Fighting for Dominion.

In some comments upon the skirmish at Bull Run, the Mobile News states clearly the real motive and purpose of the rebellion at the South... It says, "We know of no circumstance which prevents this contest "from being regarded as a fair test of the "two people who are struggling for dominion."

That is it. The struggle on the part of the Rebels is not for mere national existence, or for the maintenance of what they have heretofore been pleased to call their "rights;" it is a struggle for dominion—for dominion, not merely over the South, but over the entire country. It is not for independence, nor for the right to secede; but for the right to rule absolutely. If their independence were acknowledged to-day, in as short a time as they could recover from the effects of the war and collect the means for another fight, they would begin the war anew for our subjugation. They are, as the Mobile paper truly tells us, "struggling for dominion."

With us, therefore, this is a struggle of life or death. Either we must subdue them or they will subdue us. If we expect to maintain our national existence we must conquer these rebels against Constitutional authority. There is no middle course. To talk of peace, now, is simply to talk of our own subjugation. The acknowledgment of the Southern Confederacy would be followed speedily by the abolition of our own. If the majority of this Nation, with a million of soldiers at its back and a million of millions of dollars in its purse, cannot conquer the impoverished minority, with a comparatively handful of soldiers, it cannot successfully maintain a separate national existence on the same continent with the victorious minority. The insolent victors would soon crush out the nation not strong enough to conquer them, and hold its territory as subjugated provinces.

It is idle, therefore, to talk of "peace." It is a struggle between the minority and the majority for dominion. The minority, after having ruled the Government so long, has, after being beaten at the polls, appealed to the sword—not for "rights," not for independence, not for a separate national existence, but for the "dominion" they have lost. To yield to them, now—to entertain, for a moment, any overtures of peace, without their full surrender—would be to confess to the world that we, with greater numbers and immensely greater resources, cannot resist the domination of the South; that it is for them to dominate and for us to submit. It is too late to think of such a policy, now. The rebels have appealed to the sword, and let the sword determine it. The North is not yet prepared to listen to such a word as "peace," and with such an avowal of the purposes of the Rebels before it, will not be, until "peace" comes of itself by their voluntary submission.

The Refuge of Lies.

Like the Cretans, the Southern Rebels are always liars. They are incapable of giving a true account of any thing. Throughout this war they have turned every defeat into a victory, and their one nominal victory they have magnified by their mendacity into the greatest triumph on record. Every day witnesses the manufacture of some new falsehood; and each Southern journal seems to vie with its fellows in strife to outdo all others in its lying career.

And this, it must be remembered, is the only newspaper information the people of the South get. They are not permitted to see Northern papers and they never learn the truth. They have been given up to delusion; and the great mass of them now believe that the Rebel troops have whipped the North in every encounter.

There is, of course, no remedy for them. They must be left to their fate. But we object to having the same dose administered to Northern readers through the agency of the telegraph. We observe, in the telegraphic column of our paper of Thursday, a dispatch from Louisville, giving sundry extracts from Southern papers, as items of news, when in fact every one of the extracts is alive with falsehood. If these extracts were given as instances and evidences of Southern untruth, we would not complain; but we object most decidedly to a parade of such silly extracts as veritable items of news.

The reporter for the associated press at Louisville would do well, therefore, to abandon this business at once. He is employed to collect news, not the unveracious utterances of papers lost to all sense of truth. Editors of northern papers may, for the purpose of amusing their readers, occasionally string together such extracts; but they prefer to make the selections themselves, at least we do, and in such a way as to show how false they are. We enter our protest, therefore, against making the telegraph the vehicle of transmitting the published falsehoods of the Rebel press, to be laid as items of news before the people by the entire northern press.

CAPT. ALEXANDER.—Some concealed traitor in this city has been hit on the quick by our notice of the fact that Capt. Alexander, the hero of the stampede at Bull Run, is married to a niece of Ex-Senator Mason, of Virginia, and he writes to the Cincinnati Commercial, begging it to reply to our notice. The fellow is probably some relation of both Alexander and Mason, and does not like to have his relatives overhauled. He does not, it seems, think it a cause of suspicion to be related to the traitor Mason; we do.

We notice, also, that the N. Y. Tribune comes to Alexander's relief. It says:

"The story of his early retreat must have originated from his having been sent back alone, at about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, to bring up the Engineers who had been employed at a creek some two miles distant from the battle field. But Captain Alexander afterward returned, and at 5 o'clock was busy clearing away the abattis which fringed Bull Run, and constructing a bridge for the passage of ambulances and artillery. At 5½ o'clock this work was finished, but the panic had then begun, and the bridge was never used."

