PITTSBURGH: THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 27.

HIGHLY IMPORTANT NEWS.

WASHINGTON, June 24, 1861.

The Hopelessness of the Rebel Cause—Imposing Strength of Scott's Positions.

When Gen. Scott shall have completed his preparations and dispositions, there will be such a tremendous preponderance on the side of the Federal forces at every point that it would seem not unlikely that the rebellion will be crushed out without any serious sacrifice of life. There is no doubt of the desperation of the rebels, and of their determination to prolong the contest, in the hope that the North will become wearied, or be deluded into some plan of compromise. But we can and should, by a vigorous use of the enormous resources which a patriotic and united people has placed at the command of our Government, crush the rebellion by the mere weight of our columns. The forces now concentrating upon Manassas Junction and Norfolk would seem to leave them no choice but to re-enact the game of Harper's Ferry at both these points, and finally at Richmond, which city, according to the most reliable accounts, is without any considerable defenses, and can offer no serious opposition to the advance of a well appointed army of 150,000 men.

It is not unreasonable to anticipate that by the 1st of November next the Federal forces will be in occupation of every considerable port and every point of strategic importance in the Rebel States. Not a bale of cotton, not a tierce of rice, nor a hogshead of tobacco will be able to leave a Southern port, nor a box of goods, or supplies of any kind to reach those States, except through the legal constituted channels of commerce, receiving clearances from Federal collectors, or paying duties into the Federal Treasury.

The True Deliverance of the South.

The cry now raised by the Rebel leaders that the North desires to subjugate the South will be shown to the people of these States to be false; for our troops will carry as their advance deliverance from the reign of terror now prevailing; will re-open trade, and set free the imprisoned forces of production and exchange. The whole superstruction of Rebellion rests upon lies and misrepresentations, and the whole misinformed Southern mind is frenzied with apprehensions growing out of these. No hollow truce or patched-up compromise will be a remedy. The popular Southern mind has become imbued with a profound contempt and hatred of Northern men, which can never be removed, and the people of the two sections made to live together with mutual respect, until they have been brought face to face. We cannot reach them through the press, and can only do it by actual presence in the way now proposed.

The people of the South have been led to expect in northern soldiers a horde of seedy adventurers, greedy of gain and the gratification of brutal lusts. Let us show them half a million of citizens in arms for liberty and order. They have been taught to believe that subjugation and ruin were the aims of the North; but instead, renewed internal prosperity, social order, and the supremacy of the laws will attend the advance of our victorious columns. The just and equitable determination and disposition of our Government was well expressed by Secretary Chase, a few days since, in a letter to citizens of Paducah, Ky., who had requested that certain restrictions upon trade might be removed, in these words: "It is the earnest wish of this Department that every part of the country may enjoy in the most ample degree the benefit of the laws, faithfully upheld and sowedly administered for the protection of every right and interest."

A Significant Appointment.—A United States Collector for New Orleans.

Wm. D. Gallagher, of Kentucky, lately Confidential Clerk of the Secretary of the Treasury, has been appointed Collector of the Port of New Orleans, and leaves Washington for Cairo to-morrow. He will accompany our troops in its progress down the Mississippi, and there can be no doubt that his appointment and departure for this point indicates an advance at the earliest practicable moment upon Memphis. He does not expect to reach the New Orleans Custom House for some weeks, but will move southwardly with the flag, restoring the commercial relations of the Union, and sealing up all ports of the regular service, where such licentiate decds. It may not be generally known that the Collection District of New Orleans embraces the valleys of the Mississippi and the Ohio, including their tributaries, and reaching as far east as Pittsburgh. The so-called Collectors at Louisville and other towns within the District are only Surveyors' Agents of the New Orleans Collector. This important office has been worthily bestowed. It would be difficult to find a more upright, uncompromising, energetic and capable man than Gallagher. The position in which he has stood to Mr. Chase is of itself a guaranty of his character. The Union men of the South cannot object to a Kentuckian Collector, and those of Kentucky will recognize in him a man who has served them faithfully here. He will be a loss to them in their intercourse with the Administration, and to all others whose daily business has brought them into connection with a courteous gentleman and a valuable and discreet man of business. Pending the assumption of his duties at New Orleans he will, under special instructions from Secretary Chase, take care that the prohibition of supplies, except in coincidence with the restoration of the Federal jurisdiction, is made effectual. This action of the Administration is of great importance as showing the determination speedily to enforce the laws in every portion of the Union. While the Rebel army in Virginia, comprising almost the entire Confederate force which can be massed within a reasonable time for operations in the field, are menaced by the advance of the columns under Generals McClellan and Patterson, by a rapidly augmenting force about the Capital, and by the command of Gen. Butler, which in the course of next week will be strong enough for operating against Norfolk, and to cooperate from thence against Richmond, it is not within the bounds of possibility that any formidable resistance can be opposed to the march of the liberating army upon New Orleans.

Fugitives from the South.

