Pittsburgh Gazette.

PUBLISHED DAILY AND WEEKLY BY
S. RIDDLE & CO.,
FIFTH STREET, ADJO'G SMITHFIELD.

PITTSBURGH:
FRIDAY MORNING, SEPT. 6, 1861.

LATEST FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3, 1861.

The rebels on Munson's Hill are to-day building three minor intrenchments connected with the main fort, but farther north than the fort, so as to command better the road from Ball's Corners to Falls Church.

This morning two handsomely uniformed rebel Generals took observations of Washington and of our works in its vicinity, from the summit of Munson's Hill. They had maps spread before them and used field glasses. Several ladies dressed in black silk accompanied them. One of the officers, wearing a huge ruffled shirt, was supposed to be Gen. Johnston, the other was probably either Gen. Beauregard or Gen. Bonham.

The Navy Department is more active than ever. From the preparations making, it is evident that the affair at Fort Hatteras is to be followed up by other attacks upon the enemy.

Fort Hatteras Safe.

The entrance to Hatteras Inlet being less than two miles wide, our ships will command it with the utmost ease. Neither is it possible for Fort Hatteras to be taken from of by land by any attack a perfectly overwhelming force, which would draw off a large portion of the Virginia rebel army, and leave Manassas and Richmond exposed to our forces.

Will there be a Draft of Militia Men.

It is useless to disguise the fact that there is a strong pressure upon the President and Cabinet by men high in military station to resort immediately to drafting, to fill the ranks of our army to the number required to carry on the war successfully. At the present rate of recruiting to our regular army, the new regiments will not be filled up before January, thus keeping out of active service our best regular officers, at a time when their services are most required. The 23,000 increase of the regular army ought to be in the field before the 1st of October; but how to get the men without a draft is the question. It is feared by many persons here that the stoppage of all news respecting the condition of the army is inflicting the North to a fatal security, and that we are credited with twice the number of troops on the line of the Potomac we really have in camp. If such is the case, let it be known that while we have plenty of men to guard Washington, we want 60,000 more troops to make an effective forward movement. With the complications likely to arise in Kentucky within the coming month, and with what additional aid General Fremont will require, 200,000 more men can find enough to do.

Capture of Twenty-Two Rebel Soldiers.

Information has been received here that a detachment of a Massachusetts regiment captured twenty-two of the Charlestown Home Guards at Harper's Ferry yesterday, and took them to Gen. Banks' camp.

Rebel Batteries at Cockpit Point.

A Virginia refugee, who was picked up by the Tigress, reports that the confederates are constructing batteries at Cockpit Point and opposite Budd's Ferry, about forty miles below Alexandria. He states that the officers in charge of the batteries have orders not to fire on any vessel until all the works are completed.

Officers of the flotilla state, that from Alexandria to the Rappahannock river, a distance of nearly 150 miles, not a soul is visible on the Virginia shore, the whole country bearing the mark of desolation. No horses, cattle, or sheep of any kind are seen, and not a particle of smoke to note the habitation of a single individual is perceptible. Complete silence and loneliness pervades the whole extent of country as though it had been devastated by a pestilence.

More Discoveries.

The police authorities of Baltimore continue to make discoveries of concealed arms, ammunition, &c. On Friday night arms were found concealed in the house of one of the regular police, and on Saturday morning thirty-three rifles and twenty-seven muskets were found in another building.

Cutting off Our River Communication.

The movements of the rebel army point plainly to an effort to cut off our communication on the river, and make prizes of our merchant vessels almost before our eyes. The rebel army is daily increasing in numbers along the river, and they have got to be driven away, or they will very soon defiantly become masters of the river.

Reported Death of Jefferson Davis.

A negro, arrived here from Manassas tonight, reports that Jeff. Davis died at seven o'clock on Saturday morning. This report is believed by members of the Jewish persuasion here. His physicians have long expected, from the condition of his health, that if at any time he should be subjected to protracted and extraordinary mental exertion, he would die suddenly. The report of his death is believed here.—N. Y. Herald.

Supposed Death of the Rebel Colonel Stewart.

It is supposed that the officer reported killed on Friday afternoon, on the side of the rebels, was Col. Stewart. He was a showy individual, fond of display, and it was probably he who was hit in the skirmish in the neighborhood of Bailey's Cross roads, on Friday last.

The flags at half-mast may have been on account of the death of Col. Stewart, or of Jeff. Davis, but the probability is that they were on account of the latter.

The Occupation of Munson Hill.

The rebel occupation of Munson Hill has, in one respect, been overvalued. It does not command a single one of our positions.

Mr. Etheridge, of Tennessee.

Hon. Emerson Etheridge arrived this evening from the West, and is stopping at Brown's. The object of his visit was to get possession of his children, who were in West Tennessee. Through the co-operation of personal friends, he succeeded in his purpose.

Strange Conduct of an English Man-of-War.

A dispatch to the Navy Department, dated off Fort Pickens, Aug. 17, says: "An English man-of-war steamer, flying a pennant, ran down to us last Sunday morning, and crossed our bows within a quarter of a mile, hauled his wind, and stood off without communicating or observing the usual courtesies common to all national vessels on meeting each other. This manuever, in presence of our enemy, was exhibited for the express purpose of showing John Bull's interest for King Cotton.

Death of Jefferson Davis—Confirmation of the Report.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4—A gentleman who has just arrived here from Richmond brings full confirmation of the reported death of Jefferson Davis.

Davis had been in infirm health for some weeks, and died at Richmond last week.

