Hear the Testimony of Another Converted Arkansan.

We lately transferred to our columns some remarkable passages from a recently published address to the people of Arkansas by Gen. GANTT, who had been a secessionist and also in the rebel army, but who is now thoroughly convinced of the error and crime into which he, and the majority of his class among the Southern people, fell. We now give the following equally remarkable statement of another Arkansan convert to loyalty and Union. W. M. FISBACK, a member of the Convention which voted Arkansas out of the Union in 1861, in a speech at the Union meeting at Little Rock, on the 31st ult., said:

"I am a native of Virginia, and an old resident of this State. I have been one of you. The same direction has been given to my prejudices. I was taught to believe, and did believe, that everything manufactured in New England was made to cheat with; that the religion of the people was hypocrisy; that their touch was contamination. Fellow-citizens, I have seen New England and its people. I have been welcomed at the houses of the rich—an exile, without a decent coat to my back, or money in my pocket. I have always met the warmest Southern hospitality at the houses of their middle classes; and, my fellow-citizens, in one sense of the word, they have no poor. I have walked with awe and a condemning conscience through the school houses found at every corner of a cross road. I saw her barren hills covered with plenty; I saw her sturdy sons, every one of them an educated man, hasten to shoulder their muskets and place themselves in the ranks of the defenders of their country; and I heard them making excuses for the South, much in the spirit that a kind elder brother would for their wild younger brother; and I discovered as you have, that they are not cowards. And fellow-citizens, New England is a representative of the North."

The speech was of nearly two hours' in length, and the speaker concluded by saying that there was no power on earth or below it that could destroy this Government, for twenty millions of people, like those of New England, have said—this Union must and shall be preserved.

The Rogersville Affair in East Tennessee—A Panic on Both Sides—The Opposing Forces Running in Opposite Directions.

In a letter from Knoxville to the Cincinnati Gazette we find the following account of the Rogersville affairs:

The stampede of the 7th O. V. I., and 2d Tennessee for Rogersville is confirmed, very much to the discredit of those regiments. The most amusing part of the story is, that while our boys were running in one direction the rebels in a similar panic were making time as as fast as possible in the other. The concussion must have been fearful, since the rebound sent Gen. Imboden's rebels clear back to Moccasin Gap, at double-quick for fear of being cut off by General Shackleford, and our boys are supposed to be still on the run. Several fugacious Tennessee officers and men were arrested here last night en route for some place of safety. The whole affair is laughable as it was disgraceful, simply a raid on the part of the rebels, a mistake as to their numbers or ours, and a panic on both sides. About one-half of the 2d Tennessee are said to have been captured; more probably lurking in the hills, and will come back in due time. "An intelligent contraband," who was captured and taken as far as Kingsport, tells me that the rebels had about 150 prisoners, and were running away with them as fast as they could, a number of prisoners making their escape during the consequent haste and confusion. Vexatious as all this may be, it is the kind of warfare to which we will be subjected no doubt all winter. We have been most actively engaged in it since we entered East Tennessee, and there can be no reasonable hope of any improvement. Surrounded by foes and mountains as we are, we present a remarkably fine field for Southern gentlemen ambitious to emulate John Morgan in the guerrilla role to practice the brigand style in.

—The above account mentions one hundred and fifty prisoners as being in the hands of the rebels, but the rebels themselves, as we learn from their dispatches, when they stopped running and took time to count their prisoners, found only seventy-five remaining!

The Richmond Examiner on the Situation in the Southwest.

The passage from the Richmond Examiner, referring to the ill condition of affairs in the Southwest, and predicting another retreat of BRAGG, to which a brief allusion was made in our despatches a day or two ago, is worth laying before our readers in full:

The country may as well prepare itself for another retreat in the West. The indications of the annual migration of birds are scarcely more unerring than are the auguries which foretell the disappointment of the high expectations formed of the results to be attained in that quarter. After a continuance of favorable prognostics, to which additional strength was given by the confident tone of the President since his recent tour of inspection; after reiterated assurances of the straits to which the enemy were reduced, of the precarious tenure of his communications, the difficulties of subsistence by which he was pressed and the impossibility of his long continuance in his present position, we now note a certain and somewhat indefinable change of tone, which, to people rendered doubly acute by long habit and deep interest, serves to mark the fall of the barometer, and give warning of the coming storm * * * * Consistent accounts reach us, not only of mistakes in execution, but of disagreement and discord in the councils of the western army. It is certain that with such a state of things full efficiency cannot be expected from an army.

