Saturday and Tuesday—A. A. CARRIER.

QUARTERMASTER GENERAL'S OFFICE, WASHINGTON CITY, March 19, 1863.

OWNERS OF STEAM VESSELS are invited to send to the Quartermaster General's office tenders for their charter or sale.

Tenders should contain descriptions of the vessels, their dimensions, enrolled or registered, tonnage, actual carrying capacity, material, weather-copped, whether side-wheel or propeller, whether copper or iron fastened, size and power of engines and boilers, for long or short charter, with the estimated price of the vessel in case of loss, or in case the government would prefer to purchase instead of charter.

Owners of steam vessels already in the service of the Quartermaster's Department, are requested to make known to the Department any reduction in their present rates which they may be willing to grant, and also the price at which they will be willing to sell them.

All such tenders should be addressed to the Quartermaster General of the United States, at Washington, and should be endorsed "Proposals for the charter or sale of steamers."

When received they will be considered, and the Department will endeavor to reduce the heavy expense attending army transportation upon the ocean and tide waters by substituting, whenever it can be done, cheaper vessels of equal capacity for those now employed. mh24:m

Well Done, Little Rhody

The Republicans of Rhode Island, as will be seen by our dispatches, have beaten the combined forces of the "democrats" and "conservatives," and elected their entire ticket—Governor, two members of Congress and the Legislature. We expected this result; but since both wings of the opposition united upon one ticket, and knowing the importance of the contest, and the efforts put forth by the Copperheads, we confess that we feel relieved of a little anxiety. Now let Connecticut do as well next Monday, and we shall have a good working majority in the next Congress.

The Yazoo Expedition.

We have confirming accounts from Cairo, of the date of Tuesday, of the success of the expedition which started for the Upper Yazoo through Steele's river, Black Bayou, Deer Fork, &c. One account states that "Admiral Porter succeeded in getting through both bayous with the gunboats, and proceeded twenty five or thirty miles further in Deer and Rolling Fork, when he encountered a small force of rebels, who so annoyed him with sharpshooters and by placing obstructions in the channel, that further progress was impossible without the co-operation of infantry, which came up the next day. The enemy had in the meantime cut trees in the stream, making it impassible. They annoyed the gunboats otherwise, and seemed to be gathering in considerable force. Reinforcements of infantry were marched rapidly to their assistance on Sunday, and came up with the besieged gunboats on Monday. The latter were completely hemmed in by obstructions in front and rear, and would have been an easy and speedy prey to the rebels, if not destroyed. Skirmishing continued all day, when, the rebels being reinforced, the gunboats were withdrawn. The gunboat fleet commenced its retreat to-day. The whole force has re-embarked on transports, near the head of Black Bayou, for return to Young's Point. The enemy's force was probably five thousand, with heavy artillery.

Another dispatch states that the reported failure of Sherman's expedition in the rear of Haine's Bluff is unfounded. At last accounts he had reached the Yazoo river with a strong force." Now whether this has reference to the report given above of the failure of Admiral Porter to reach his destination is not quite clear, but we incline to the belief that it has. The one says the "whole force," (which of course must have included Sherman,) had re-embarked for Young's Point; while the other says that Sherman had reached the Yazoo with a large force.

Langiewicz, the Polish Leader.

The Philadelphia Bulletin gives the following sketch of Langiewicz, whose name is in connection with the rising of the Poles for liberty, has become so familiar to us of late:

Marian Langiewicz is described as a young man, thirty-four years of age and small in stature. He is a native of the Grand Duchy of Posen, that part of Poland belonging to Prussia, his father being a physician. An older brother is also a practising physician in Posen. Langiewicz was educated at the universities of Breslau and Prague. He received the situation of a tutor in the family of a wealthy landed proprietor of Poland, but returned to Breslau to complete his studies. From there he went to Berlin, where he served for a year in the Prussian Artillery. He then went to Paris and afterwards to Italy, where he joined Garibaldi and served through the campaign of Sicily and Naples. When the war was over, he went to Paris, where he taught a school for Polish emigrants for a time. He then returned to Poland, where he was appointed one of the instructors at the military school at Kunce.

