THE CONFLICT TO BE RENEWED.

A New Orleans correspondent of the [illegible] writes the following letter by saying:

"Every one thinks this is but the beginning of a wide spread and fearful conflict, and in consequence the gun shops are [illegible]."

The New York Commercial Advertiser, a journal which leans strongly to conservatism published a letter from a former resident of that state, who has been some time in New Orleans for some time [illegible] August 5th, and reads:

"DEAR BROTHER:—You know I am not a prophet, and do not mix with politicians, but the time has come when the North must understand that the war is not over. [illegible] I do not mean [illegible] who [illegible] the Confederacy [illegible] hands of the [illegible], has worn [illegible] under the [illegible] the influence of "my party." The hard ships are forgotten, and the whole mass of the Southern population is in a state of [illegible]. This seems incomprehensible to you, for the reason that the street [illegible] appearances, but it is true. The [illegible] not considerable [illegible] gone [illegible] whom they consider to be [illegible] the laws of the United States, have, as in [illegible] drawn over their leaders, and now [illegible] talk of the next war as if it were [illegible], which [illegible] fixed fact. The whole of the Confederate army is in a state of semi-organization. It is one vast secret association, with its passwords and signals. I do not go on the streets without being signaled by every one I meet, and a group crosses every one who does not know and answer the sign and password. It must culminate in war. There is no alternative. All the [illegible] are organized under the title of relief associations. Sheridan, two weeks ago, being satisfied that this was the case, issued an order prohibiting the organization. A delegation was sent to Johnson, and they have succeeded in getting Sheridan removed and Hancock appointed in his place. Sheridan [illegible] and [illegible] proof and investigate the murder and robbery of the 30th ult. The [illegible] Johnson has [illegible] Hancock, [illegible] to stop it and suppress the truth. [illegible] morning Johnson has telegraphed to the Lieutenant General. [illegible] Hancock [illegible] Sheridan [illegible] Johnson [illegible] Hancock [illegible] Sheridan [illegible] Johnson [illegible] Hancock [illegible] Sheridan [illegible] Johnson
