SOME five or six small boys were arrested by Officer Davis on Friday last on a charge of disorderly conduct. It appears that while the sermon was being preached over the remains of Mrs. Kuester, the boys kept running in and out of the vestibule of the church to the great annoyance of all persons present. Burgess Weldey dismissed them with a severe repremand.

A BEDFORD County man on the Broad Top Railroad was a good deal surprised a few days ago to hear the conductor call out "Hopewell!" After a momentary hesitation he answered; "Yes, I thank you, with the exception of a slight touch of rheumatism."

Turning to an amused neighbor he asked, "who is that fellow, with the blue cap that was asking after my wife."

THE new cars for the Somerset & Mineral Point Railroad Company arrived on Saturday. The passenger coach is fitted up in handsome style. It is 50 feet in length. The entire rolling stock of the road consists of a locomotive, one passenger coach, one baggage and express car, one box car and two gondolas.

THE great ice gorge in the Allegheny river near Kittanning moved off yesterday afternoon, and the frozen crystals floated serenely along past Pittsburgh about eight o'clock last night. Fortunately there was very little damage done by the floating away of this immense field of ice, and residents along the shores of the river breathe freer now that the threatened danger is passed. The ice in the river at Leechburg carried away a three-span bridge, but we have not heard of any further losses having been sustained.

THE Warren Chronicle says: This community claims the "meanest man," without doubt. He engaged a little urchin, fare-footed and half-starved, to carry up coal and water for him, and paid him in cancelled stamps taken from a match box. The half-starved toiler at odd jobs only discovered the fraud when he presented the stamps at a baker's counter for bread. He was mighty "cute" that time, but he can't do it again, the boys have "spotted" him, and he is learning by sweet experience how many buckets of coal one has to carry up two flights of stairs to make his back ache.

A BILL in regard to specie payment has been introduced in the Massachusetts Legislature similar to that which has just been enacted by the Legislature of New York. It recognizes and carries out the action of Congress, fixing January 1st, 1876, as the period at which specie payments shall be resumed, by providing that all taxes levied in the State after that date shall be collected in United States coin or notes redeemable in gold, and that every contract made or implied and payable after that date in dollars, not of a specified kind, shall be payable in United States coin of the standard fixed at the time the contract is made.

"WE SECOND THE MOTION."—Col. E. D. Yutzy, a member of the State Senate, and at one time a citizen of Beaver, has introduced in the Pennsylvania Legislature, an act to provide for the taxation and protection of dogs. This bill provides for a tax on dogs of $1 for a single animal and a double amount for every additional dog. The tax to be devoted to school purposes. The act shall not be extended until approved by a majority of the lawful voters at any spring election of township, borough or [illegible], and [illegible] the taxables request it. We hope the bill will pass, so we will have an opportunity of voting dog ordinances whenever the spirit moves [illegible].—Beaver Radical.

CONTEMPTIBLE.—Some graceless scoundrel, who would rob his grandmother's coal bin, pick the pocket of a dying parent, has twice stolen the contents of the infant Class Missionary fund of the M. E. Sabbath School. The little folks were saving up their pennies and giving them to this cause, and under certain circumstances were to become possessed of a banner, which prompted and caused them to give their little mite with all cheerfulness. There aren't any words that would properly express the contempt felt for this petty sneak thief, and only add, in conclusion, that it would give us joy unspeakable to give a first class account of his incarceration in the Western Penitentiary. Pupils in the same school have been guilty of placing sharp tacks upon the seats and fastening them down with putty. A sharp lookout is kept and prompt punishment will be meted out to the perpetrator if caught.—Valley Independent.

WE clip these two items from Frank Cowan's Paper:

The Edgesprings Fishing Club of Pittsburgh have purchased ten thousand trout eggs and deposited them in their hatching-house at their trout farm in the Laurel Mountains near Jones' Mills, Westmoreland County.

To what extent an ice gorge in a river destroys fish is a matter of curious and important enquiry. In mountain streams it must be very considerable, filling the bed of the stream, and grinding up everything that may be caught in its [illegible] or [illegible]. On the breaking up of the ice in the Conemaugh and Stony Creek, at their point of confluence at Johnstown, a great number of fish from four to fifteen inches in length were obtained a few days ago. At one time some thirty or forty persons found it profitable fishing in the ice and slush at this particular place.