The Tribune has been imposed on. If Capt. Alexander will ask for a Court of Inquiry, (which he has not yet done and, we venture to say, will not do,) he will find himself utterly unable to substantiate this story. Why does he not call for the Court of Inquiry? The charges against him are distinct enough; and these newspaper explanations, no two of them agreeing, do not remove them. Will he be good enough to call for a Court of Inquiry?

"Southern Allies."

The San Francisco Herald, (Oal.,) a journal of the same stripe with Ben Woods' Daily News and the infamous Day Book is as full of treasonable sentiments as an egg is of meat. Its true character, however, is veiled under a flimsy show of superservicable devotion to the "Union and the Constitution." In its issue of July 16th we find the following, which we commend to the notice of our Democratic friends hereabouts. We are glad to feel assured that such utterances will meet the condemnation of good men of all parties in the Atlantic States. Speaking of the present war the Herald says:

"In the Northern Democracy and their Southern allies in this contest, the South have confidence; in the Republican party, none. The Republicans could not make one move for peace that would be at all acceptable to one single Southern State, and would not if they could."

The Herald is edited by one John B. Ridge, and published by G. W. Guthrie. We notice in the paper referred to a whole page U. S. Government advertising, "by authority!" We call the attention of the Departments to John B. Ridge and his "Southern allies."

SOUTHERN BRUTALITY.—The heart sickens at reading such recitals as the following. Are these the men we are to treat with distinguished consideration, and deal with as tenderly as babes? We quote from the N. Y. Tribune:

"Mr. Collins, son of Dr. Collins, a noted Methodist who escaped from the South sometime since, relates the following:

Miss Giernstein, a young woman from Maine, who had been teaching near Memphis became an object of suspicion, and left for Cairo on the cars. One of the firemen overheard her say to some Northern men: 'Thank God, we shall soon be in a land where there is freedom of thought and speech.' The fellow summoned the Vigilance Committee, and the three Northern men were stripped and whipped till their flesh hung in strips. Miss G. was stripped to her waist and thirteen lashes given her bare back.

Mr. Collins says the brave girl permitted no cry or tear to escape her, but bit her lips through and through. With head shaved, scarred, and disfigured, she was at length permitted to resume her journey toward civilization."

NOVEL BALLOON ASCENSION.—A letter from Fortress Monroe says:

"Prof. La Mountain made a novel ascension. He took his balloon on board the steamer Fanny, and when she was about mid-way the Roads ascended about two thousand feet into the air, and attached to the balloon still being held on board. The steamer then started slowly down the river, passing very near Sewell's Point and then across toward Pig's Point and Newport-News. The reconnoissance was complete: La Mountain could look down upon their work at Sewell's Point finely. He reports that behind the line of woods which skirts this side of the Point, the Rebels are working actively upon batteries, and mounting guns which will be made to bear upon the Rip-Raps, upon the shipping, and the Fortress. There are a number of encampments. When the Rebels saw him nearly above them, they concealed themselves as soon as possible in the works, and watched him from behind them or the trees near by. Other information obtained is not made public. The method of the ascension was entirely new, and the reconnoissance decidedly the most satisfactory one which has been made at this post.

"Rebellion" in a Territory.

While the Hon. Jefferson Davis was Secretary of War under President Pierce it will be remembered that the Territory of Kansas was the theatre of grave political controversies, finally degenerating into civil feud. The contest arose among the adherents of two Legislatures respectively assuming to represent the people of that Territory. The body sitting at Lecompton was recognized by the administration of Mr. Pierce as the only legitimate depositaries of the legislative powers capable of being exercised under the organic act constituting the Territory. The body sitting at Topeka was regarded as revolutionary, and, as such, deserving to be dispersed by the Federal authority. Under these circumstances it was that on the 3d of September, 1856, Mr. Secretary Davis wrote as follows to Gen. Persifer F. Smith:

"The position of the insurgents is that of open rebellion against the laws and constitutional authorities, with such manifestations of a purpose to spread devastation over the land as no longer justifies further hesitation of indulgence. Patriotism and humanity alike require THAT REBELLION SHOULD BE PROMPTLY CRUSHED."

On the same day he made a requisition on the Governor of Kentucky for two regiments to be mustered into the service, and to be at the call of Gen. Smith.

Then it was right to put down "rebellion" by arms, and to march militia from other States to aid in enforcing the laws.—[Nat. Intelligencer.

ONE OF FATHER QUINN'S JOKES.—Father Quinn, it is known to some of us, is a wit as well as a priest. While in Washington with the First Regiment, he was invited to visit Fort Corcoran, on the other side of the Potomac, and see the work that had been done by that gallant Irish regiment, the New York Sixty-ninth. He accepted the invitation, and was of course much pleased with the appearance of the fort, which had grown into being, through the hard labor with pick and shovel of these true soldiers. "Why," said he to the gentleman who accompanied him, "they talk of Southern chivalry, but it can't hold a candle to Northern shovelry.—[Providence Post.

