time. In accordance with this programme, appointments were made for Judge Trumbull, Mr. Yates, Mr. Swett, Carl Schurz, Judge Hassaureck and others, extending to the middle or last of August. It was justly deemed advisable by the committee to expend their force first in these Democratic localities in the centre and South where, according to all accounts, the people are beginning to think that the Republicans are not all insurrectionists and cut-throats, and are anxious to hear something in behalf of freedom."

THE FREE DEMOCRACY OF ST. LOUIS—Monster Meeting.—On Saturday evening last the Free Democrats and Republicans of St. Louis held a monster meeting in that city, which is thus noticed by Monday's Democrat:

The place of rendezvous or muster was the levee—no other place in the city afforded verge enough for organizing that multitude. Lucas Market was the place of the grand reunion, and we are assured that the front of the procession had debouched into the latter, before the rear entered Fourth. This will give some idea of its magnitude, when we state in connection with it, that the route embraced Chesnut street to Fourth, Fourth to Franklin avenue, Franklin avenue to Ninth, Ninth to Olive, Pine, Chesnut and Market entering Lucas Market by each of the four streets, every delegation of the twelve or fifteen which constituted the procession, headed by its own spirit-stirring band. Arrived there, the scene was magnificent. Before and all around the speaker's stand—which, by the way, was brilliantly decorated—stretched and surged a sea of fire, from which the banners and transparencies rose like the masts and sails of ships, while the whole was surrounded by dark masses—silent as the grave—who had not participated in the demonstration, but most of them sympathised with its objects. Every eminence in the neighborhood also swarmed with the sympathetic and the curious, and it is no exaggerated estimate to say that twenty thousand human beings were present when Samuel T. Glover was called to the chair, with loud, long continued and universal applause.—The speaking, owing to the lateness of the hour, devolved solely on Mr. Blair. We but repeat the unanimous verdict, when we say that never in his life did he acquit himself better. The explicit declarations of his political views which he made, rendered the contrast between him and his opponent, who does not dare to say for whom he will vote for President, exceedingly forcible, and no less flattering to Mr. Blair's supporters than to himself, whose candor, sincerity and manhood show most advantageously by the side of Barret's moral cowardice or duplicity. Surely the man who ignores great issues in such a critical time as this, and stands by nothing but his own trivial, and in reality, fictitious grievances is not fit to be the representative of this great city in Congress, or anywhere else.

THE fate of Miss Emily Wheeler, daughter of Gen Wheeler, commander at Cawnpore before the massacre, seems to have been definitely ascertained. Some months ago, it was roundly asserted that she was still living with the author who said to have carried her off and that she wished to hide her sorrows and her shame alike in oblivion. A native spy, who has been tracing her fate for several months, has learned that she was carried off from Cawnpore by Nizam Ali Khan, Rathu, a sowar of Rampore. A fellow-trooper thus describes him: Age 22 years and two months, a fair complexion, height about 5 feet 7 inches, long nose, dark eyes, wears a beard and small moustache, and talks Hindustani. The statement is, that this fellow was accompanied (upon the pore) by his wife and sister; but that, on some quarrel taking place among them all one night the wife became estranged from him, and that thereupon he went and killed the young lady (Miss Wheeler) in the jungle, and cast her body into a dry well. Such, I heard, was the account they gave of him, and that they had also declared that he had perished soon after in the battle at Doutwal in a very miserable manner.

GARIBALDI'S PURPOSES.—That Garibaldi is bent on carrying on his plans until Italy is indeed free, "from the Alps to the Adriatic," is abundantly manifest by one of his latest proclamations to his soldiers, published at Palermo, in which he reminds them that "many of their brethren are still in slavery, whom they have sworn to release"—that "the liberty of Italy reposes on their bayonets"—that "the youth of Italy must be led to new combats and new victories before it can return to the sweets of life and the embraces of wife and children." "Soldiers of Calatifimi," he exclaims, "prepare to finish the glorious work which you have so well begun."