John Stevenson's Sons, Jewelers.

One of the best known, as well as the oldest and largest Jewelry establishments west of New York, is to be found at 93 Market Street, Pittsburgh. This firm is to Pittsburgh what Ball & Black and Tiffany & Co., are to New York—its leading Jewelers. Their store-room is a palace in its beauty of architecture and its glittering display of goods. Not one article in their vast collection of Fine Jewelry, Watches, Silver ware and Fancy Goods, but has been bought within the present year. You will find every member of this firm, as well as their assistants, courteous, gentlemanly and accommodating. See their card of invitation in another column, and do not fail to call and see them when in the city.

AN amusing incident that came very near terminating in a serious accident, occurred at the sale of John Sipe, in [illegible] township, one day of last week. The stables being all filled, a number of horses, among them Mr. Daniel Specht's, were tied in the barn floor. Some of the horses becoming noisy Mr. Specht ran in to quiet them, but [illegible] had he set his feet inside of the door when one of the horses kicked him, as though he had been a foot ball, through the door and fairly ten feet beyond, among the crowd of bystanders. The cry was immediately raised, "He is killed!" "He is dying!" Some one called "water," "water," but before the water came, he proceeded Mr. S. had recovered from the shock, mounted his horse and started for home at a rate that would allow no grass to grow under his horse's feet and, with an occasional epithet that told very plainly that his mind was not in a very pleasant mood.

LOUIS WEITZELL, who has figured in several articles which have appeared in the HERALD within the past few weeks, was taken from our jail on Friday, by two men named respectively J. T. McMullin and [illegible]. They were armed with a requisition from the Governor of West Virginia, and took the prisoner to Franklin, Pendleton County, that State, there to await his trial on the charge of horse stealing.

Weitzell acknowledges that he had the horse, but claims to have purchased it from a man whom he will produce at the trial. The horse was brought into this county and sold to a Mr. Mitchell, of Addison township, in whose possession the saddle and bridle were found. Mr. Mitchell disclaimed any intent to defraud and gave Rev. Snapp, the gentleman from whom the horse was stolen, another horse and his note for the difference in the value of the horses. He was so fortunate as to get back the horse, and returned it to Rev. Snapp. The loss, if any there be, falls on Mr. Mitchell.

THE attention of buyers in this section is invited to the advertisement of the extensive Wholesale Dry Goods establishment of Messrs. Arbuthnot, Shannon & Co., 239 and 241 Liberty Street, Pittsburgh, which will be found in another column. This is the largest house of the kind in the city, and their spacious and elegant store-rooms, fitted exclusively for their accommodation, are well lighted and especially adopted for the display of the great variety of goods offered by them. Importing their foreign merchandise direct, and purchasing American goods from manufacturers and first hands exclusively for cash, this firm is enabled to offer extraordinary inducements to the trade. Every new style and design of dress goods is received and offered by them simultaneously with their appearance in the New York and Eastern markets. Their Spring stock which is now full and complete in every department, is augmented daily by fresh arrivals of new goods, thus keeping their assortment perfect at all times. Our merchants should not fail to visit them before making their Spring purchases.

Now that the local option law has been repealed all parties appear to be satisfied. The majority of the temperance men admit that it did not have the beneficial effects that it was expected to have, or such as a good license law would have had, and that such a one as has now been passed by the Legislature, which we publish elsewhere in to-day's paper, is a much better preventative of intoxication.

Not only did the local option law fail to decrease the sales of spirituous liquors, but it had a tendency to corrupt many. Parties who wished to procure liquor even for medicinal and mechanical purposes were often compelled to obtain it in a surreptitious manner, as though they were committing a crime. It may be argued that the law allowed liquor to be sold for such purposes. Granted; but it should be remembered that every place was not supplied with a drug store, (the only places that were authorized to sell it under the local option law,) and that parties buying were thus compelled to resort to these sly, dodging means in order to protect the seller. Again, parties selling, who, from honest conviction, thought that the State government had no more right to interfere in this than in any other branch of merchandising, were led to violate the law, seeing how easy it was to violate that one, are more apt to violate others. It surpasseth the understanding of man to see the equity of allowing a man to manufacture any article and then not permit him to dispose of it.

