THE COURTS.

United States Court—Judge McCandless.

SATURDAY, Feb. 15.—The attention of the Court was occupied during the session to-day, in hearing and disposing of cases in bankruptcy.

Richard Fitzgerald, a voluntary petitioner, for adjudication in bankruptcy, was granted a final discharge and awarded a certificate to that effect.

Petitions for final discharge were also presented from Lewis Morse, Albert L. Post and George M. Griswold, of Luzerne county. Court ordered the final hearings and the usual publications to be made and notices of meeting mailed.

In the case of Josiah Stevenson vs. L. G. Lanier, an involuntary bankrupt, the Court granted leave to petitioner and creditor to discontinue proceedings on payment of costs.

The exceptions to creditors petition in the case of Gordon, McMillen & Co. vs. Waugh & Saterfield, Involuntary bankrupts, were overruled without prejudice and a jury trial awarded.

In the case of Webster A. Stephens, voluntary petitioner, leave was granted to amend his schedule.

Quarter Sessions—Full Bench.

SATURDAY, Feb. 15.—The following sentences were pronounced:

Andrew Kimling, convicted of selling liquor, was first called. Goulds Trutsch, the prosecutor, alleged that the defendant, who keeps a "shop" in the lower part of the borough of McKeesport, has sold spirituous liquors on the Sabbath, thus violating the act of Assembly. He was sentenced to pay a fine of fifty dollars and the costs, and to undergo fifteen days imprisonment in the county jail.

John Angle, convicted of assault and battery on oath of the same prosecutor, was next called. The parties are brothers-in-law, and the difficulty got up which the suit grew occurred in November last in South Pittsburgh. In passing sentence the Court remarked that although no words would justify an assault and battery the provocation given defendant was great. He was sentenced to pay a fine of twenty five dollars and costs.

W. J. Robinson, who plead guilty to a charge of assault and battery, preferred by Frank Tomer, also a charge of assault and battery preferred by Roger O'Brien, and who was charged with making threats of violence to officer Regan, was next called to the bar. On the first indictment he was sentenced to pay a fine of twenty-five dollars and the costs of prosecution, on the second a fine of ten dollars and costs, and to give all in the sum of three hundred dollars for his good behavior forone year. Robinson is Captain of the Neptune Steam Fire Engine Company.

General F. H. Collier asked the Court to allow bail to be entered for the appearance of Robert Stewart, confined in jail on a charge of embezzlement, preferred by the Adams Express Company of this city. The defendant, prior to his arrest was in the employ of the Company as a driver, and while delivering goods throughout the city it is alleged appropriated about three hundred dollars of the money received in his own use. He was brought into Court and released on $500 bail.

THE ARSON CASE.

The Scahill-Hughes arson case was concluded, to-day. No verdict had been rendered at noon, and the Court adjourned till two o'clock. At that hour the jury still had not agreed, and there was a further adjournment till six o'clock. Upon reassembling it was made known that no verdict had yet been reached, and accordingly it was determined to adjourn till Monday morning, by which time the jury will have come to a unanimous conclusion, as required.

Abandonment of a Young Married Woman by her Husband—Her Case is Carried to a Lady of Position and Respectability who Sends a Letter to a Brother.

We clip the following item of local interest from the columns of the Cincinnati Enquirer:

Within the past few months a young married woman who bears the name of Cora Parsons, came to this city and complained to her brother, from Pittsburgh, thinking to better her condition. Until a short time previous to her departure she had been living with her husband in that city, who, in consequence of the stringency of the times, became so much reduced in circumstances that he not only neglected his wife, but, as she alleges, his conduct grew so brutal and cruel, she resolved to leave him, and did so. When they arrived here, they took rooms in a house on the corner of Fourth and Smith streets, having their meals sent to them, where they remained comfortable until Monday last. Despairing of obtaining any employment, to support herself, the sister grew very despondent and silent when in the presence of her brother, and from her manner, he feared she was concocting some desperate scheme. On Monday last, on going to his rooms a out the dinner hour, he found his suspicions realized; his sister was gone, and from the evidences left behind her was satisfied that she did not mean to return. Since that time he has been searching the city, but could find no trace of her whereabouts until yesterday. Fearing the worst, he paid a visit to the Chief of Police, and communicated to him his suspicions. Chief McGraw immediately put Detectives Simmons and Billings upon the track, who did not look long before they found [illegible] unfortunate woman at a regular [illegible] in Ill-fame, No. 195 Elm street, when it prevailed over by Kate Williams, whose name is some what familiar in the Court calendar. The brother, who had accompanied the officers, pleaded with her, and then remonstrated against remaining in such a place and leading such a despicable life, declaring that he would have the house indicted, but all to no purpose. She replied to him that circumstances with which he was well acquainted had driven her to such a course of life, and she had resolved to pursue it, and if disturbed in that place she would seek some other. Her brother then signaled the officers to take her in custody, and together the party went to the office of the Chief of Police. An attempt was made by the Mayor and the Chief to dissuade her from the life she had chosen, but all their persuasion, in which they pictured the life of a prostitute in all its horrors, together with the tears and entreaties of her brother, could not make her relent; she had chosen the life of a courtesan, and garnate it she would, friends or no friends, brother or no brother, and as there was no charge placed against her she was allowed to go.