THE work of taking the census of Philadelphia will not be completed for several weeks, the operation being a tedious one, in consequence of the great number, and variety of questions asked. None of the wards have yet been completed, but it is thought by those having charge of this city will exceed 650,000. The census-takers report a number of persons that have passed their 100th year, the oldest one being 117 years of age, and still in tolerable health. In nearly every ward, people of 100, 105, 106, etc., have been reported. A remarkable circumstance attending the taking of the present census is the fact that scarcely an American has been found that cannot read or write.

THE Elkhart County Times says that a little son of D. B. Knight, living near Middlebury, aged about nine years, was frightened to death a few days ago, while gathering strawberries with another little boy. The owner of the premises seeing them threatened to shoot them and to set the dog on them, and so scared the little fellows that they ran home a considerable distance, when little Knight was found in a trance with terror, fancying that he had been shot at, and that the dog was after him, and remained delirous for a few days, when he died.

A FITTING REBUKE.—A clergyman in England, not long since, represented to the Lord Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol that a brother clergyman was in the habit of preaching in unconsecrated buildings, and otherwise similarly violating the rules of the Church of England, to which the Bishop returned the unexpected, but doubtless wholesome reply, "Go thou and do likewise."

The Crops.

New Wheat.—About five thousand bushels of new wheat were brought to this city last week. The first few loads brought one dollar and five cents, but the market was firm at a dollar a bushel during the most of the week. The yield is said to be better than that of last year, and the berry is as plump, as any one could desire. One of the most extensive grain dealers in the city informs us that the receipts this week will probably reach 25,000 bushels. We are always glad when wheat commands a dollar a bushel, but we do not think that price will hold long. When farmers can get it, they had better sell all the wheat they can spare, for "holding out" in such cases is rather dangerous business.—Springfield (Ill.) Jour.

The Grain Crops in Harrison County.—The greater portion of the wheat crop in this county has been cut, and taking it all over, there will be gathered considerable more than an average crop of wheat. The oats are generally of fair growth, and are quite forward for the season. It is a very even crop, but little of it being short, and none of it being much too rank. It will be ready for cutting very soon after the wheat harvest is done. There is more variation in the appearance of the corn fields, than in any other crop, some of the corn has rather a stunted look for late time in the summer, and will have hard work to mature a crop before the autumn sets in, particularly should the season prove a dry one.—Cadiz Rep.

Harvest.—Our former friends have been busy for the past two weeks in cutting their grain, and should the weather continue as favorable as heretofore, in a few days the drop will be safely housed. The quantity as well as the quality of the wheat crop, is above an average, and our farmers have abundant cause to be thankful for a plentiful reward of their labor. The corn and oats crops are also very promising—indeed everything in the vegetable line seems to prosper and bring abundant fruit. The year 1860 will be referred to hereafter as a year of plenty.—Huntingdon Amer.

Berries.—The mania for berries is yet unabated, though bushels have daily been pouring into market for two weeks, the people are exceedingly berry hungry. The failure last year has sharpened the public appetite to such an extent that the present raspberry crop will fall far short of satiating it. There will yet remain some demand for blackberries which are likely to be as plenty as they were in "Falstaff's" day.—Greene Co. Rep.

The Harvest.—It is said by farmers, with whom we have conversed, that the harvest has not been so plentiful in this county for a number of years, as the present. The wheat crop, considering the amount sown, (which is not as great as usual) surpasses that of any season for a number of years. The oats crop is extraordinary good.—Wash. Kem.

THE New York Tribune says:

We are pleased to learn that the Fowler Committee, consisting of Messrs Isaac Bell, Hiram Ketchum, Elijah F. Purdy, and Dr Crane, W. W. Sanger, now holding their weekly sessions at the New York Hotel, are done even better than they had reason to expect. Already they have collected over $60 000 toward reimbursing the Government for Mr Fowler's deficiency. We are informed that numbers of the persons to whom Mr. F. in his palmy days lent large sums of money, without taking any memorandum or written acknowledgment, have generously come forward and paid into the hands of the committee the entire amounts due. This makes us think better of human nature.