Langiewicz was one of the first to join the popular rising in Poland, and his military knowledge and experience soon made him a leader. The necessity for a central power, around which the people could rally, soon became evident, and on the 15th of March, with the sanction of the Central Committee of Poland, he issued a proclamation assuming his Dictatorship.

This admirable address produced a prodigious effect in Poland. Following the brilliant deeds of arms accomplished by Langiewicz and his small, hastily organized army, it inspired the people with confidence and enthusiasm. Whether he will be able to maintain the position against the power of Russia is very problematical. But whatever may be the issue of the struggle, the name of Langiewicz will be celebrated in its history.

"Not Thirst for Vengeance."

The Jackson Mississippian has a long article, the object of which is to show the Southern heart." After asserting that the "cry of "Peace on any terms" is now becoming almost universal in the North, and that "Peace after Independence" is the watchword in the South, it concludes with the following ferocious paragraph:

Yet, after all, we cannot but confess that we would almost regret a peace to-day on our own terms, had we an army strong enough for invasion—for retaliation. The "Old Adam" is strong within us, and we say to-day, as we say in the South who do not heartily desire revenge—revenge by retaliating on our foes, not for the hellish acts of vandalism perpetrated by the Northern soldiery in the South, O, for only a month's success of an army of our Southern boys, say in the "loyal" State of Ohio! The cry of "Peace! peace!" would be cried in earnest—shrieked out from hearts wrung with horror and dismay amid ruined homesteads, ravaged fields and burning cities. O for a month of retaliation! When both sides would appreciate the horrors of a civil war (which the North does not) and we would then be ready and willing for peace which thereby would be all the more lasting.

Escaped from the Rebels.

The Washington correspondent of the New York Times tells the following story:

Seven Union prisoners, confined in the Libby Prison, at Richmond, escaped from there by the following clever ruse: The small-pox having broken out in the prison, to prevent its further spread the patients, as soon as attacked, were removed, for medical treatment, to the post-house, on the outskirts of the city. In order to get to the post-house, which afforded a better opportunity to escape, Hoffman the prisoner, the man heated a wire and burned under two of his pickets, and, under pretence that they had the disease, asked to be removed to the post-house. This was immediately done. After remaining in the hospital for a few hours, they managed to elude the vigilance of the guard and make good their escape.

Legislative Borers—A Law Providing for their Punishment.

Mr. Hopkins introduced a bill in the House on Monday, providing for "the punishment of Legislative borers." We have not been able to see or procure a copy of the bill, but it is sufficient, for our present purpose, to know that such a bill was reported. The fact that the system of legislative boring long in vogue, has become a nuisance and a disgrace, no one will deny. It is a nuisance to people fairly interested in the passage of just laws, and a disgrace to a legislative body, claiming the least independence or honesty. There are individuals daily besieging the halls of legislation, poor inebriate sots and scamps, who approach every man coming to Harrisburg on business, with the protestation that they (the borers) only can procure or prevent legislation. The assertion is daily made by these borers that such and such a Representative is pledged to vote thus and so—that Senators are sealed to the service of the "third house," by obligations such as no honorable man could submit to, or no honest legislator enter into.

