DEMOCRACY.

Do you want to see the greenbacks as plenty as the leaves
That strew the ground in Autumn beneath the forest trees;
And make your dollar equal to the smallest nickel coin?
Then heave ahead, my beauties, and with Cops. and rebels join,
And raise the Democratic shout for Seymour and Blair.

Do you think that Thomas Jefferson, that ancient Democrat,
Who wrote the Declaration, was an ignorant old fat?
Because he published to the world that high falutin strain
"Bout equal rights to all mankind, and showed an addled brain?
If so, then vote for Seymour and his adjutant Frank Blair.

Do you wish to see the rebels whom we thrashed in sixty-five,
Arrayed again for battle and as wickedly alive
To drive their blows at Liberty and fire upon her flag,
And cut the throats of loyal men "and flaunt their rebel rag?"
If that's your wish, then cast your votes for Seymour and for Blair.

Let all repudiators and all rebels fall in rank,
And give their very loudest shout for Sevmour and for Frank,
For all their ammunition will be needed in the fight,
When they meet with Grant and Colfax, and loyalty and right—
In the storm November's brewing for Seymour and for Blair.

EPHEMERIS.

—Kellogg has come home.

—Gignoux is painting Niagara again.

—Hartz, the illusionist, is at St. Paul.

—Steam canal boats run on the Erie canal.

—An artist in tatooing hangs out in New York.

—Solon Shingle Owens is going to the Occident.

—Several European railways are running to Greece.

—Wagner sneers contemptuously at Gounod's music.

—Blind Tom likes Long Branch, where he is now staying.

—Eight hundred Americans are now residing in Dresden.

—Ku-Klux-Klans now call themselves Seymour Knights.

—St. Lawrence O'Toole is the name of a church in St. Louis.

—Farmers in Montana are trying to domesticate the Buffalo.

—The Springfield Republican protests against the netting of trout.

—The renowned French gymnast, Leotard, is coming to America this year.

—An exchange says that Seymour stands a fair chance of carrying the Dry Tortugas.

—A gentleman in Troy, New York, has his sixth wife, all the first lot have died off.

—Kelley and Leon's Minstrels are the only public amusement now in Washington.

—Some one has offered Maggie Mitchell $10,000 if she will never again play Fanchon.

—Basket carriages, drawn by ponies and driven by ladies, are very modish now at Newport.

—A man in Muskego, Wis., drank some fly-poison recently and died three hours afterwards.

—Thurlow Weed, who is in London, is somewhat better and is able to sit up a little every day.

—Husbands in Newark murder their wives if dinner is too late. At least one did last week.

—Houston claims to have produced the first bale of '68 cotton. (This Houston is the Texas one.

—The King of Siam has had thirty-five wives; also twenty-nine sons and thirty-three daughters.

—Sir John MacDonald, the Canadian premier, is in Halifax looking after the revolutionists there.

—There are 861 boys at Eton, and 761 of them study French. Two years ago but 70 studied that language.

—Chignons and false teeth are quite frequently washed upon the beach at Long Branch, but nobody ever claims them.

—A complete letter writer—Seymour.—Boston Post. If he isn't, complete now, he will be thoroughly finished up in November.

—The Prince de Joinville had £5,000 stolen from him at Wiesbaden the other day by a political spy who was looking for papers.

—The Prussian ambulances are hereafter to have female attendants, and quite a number of women are now in training for that service.

—There is a man in a lunatic asylum in England who believes that the British Government wishes to build an iron foundry in his stomach.

—Gen. Lee wants to come north but does not know how he will be received. Unluckily he will be sure not to get the reception he deserves.

—The man who crossed the Atlantic, or says he did, in the yacht Red, White and Blue, is in London, without money enough to bring him home.

—Travelers say Toledo is the filthiest city on this continent. What has the author of the "Great City" pamphlet to say to that, we wonder?

—Dr. Tyng has a son who is a lawyer, but he is so fascinated by the easy notoriety which his brother has won, that he is about to abandon the bar and take orders.

—A physician of good repute and practice says that carbolic acid will cure consumption, if the patient will habitually breathe an atmosphere impregnated by it.

—Jarrett & Palmer have brought out the White Fawn at the Chesnut street Theatre in Philadelphia, with Bonfanti, Wesmael, Schlke, Schlaeger and others in the ballet.

—The lightning struck a lager beer brewery at Kewaune, Wis., last Friday night, bursting the large beer tanks and setting free some three hundred barrels of the beverage.

—Inspiration, Creation, Melioration and Salvation are the names of articles in the August number of Wynkoop's new magazine, "Good News." We looked for Damnation but in vain.