A CORRESPONDENT of the New York Tribune says:

Gerrit Smith is in more perfect health than for many years past. I have never seen him so vigorous, both in mind and body.

CENSUS OF OHIO.—The Cleveland Democrat says: "From the returns already in, it is feared that the population of Ohio, instead of advancing, has slightly decreased within the last ten years, by emigration or otherwise."

GARIBALDI was born on the Fourth of July, which fact, we presume, accounts for his being so patriotic a republican. He was born in 1807, and is consequently 53 years of age.

A GOOD BEGINNING.—The Republican Club of Marine, Madison county, Illinois, now numbers 181 members, of whom 70 voted for Douglas two years ago.

THE Census takers have placed the population of Cincinnati at 164,000.

Catarrh! Catarrh!! Catarrh!!! Catarrh!!!!
What is it? How Cured?

Thousands of persons suffer all sorts of annoyance from Catarrh. Most people know what its inconvenience and results are, yet but few know how it can be cured. It is simply a chronic irritation and often enlargement of follicles and consequent thickening of the mucous membranes, lining the nasal cavities, frontal sinuses, and sometimes extending into the throat and lungs. From this result tightness and often vertigo of the head, obstructed nose, or a profuse flow of mucus, loss of smell, nasal voice, and often impaired hearing and taste.

The old school remedies have never been able to do any thing for it. Nasal injections and inhalations are painful and expensive as they are generally worthless. Yet HOFF'S CATARRH SPECIFIC, a simple Sugar Pill, taken two or three times per day, promptly cures the milder cases, cures at once all colds in the head, and radically cures, by preventing use, the most obstinate cases, as is proved by the experience of hundreds.

FAYETTE SPRINGS.
THE SUBSCRIBER, having taken a perpetual lease of this popular
SUMMER RESORT,
Has had the buildings thoroughly refitted, with Plastering and the whole newly furnished. Being just over Laurel Hill Mountain, in Fayette county, Pa., and a circuitous Road, only slightly miles from Pittsburgh and eight from Uniontown—the present terminus of the Pittsburgh & Connellsville Railroad, on which two daily trains run—it is an easy and attractive transition from the surroundings of a MOUNTAIN RETREAT.
The waters are strongly Chalybeate—a pure and powerful tonic. Warm and Cold Baths are attached. Also, a Bowling Alley and other appliances for healthful exercise and amusement. No gnats or mosquitos.
Horses and carriages well cared for, with which guests can be furnished for excursions to the interesting contiguous localities. A post-office is near the Springs, supplied by daily mails during the season.
The long experience of the subscriber in catering to the comforts of his friends, emboldens him to promise entire satisfaction in all respects, as well to abiding guests as transient visitors. Charges moderate. All is now ready.

MOTHERS!
Read the following testimony to the success of Dr. Eaton's INFANTILE CORDIAL.
Mcgnesville, July 20th 1859
Dr. EATON—Dear Sir: I have much pleasure in certifying to the perfect harmlessness and efficacy of your Infantile Cordial, and cheerfully recommend it to those who have children teething. I have used it in my own family, and have sold over two hundred bottles the past year, all those who have yet used it unite in its praise for all diseases for which you recommend it. Yours, &c.,
E. F. LATHROP.

BLOOD FOOD! BLOOD FOOD!!
DR. EDWARDS—Sir: It may not be valuable to you, to know that I have used the different Preparations of Blood Food in several cases, and with entire satisfaction, and that I am convinced they are a better appropriation to the diseases for which they are prepared, than any other medicinal compound with such examination.
I recommend these Preparations as I am natural I believe, those that they should be most widely tested and adopted.

as a guarantee of the soundness and durability of the Goods.
This caution is rendered essentially necessary, on account of inferior and defective Linens are prepared, season after season, and sealed with the name of RICHARDSON, by Irish Houses, who, regardless of the injury thus inflicted alike on the American consumer and the manufacturers of the genuine Goods, will not readily abandon a business so profitable, while purchasers can be imposed on with Goods of a spurious character.