The new license law, which closely resembles the one in force before the passage of the local option act, though a little dark in some particulars is evidently a good law, and one that will satisfy both the temperance and the liquor elements.

MILFORD Pa., March 22.

MR. EDITOR:

It is not often that any one from old Milford township intrudes on your columns with anything in the shape of items, but when we are treated with such wonderful entertainments in the shape of school exhibitions as that given at Humbertsville on the 19th inst., we cannot forbear to let the rest of mankind know it.

As the exhibition had been announced some four weeks previously we were naturally anxious to get on the ground in good time, expecting every nook and corner of the small house to be filled long before the time for opening the exercises. On our arrival, however, we found that every precaution had been taken and that the house was about three quarters full, and as we were about the last to arrive there was plenty of room. Upon entering, the first thing that attracted our attention was the orchestra, which discoursed soul-stirring music from an old accordeon and the bones.

The exercises were opened by a song from the school, followed by a number of essays, declamations and dialogues. The pieces recited by the small scholars were well committed and finely delivered. Those spoken by the large scholars were all good fifty years ago. Among them were, "The Boy Stood on the Burning Deck," "The Bachelor's Lament," "Mrs. Caudle's Lecture," "Widow Bedott's Poetry," &c. The essays were borrowed for the occasion, and, like all borrowed articles did not fit well. We were also treated to some splendid reading, such as, "Betsy and I Are Out," read by a married man.

The entertainment throughout was a credit to the school and a benefit, no doubt, to all present. We think that exhibitions at the close of the schools are highly beneficial to the children and should be encouraged by the citizens. Good order was maintained by the audience during the exercises.

Yours,
BACK WOODS.

Ursina Items.

THE bridge on the Casselman river at Harnedsville was swept away by a heavy ice gorge on Saturday night the 13th inst.

The County Commissioners are invited to give the building of a new bridge their earliest attention. For specifications we refer them to the new bridge at Ursina.

A YOUNG gent came to grief a few days since by getting a fish bone in his throat. Fortunately he call upon Dr. Jenkins, who relieved him of said fish bone with a pair of tweezers. Happy man was he.

WM. L. HOBLITZELL has bought the farm of the late Israel Rhoads.

SENATOR YUTZY returned home from Harrisburg on the 19th.

URSINA came near losing that new bridge, of Judas fame, when the ice broke up.

THE ice tore up the sidewalk near the Sycamore House.

A married woman may bring such action in her own name notwithstanding her coverture and all damages recovered by her shall go to her separate use. A CORRESPONDENT of the Beaver Argus very sensibly says:

"Only those who have given some attention to phonography can fully appreciate the time and labor that might be saved in some improved system of orthography, which somewhere in the future will be sure to supersede our present mode. Phonography has forty three letters and each letter has its true sound. But in the present plan, three or four letters are given twenty or thirty sounds. I think, however, the Boston Chronotype must be mistaken in its somewhat humorous summing up of the subject, in estimating that the word 'scissors' can be spelled in a million different ways. It says: Now, in obedience to the beautiful analogies of English orthography, a child may write the name of a domestic edge-tool, 'sissors,' 'sizars,' 'slsyrs,' 'sizers,' 'sizars,' 'sizars,' 'sizors,' and so on more than a million different ways by arithmetical calculation, before he comes to the scholastic, correct orthographic mode of spelling 'scissors.'"

In conclusion, the editor says: "A better system ought to be invented by some of our learned men, and 'taut,' 'tawght,' 'tought,' or 'taught,' which everybody ought to be glad to 'learn' 'lurn,' 'lira,' 'lern,' 'lyrn,' or 'learn.'"

MR. EDITOR.—Dear Sir: If you will publish the following you will confer a great favor on a constant reader of your valuable paper.

A young man asked a young lady how old she was. She said 6 times 7 and 7 times added to my age will exceed 6 times 9 and 4 as much as double my age does 20. How old was she?

The above to be done by the rules of common arithmetic, and a solution sent in full to the HERALD or to John Montague, 1400 Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington, D. C.

An answer from A. W. Snyder, Barton, Md., preferred.