—We notice in the market, says the Alta California of July 13th, purple figs from Stockton which weigh a quarter of a pound avordupois each, and are nearly as large as man's fist, the fig being the lightest fruit in proportion to its size that is grown in the State.

—A man who objected to the broken and disconnected notes of the mosquito, bought a net and says he is now satisfied as they all get inside and keep up a steady hum, which is pleasanter.

—The would-be funny "Fat Contributor" has found a man in Cincinnati who is so wicked that he can discount the New York wicked man, give him twenty-five points and then beat him.

—Gen. Grant moved his family, trunks and all, to his farm out of St. Louis, and is reported to have said that he has moved an army and a family, and, of the two, it is easier to move the army.

—Baxter's prophecies are coming true. This is the year in which he said the Jews were to go back to Jerusalem, and several hundred families are actually going from Wurtemburg and Bavaria.

—The heir to the vice-regal throne of Egypt is to marry the houri-like niece of the Sultan. His harem is pretty well stocked already, considering his age, but he wants a vice-regina for it.

—The Queen of England and the Crown Princess of Prussia have had a row, and as the Queen threatens to disinherit her daughter, the Princess Alice encourages her, in hopes of coming in for the eldest sister's share.

—There are said to be 225,000 threshing machines in this country, and that they save five per cent. more of the grain than did the flail. This would make a total yearly salvage for this country alone of 19,000,000 of bushels worth $30,000,000.

—The tenants in New York are co-operating against landlords, and yet, in spite of what tenants may think, landlords are men and sometimes have souls. In fact, as soon as a tenant owns a couple of horses he begins to look through the landlord's spectacles.

—The latest Yankee dodge is that of a Connecticut editor who published an account of his own death by having fallen under the cars whilst on a visit to New York City. The object of this was to find out the whereabouts of his wife who had deserted him.

—There is some talk of establishing a new weekly paper in New York, that shall be humorous and suited to the better class of readers. We have long stood in need of a paper similar to what Punch was in it's palmy days, but devoted to American interests principally.

—An American student at Heidelberg rather astonished the German youth there by accepting a challenge and choosing pistols. Their ridiculous sword fights were too small play for him. He shot his antagnist dead, and since then Americans are allowed to study in peace.

—Chicago has retired from the lists in despair and Cincinnati stands confessed, the champion city for suicides. Three a day is the average with an extra or two for Sundays, to say nothing of the Wade woman who can't feel comfortable after she has had her dinner until she has made her attempt to commit suicide.

—Last year the Republican nominees in Philadelphia had not the confidenee of the people and failed to be elected. This year the Republican nominees in Philadelphia have, as they well deserve, the unbounded respect of all parties, and will, in all human probability, be triumphantly elected.

—The first sewing machine was invented by a German citizen of Vienna, in 1815. There is still extant a cotemporaneous description of its wonders, but Madersperger, the inventor, was not the sort of man calculated to successfully introduce it, and despite the importance of the invention the public mind was too much occupied by the Napoleonic wars to allow any impression to be made upon it without much pushing. The next machine we hear of was invented some five or six years before the Howe, by Mr. Corliss, of engine fame. This machine was in constant use in his family, and he fully intended to have it patented but was so busied with his new engine that he neglected it until it was too late.

MANUFACTURING ITEMS.

—A locomotive steam elevator is being made in New Haven.

—In Auburn, N. Y., there is a large manufactory of carpet-looms.

—The Archimedean axle works at Auburn, N. Y., manufacture 35,000 sets of axles yearly.

—Over fifty freedmen have arrived, from the South, at the slate quarry at Brown ville, Me., where constant employment is provided for them.

—One factory in Lowell uses up 1,200,000 feet of lumber yearly, and keeps 25 hands constantly employed at working in wood; 8 of these hands do nothing but box making.

—Topsfield, Mass., is rivalling Lynn in the shoe business. One new manufactory there is five stories high, and another large one has recently had a long two-storied wing added to it.

—The Union Plow Works, at Peoria, Ill., is one of the largest establishments of the kind in the country, and turns out a large number of excellent implements which find a ready western market.

—Among other useful articles, the Auburn tool company turns out 150 pairs of skates per day, although in this season of the year one needs a good deal of imagination to think of skates at all. There are 75 hands employed during the summer by this company.

—There are two different patent "Mowing" repears and mowers; they are both excellent and were invented by two cousins; these are both manufactured at Rockland, Illinois, where they have very large and substantial works which turn out from three to four thousand of each machine yearly.

—Mrs. Hannah Yenton, of Oxford, aged 82 years, during the past year spun 378 skeins of linen and tow; wove 300 yards of cloth; also a piece of full cloth containing 10½ yards, which weighed when done but five pounds and two ounces, out of which she helped make an overcoat; besides sewing, knitting, butter-making and housework.