Alleged Cheating of a Landlady.

On Wednesday last, Mrs. Catharine McGinn, keeper of a boarding house in Lawrenceville, made an information before Alderman Mitchell charging Thomas Dissmore with false pretences, alleging that the defendant, who was an employe of the Allegheny Valley Railroad Company, owed her a board bill amounting to $18, in payment of which he gave her a due bill, representing at the same time that there was money due him at the office of the Railroad Company. Shortly after the transaction mentioned, the prosecutrix sent one of her boarders, with the due bill, to the railroad office, when it was learned that Dissmore had been paid off and discharged some days ago, and that no money was coming to him. The defendant was arrested and committed for trial in default of bail.

FINANCE AND TRADE

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, SATURDAY, February 15, 1868.

—It is stated in connection with a demand for United States Five Twenties of 1862 on foreign account, in the New York market, that the holders of the series of 1864 are speculating in the market, and this circumstance, together with others, lead to the belief that Mr. Secretary Chilcote is again resorting to the secret issue of government securities through some broker. On this the Post says:

"These secret issues are very unpopular. They are regarded as only a disguised form of credit of the government, imparting at least an element of uncertainty to the market, they involve a cost in commission, besides the Secretary Fulton are quite, and the government is not buying them up through his Sinking Fund."

The report circulated before the publication of the February statement of the public debt, that the Secretary of the Treasury sold during the month of January $15,000,000 of Ten Fifties, is not confirmed by the statement; the increase in the issue of these securities been only $2,800,000.

—The following are the most prominent and interesting items taken from the abstract made by the Comptroller of the Currency, of the reports made by all National Banks in the United States, on the morning of the first Monday (6th) of January, 1868:

LIABILITIES.		ASSETS.
Capital	$419,843,760	Discounts	$864,165,777
Surplus	161,596,156	Securities	470,876,[illegible]
Circulation	297,761,[illegible]	Due fr'm Nat. Banks	61,719,[illegible]
Deposits	565,843,[illegible]	Cash items	109,354,[illegible]
Due to Nat. Banks	120,022,[illegible]	Specie	19,[illegible]
		Legal tenders	114,144,[illegible]
		Comp'd and current	45,214,[illegible]

As shown by the abstract of quarterly reports for January, made by the Comptroller of the Currency, the lawful money reserve in our national banks required under section 31 and 32 of the National Currency Act amounting to 31 per cent. of the aggregate amount required for redemption claims in 20 cent. and of redemption claims in present, and the reserve held in the aggregate over 37,000,000 more than is required.

—Says the Philadelphia Ledger: The money market continues very easy. Borrowers find difficulty in obtaining needed supplies, by temporary loans on stock collaterals at 5 p. c. per annum, and there are comparatively few additional Government securities large sums are offered at a fraction of a per cent., and at somewhat lower figures. The best commercial paper, short date is taken at 6@7 per cent. per annum discount.

—Says the Chicago Tribune: Business in financial circles shows no improvement, either rapidly or otherwise. The demand for money is not by any means pressing, and the general market remains unchanged. There is a closer feeling in street circles, owing to the remittances to the interior. Country interest shows a decrease as compared with a few days ago, but city deposits are within the same. There is no change in the rates of interest both at bank and in the open market, are unchanged.

PITTSBURGH PETROLEUM EXCHANGE.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, SATURDAY, February 15, 1868.