SIX HUNDRED KILLED.—The Picayune of July 27th publishes a letter from Manassas dated July 23d, which contains the following important admission:

"From a very accurate report, just placed in my possession, it would appear that our loss in killed on the field was only between five and six hundred. This is a great loss, it is true, for they were the bravest of the army, and from the splendor with which they charged were the targets of the enemy. Our wounded will number between 2,000 and 3,000. Very many of them are only slightly hurt in the hand, foot, arm, &c.

The Democracy of Butler County.

A meeting of the Democracy of Butler county was held at Hamilton on Saturday, and after an exciting session a series of resolutions strongly tinctured with Secession and endorsing the course of C. L. Vallandigham in Congress, were adopted. A very large number of Democrats were indignant and disgusted, and the men nominated for county offices, are alarmed about the platform and talk of resigning, though the nomination of a Democratic convention has always been equivalent to an election in Butler, the Democratic majority ranging from one thousand to fifteen hundred. It was remarked that the men who were most prominent in the Vallandigham faction in the convention, were of the Breckinridge Bolters. The Hamilton Telegraph, the old Democratic organ, denounces the proceedings of the Vallandigham faction with bitterness. The attempt of the political desperadoes to build up the Democratic party at this moment by offering aid and comfort to the enemies of the Government, has resulted in tearing the party to pieces, and reducing it to an ignominious overthrow of the county which has been the most decidedly Democratic of any in the State ever since the days of Jackson.—[Cin. Commercial.

THE QUEEN OF ENGLAND recently gave a concert at Buckingham Palace in honor of her daughter and guest the Princess of Prussia. When all those who had been invited were arrived, the Queen, instead of entering the apartment where they expected her, ordered a carriage, and taking with her one of her daughters, the Princess Helena, went to pass the night in a country house she owns at Richmond, from which she returned next day. Prince Albert did the honors of the concert, to the great surprise of the guests, for whom this singular incident of course furnished a theme of conversation during the evening. Speculations respecting the Queen's sanity are very common in England.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—A deserter from the rebels, an Irishman, came within our lines this morning. He represents that he was impressed into the rebel service. He states that the enemy retain their old position, and that they are very badly provisioned. He also says that they are much disorganized by the late battle, and that large numbers of men, mostly foreigners, are being impressed into the service of the rebels.

DEFEAT OF JAMES B. CLAY.—Few tears, we feel certain, will be shed at the announced defeat of James B. Clay, apostate son of the illustrious "Harry of the West," as member of the State Legislature. Judge Buckner, a Union man, outrun Mr. Clay between five and six hundred votes: David had his Absalom and Henry Clay his James B., who has already met his doom in popular estimation.

Public Notices.

A SOLDIER of the WAR of 1812, FOR ASSOCIATE JUDGE.—LAWRENCE MITCHELL, of Lawrenceville, formerly of the Fifth Ward, Pittsburgh.

Fellow citizens of Allegheny county: Having at the request of many of my friends and fellow citizens presented my name for your suffrages for the office of Associate Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, at the ensuing election, in October, I have determined, in view of the present distracted state of our beloved country, unhappily involved in civil war, to solicit the nomination of no party, believing that the present occasion is one which calls on all good patriots to cast aside all mere party issues as subservient to the vital question of self preservation as a nation. While our brave volunteers, without distinction of party, have broken their first, honest homes, to aid in preserving the Union, it would be discordant with my sense of duty to present my name as a candidate to their parents, brothers and friends who remain at home, in any other manner than as a friend of the Union. In my youth I had the pleasure to serve under the command of Commodore Chauncey, on Lake Ontario; it was also my good fortune to be engaged in the vindication of the honor of our national flag and in repelling British aggression in the battles of Little York and Fort George.

I was also at the surrender of Fort Erie, on Lake Erie, opposite the present city of Buffalo, when about 200 British troops were taken prisoners by the American army under the command of Gens. Brown and Winfield Scott, the present Commander-in-Chief of our Union armies.

I was then, and always have been, anxious that our flag should wave in glory over a free, happy and united people, and am convinced that the best way, to restore the happy state of affairs which made our country the most prosperous one on the face of the globe, and the asylum of the oppressed of every nation, is by ignoring all minor party issues during the present contest, and joining as one man, heart and soul, in sustaining the efforts of the present Administration to re-establish the supremacy of the Constitution and the laws over the whole land. It is my firm determination to do all in my power for the accomplishment of this object, and I therefore respectfully submit my name for your suffrages, subject to the decision of no Convention, except one which may be selected by THE PEOPLE, irrespective of party.

LAWRENCE MITCHELL.