Indeed, the system of boring has become such that, when men want legislation, they do not seek aid of their Representatives or Senators. The approach to them is hedged up by the professional borer. Money must be paid for that which the citizen is heavily taxed. Bribes are resorted to, when candid and devoted service should be freely given. Bargains and sales are made for law and special privileges without regard to the transactions of the business transacted. It cannot be otherwise than that the toleration or encouragement of such a system should result in disgrace to the independent legislator and be productive of much mischief to the public at large. If it continues, the disgrace and the mischief which it exposes, and which no honest man will occupy a seat in the Legislature and no decent man attempt to secure the passage of laws calculated for the general good. Our halls of legislation for the most part become gambling dens. Legislators will become as low now as women of the town. The public business will be bankrupted in the saloons and bawdy houses of the capital, instead of legitimately transacted and guaranteed to all as a common right of every citizen. If the spirit of a corporation have a right to its dens, its hotels, and its public places of resort or amusement of the common pick-pocket, the legislator has a right to protect himself by legislating to fill the capital of a pest equally as dangerous and degrading as the common pick-pocket—in the shape of the common professional borer.

The Legislature owes it to itself speedily to pass the bill introduced by Mr. Hopkins. No man has any regard for himself who will vote against such a law; we do not see how rigorous are its provisions.—Har. Telegraph.

Anecdote of General Sumner.

The Springfield Republican gives the following amusing account of the burning point in General Sumner's early life:

General Sumner, when a young man, was a stage driver among the Berkshire hills, and this is how he happened to get into the army. At a time in winter when the roads were dangerous, going down a steep hill, the stage slowed and turned over, but the horses kept on. One of the passengers pushed out of the window on the upper side of the coach, and climbed upon the top of it, intending to take the reins from Sumner's hands.

"You let the reins alone or I'll throw you off," said the driver, with determination. The passenger wisely abandoned his attempt at interference, and Sumner guided the team firmly till it was safe to stop them, dragging the overturned coach along, and so saved the passengers and himself. The passenger who attempted to take the reins was General Worth. He was so impressed with young Sumner's sterling qualities that he cultivated his acquaintance and induced him to join the army and the school and determined driver became a distinguished commander.

Slave Stampede.

The North Missouri (Hannibal) Courier, of the 20th, says that "some thirty or forty American citizens of African descent, passed through this city, evidently wearing the stamp of fugitives, and the legislature, to make Missouri a free state, and disgusted at the presence of a Confederate army which no appearance seemed to assure them that it would soon be free and prosperous, combined, a few nights since, to pass acts of individual and immediate emancipation, with compensation, but without compensation given to loyal owners. They therefore quietly absconded themselves into Illinois, leaving their disloyal proprietors to the sad reflection that had Congress and the Legislature done their duty, several thousand of their quondam slaves would have turned to their use, and benefit, what they now represent, the value of their labor and fellow citizens.

THE last bit of Parisian news is that Slidell has offered the person who controls the French press five hundred thousand dollars of cotton to favor the Southern cause, or to publish, or allow them (the Southerners) to publish all they wish in the paper of France.

W. M. B. BRADBURY'S PIANO-FORTE ESTABLISHMENT, No. 437 BROOME STREET, N. Y.

The subscriber respectfully invites the attention of the friends and the public generally to his Piano-Forte Establishment, at No. 437 Broome-st., corner of Crosby street.

Having within the last year, by the purchase of the right of the Kit Patent, of Stephen A. Bradbury, which was dissolved on the first January last, purchased the entire stock of Cabinet Forms and Piano-Forte Material owned by his brother, Edward G. Bradbury, he has now in his possession a stock of the best and choicest material, and a sufficient number of experienced workmen, with an unusually large and abundant supply of the best lumber, in hand, to meet the demand of the trade, to which he invites the attention of the public, and dealers in Piano-Forte Materials, and Piano-Forte Manufacturers.

BRADBURY'S NEW SCALE PIANO-FORTES.

In the great genius of our new scale, Bradbury, coupled with the almost care, exclusively for our pianos, we have added every improvement which can in any way tend to the perfection of Piano-Forte, and we can confidently assert that, for delicacy of touch, volume, power, brilliancy and sweetness of tone, combined with that strength and solidity of frame necessary to durability, they are unsurpassed by any manufactured.

"STRENGTH AND BEAUTY" is our motto, and we invite the closest critical examination of the best instruments in the land.

Every instrument warranted for five years.