A dispatch has just been received at the War Department from General Rosecrans, Commander of the federal forces in Western Virginia:

General Rosecrans speaks in very encouraging terms of the state of affairs in the western section of Virginia.

This news relies all the rumors which have been current for two or three days, to the effect that Rosecrans's command had been surrounded by the enemy's forces under Lee and Floyd.

The intelligence from the Virginia side of the Potomac states that the rebels are concentrating troops a short distance in the rear of the Chain Bridge.

The Richmond papers are in ecstacies over the enemy's occupation of Munson's Hill, and declare that an onward movement will soon be made.

A British subject residing in Washington has made complaint that the Cameron (German) Rifle Regiment turned him and his family out of his dwelling, for the purpose of establishing a guard-house on the premises. He has thus far failed to obtain redress, but Lord Lyons has taken the case in hand, and will be likely to gain the attention of the proper authorities.

It is reported that Mr. Ely, member of Congress from Rochester, New York, will soon be released from his captivity at Richmond.

Five Virginia soldiers have been captured near Harper's Ferry by the pickets of a Massachusetts regiment.

Seizure of $50,000 Worth of Property Belonging to the Rebels.

Deputy U. S. Marshal Richard C. Rohner conceived the idea a day or two since, that there was a large quantity of goods, the property of rebels, on sale at different commission houses in this city. He immediately set to work in a quiet way to ascertain what he could in the matter, and to make arrangements for the confiscation of such goods belonging to the contrabands as he could find. In the establishment of Rawson, Wilby & Co., 8 Columbia street, and that of Tomlison & McLaughlin, he found about $49,000 worth of tobacco, selling on commission for a Virginia secesher. L. T. Hughes, on Columbia street, between Main and Walnut, acknowledges having in his possession a large amount of money, the proceeds of sales of Southern goods—probably $10,000. J. C. Butler, on Columbia street, between Vine and Race, acknowledged having $300 in money and $700 worth of peach brandy, that belonged to an inhabitant of Dixie's land.—Cin. Gazette.

A COUNTRY SECESSION EDITOR ARRESTED.—Yesterday afternoon Henry A. Reeve, the editor of the Republican Watchman, of Greenport, R. I., was arrested at the Hudson River Railroad depot in Chambers street, by Detectives Sampson and De Voe. It appears orders came from Washington yesterday afternoon for the arrest of Mr. Reeve, on a charge of publishing treasonable matter in his paper. He was on his way to the Syracuse Convention when arrested. When he was informed he was a prisoner on a charge of treason he did not make any reply, but suffered himself to be placed in a carriage, which was quickly driven to Fort Hamilton, and at an early hour last evening he was accommodated with an apartment in Fort Lafayette. The room of the editor of the Daily News of this city is still vacant, but his arrival at the fort is hourly expected.—N. Y. World.

DESTITUTION AND DISSATISFACTION AMONG REBEL TROOPS IN VIRGINIA.—Baltimore, September 3.—The Baltimore American, of to-day, says that no rebel troops were at Winchester on Thursday, except a few who were sick. At Leesburg there are three or four regiments; one at Waterford, above the Point of Rocks, and one at Goose Creek.

Letters from rebel soldiers at Richmond state that the troops are in a sad state of destitution, being barefooted and in want of suitable clothing. The skins in a tannery at Hillsboro' had been taken dripping from the vats to convert into shoes. All the horses from loyal Union and disunion farmers had been seized, which created the greatest dissatisfaction. The want of confidence is increasing daily, the hopes of the rebels being kept up by reports that the Federal Government had only 30,000 troops around Washington, and found it impossible to recruit any more.

MORE NAVAL EXPEDITIONS.—We understand that, since the brilliant conquest of Hatteras Inlet, the government has resolved upon several other similar expeditions without loss of time. We are glad to hear it, for this is the shortest way to the vital parts of this Southern rebellion. We thus take it in the flank and rear, and compel it to face about to defend itself. Better still: by our occupation of the inlets and seaports of the cotton States we shall be able, in good season, to relieve the Manchester cotton spinners and make them good Union men. Let us make a bold dash for the headquarters of King Cotton, and we shall soon have him on the hip on both sides of the waist.—N. Y. Herald.

THE PRIVATE SUMTER HEARD FROM.—Baltimore, Sept. 3.—A letter from Key West to the Baltimore American, dated Aug. 20, on board the frigate Santee, says that on the evening of the 15th, the steamer Powhatan came in off Pensacola, saying that they had captured a prize to the secession steamer Sumter, which was trying to get into the river with a large letter-bag containing letters to Jeff Davis and others. Some of the letters stated that the Sumter was going to a certain point or cruising ground, and would be there for a stated number of days. So the commander sent the Powhatan immediately to look for her. All was quiet at Ft. Pickens when the Santee left.

4 NEWS FROM ALEXANDRIA.—Alexandria, Sept. 3, 1861.—The rebel troops are erecting a fortification about a mile below Murray Mason's, on the land of Levy D ming, College farm, five miles out, on the Little River turnpike. The rebel pickets have possession of the upper part of the farm, and the Union pickets the lower part. In the mean time, Mr. Deming has thought it prudent to leave.

WE LEARN from the Pensacola Observer that a young man named Coleman, a grandson of John J. Crittenden, of Kentucky, and a private in one of the companies of the First Florida Regiment, stationed near Pensacola, committed suicide on the 25th ult., by cutting his throat, while suffering from mental derangement. He was about twenty-six years of age.