A mechanic named McDowell, a native of Worcester, Massachusetts, has just reached here, from Richmond, after a series of most varied adventures. He was at work in Mississippi, and fearing he should be impressed into the rebel service he escaped and traveled as far north as Richmond, where he was arrested and compelled to take up arms. In a short time he effected his escape, and reached Fredericksburg, where he was impressed again, but again escaped and proceeded to Acquia Creek. At that point the rebels seized him and forced him to work behind their batteries. But he was not discouraged even then. He stripped himself in an unobserved moment and rushed into the River, swimming for the Pawnee, which lay three miles above. He was discovered by the rebels and fired on, several shots passing close to him. But, diving under water, they could not hit him. At ebb tide carried him below Acquia Creek, where he landed on the Maryland shore after swimming eight miles. He went to sleep, intending to go up with the return tide, but overslept himself, and had to walk up to the place where the Pawnee was lying, where he again plunged into the water, and succeeded in reaching the vessel. He was taken aboard and dressed in a sailor's rig. Mr. McDowell states that there are three thousand men at Acquia Creek, and that in the late engagement at least fifty were killed.

The capsize of a wood boat on the Potomac has just reached here from Westmoreland county, Va., where has been a prisoner. He rowed up the river sixty miles in an ordinary dug-out canoe. He says there is a great scarcity of provisions in Virginia. Coffee was selling at fifty cents a pound, and ammunition commanded fabulous prices.

Home Guard of that county had but twenty-five pounds of powder and one hundred of lead. He is of opinion that the battery now being erected at Matthias Point will be very formidable, and will effectually stop the navigation of the Potomac, unless it be demolished. Both these gentlemen confirm the reports that fears are entertained of an uprising of slaves in Virginia.

No Supplies for the Rebels.

Secretary Chase is continually applied to for permission for "coal-oil," "drugs," "bacon," and commodities of one sort or another, to pass into the unrecognized States. A uniform course is pursued in response to all such applications. The Secretary's letter to citizens of Paducah, Ky., stated the unvarying policy of the Department toward those States. "Let commerce follow the flag," was his terse reply to citizens of that town who complained of restriction upon their trade. During the session of the Legislature, the citizens of Paducah petitioned for the fortification of the town; the Senator from that district suggested that petition, and bodies of men drilled there with the avowed intention of joining the conspirators. If the citizens of Paducah felt aggrieved by the action of the Government in cutting off trade, let them, by opposite manifestations, demonstrate their "loyalty to the Union and to the flag of our fathers," and they should at once come into the enjoyment of all the privileges of loyal citizens. The only distinction known to the Department is that between loyal and disloyal citizens.

The New Governor for Kentucky.

Gen. McClellan's treaty of alliance and immunity with Magoffin will, it is said on good authority, be promptly repudiated by the President, as it is an administrative and not a military measure. We have no doubt the statement is correct.

A Regiment of Democrats.

F. A. Aiken, esq., of this District, formerly of Vermont, the Secretary of the National Democratic Party, has proposed to the War Department to raise a regiment forthwith of Northern Democrats, for active service during the war, and to ratify their appreciation of Mr. Lincoln's efforts to maintain the Government intact.

Foreign Relations.

The news of the embarkment of British troops to Canada has occasioned much speculation here, and no little comment. It is understood, however, that this Government is more satisfied than ever of the favorable course of foreign powers.

There has been much talk here concerning the probable action of our Government in the case of Lord Lyons. The prevailing idea is that a decided affront, expressed his sympathy with the rebels that many consider it the duty of our President to dismiss him at once. The friendly relations formerly existing between him and Mr. Seward are quite clouded and he will be made to feel that he has said and done a very foolish thing.

The Extra Session of Congress.

Many members of Congress have arrived in Washington. A full quorum of both Houses, it is expected, will be present on Monday next.

The friends of Frank Blair are warmly presenting his name as a candidate for the Speakership. His location, his antecedents, his firm, consistent course, and his late brilliant military achievements, all combine to make him a popular candidate, at a time when the country needs energy and promptness, and above all determination, in the policy which the President has inaugurated.

There is little or no foundation, says the Times' correspondent, for the statement that Secretary Chase will recommend modifications of the Morrill Tariff. He will not probably recommend anything more than such amendments as are necessary to make the present law practicable, and some additional duties, especially upon tea and coffee.

An Important Capture.

This morning, the New York Fourteenth Regiment captured a spy who had in his possession the situation of every camp here, the number of troops on both sides of the river, a plan of the entrenchments, the number of guns mounted, and much other valuable information which was intended to be conveyed to the rebel headquarters. The regiment are very vigilant in looking after suspicious persons.

Reported Death of A. H. Stephens.

A report reached Washington to-night that Alexander H. Stephens, the Vice President of the Confederate States so called, is dead. The information came through rebel sources, and hence cannot be traced beyond this point. I believe it is well known that he has been very sick.

Cadets and Lieutenants.

The graduating class at West Point, whose term expires to-morrow, numbers forty-five, and they will be promptly divided out among the various regiments of the regular service, where such lieutenants are greatly needed.

Ready for Congress.

The capitol is now ready for occupation. The superintendent informs me that it was never in cleaner or better condition than now. The injury done by the soldiers occupying it will not cost $150. Senators and members are arriving quite freely, and the city wears the aspect usual to the eve of the opening of Congress.

Another Reported Conspiracy to Compromise.

After the dispatch from the Washington correspondent of the New York World, which, a few days ago, we gave for what it was worth to our readers, it was to be expected that we should soon have more of the same staple; and sure enough, no reasonable amount of expectation is likely to be disappointed. As the session of Congress approaches, and perhaps until the traitors of all stripes of growth, (from the secessionist, with a full mouth of both eye-teeth and grinders, down to the sympathetic suckling, that can but gnash his gums
