The Fifth Day of the Agricultural Fair —Extra Inducements—The Track in First Rate Order.

Yesterday was a fine day for the Fair, and a great many persons took advantage of it to witness the different articles on exhibition. The Fair continues through this day, and should the weather continue fine, the display may be expected to exceed anything in magnificence that has yet been shown. The race between the shetlands came off, especially those horses will compete to-day as the track is in fine condition. There are many fine additions to the stock on hand.

The Committee of Arrangements met yesterday afternoon and after passing a vote of thanks to the different managers of the press who have extended favors to the Fair, made a special notice of the Gazette and its editor thereof. Gold continues to advance in New York, [illegible] speculators have bought [illegible] on relief of the gold market to the extent of anticipating the November dividend on the five Twenty bonds, making the share payable one month in advance, or say on October 1st instead of November 1st.