WE have had the report that Gen. Blunt was in danger of being attacked by a large rebel force, and the train which he was taking into Arkansas captured. The Leavenworth Conservative of Wednesday, we are glad to see, corrects this very unpleasant rumor. It says:

"The reports in circulation relating to the danger to the train now proceeding to Fort Smith, under Gen. Blunt, are, we are assured by information direct from Fort Scott, wholly untrue.

"Cooper has not crossed the Arkansas. There is no strong rebel force north of that river. Scattered bands of Brooks' and Shelbys' commands have hovered on Blunt's line of march, but no serious obstacle has appeared as yet. At last accounts the general was moving cautiously on the east side of the Grande River. He had not corraled his train, and did not consider himself in danger."

CAPTAIN GORDON, an officer of the rebel army, has been tried as a spy by a court-martial at Fort McHenry, Baltimore, and found guilty of recruiting for the rebels within the federal lines, and also of hanging about federal camps in disguise, and is under sentence to be shot on Friday of this week. The offences were alleged to have been committed in Western Virginia, where he was arrested. The sentence has yet to be approved by the President.

The Rebel Conspiracy in Canada.

The following explanation is given by the Montreal Commercial Advertiser, a secession newspaper, of the thwarted rebel conspiracy in Canada:

The expedition intended to effect the liberation of the Confederate officers held prisoners on Johnson's Island, Lake Erie, having failed, in order to remove the misapprehensions that may be created by Federal accounts of a Canadian plot to burn Western cities, we give below all the facts in which the public is interested, which may, we are assured, be implicitly relied on.

The Washington Government having refused to continue the exchange of prisoners of war under the cartel, sent the Southern officers accustomed to a tropical climate to Johnson's Island, where 2,000 of them were confined in wretched quarters, absolutely unfit to house cattle. There is no reason to doubt that the officers selected for this prison were those on whom the cold, damp climate and exposure would act most prejudicially. It was, in fact, an attempt to commit murder without publicly incurring the odium of slaughter.

In these circumstances, the Confederate Government made an attempt to rescue the doomed officers, and for this purpose an expedition was fitted out, consisting of thirty-six officers, under the command of one who had distinguished himself in similar dashing enterprises, and three hundred men. The officers embarked at Wilmington in the Confederate steamer Robert E. Lee, and landed at Halifax. The cotton and tobacco brought by that steamer as freight were sold to furnish the funds required, amounting to about $110,000. The men came overland through the States in small parties to the general rendezvous.

The intention was to surprise the Federal garrison on Johnson's Island, liberate the prisoners, convey them to Canada in vessels provided for that purpose, and forward them by Halifax to Nassau or Bermuda; the greater part of the funds being specially devoted to paying their passage to one of these points.

Any further operation on the lakes were left to the discretion of the officer in command, whose orders were stringent and peremptory to avoid a breach of neutrality, and to take care that even the semblance of international wrong should be prevented. Had Johnson's Island been taken, it might have formed a basis for other operations against Federal commerce on the lakes; but the real object of the expedition was to rescue two thousand valuable lives from the cruelty which had devoted them to slow but certain death in a climate and situation in the least degree inimical to them.

Contrabands on the Mississippi—Their Numbers, Efficiency, etc., etc.

A Western correspondent writes:

It is astonishing what a number of contrabands are now employed by the navy. Almost every gunboat below Cairo has an average of fifteen or twenty each, who are employed as coal heavers, bargemen and servants. It takes them longer than a white man to learn their duties, but when once learned they make efficient seamen, are tractable, and will obey orders. They can be trained as gun crews, and on our way down to Baton Rouge, while we were fired into by guerrillas, Acting Volunteer Lieut. Oliver, of the old navy, concluded to try them at the guns. Though awkward at first, they soon got waked up and proved their capability of standing under fire and of making good gunners. The gunboat Manitou, stationed at Ellis Cliff, has an admirable gun crew, who have been in action, and who understand their duties as well as white seamen.

There are a vast number of contrabands, at Shipworth's Landing, at Joe Davis' plantations near Hurricane Island, at Natchez, at Helena, at Island No. 10 and New Madrid. A great many have recently come in at the mouth of Red River, and are encamped under the bank, being protected by our gunboats. At Fort Pillow, in Tennessee, is another large camp, and as fast as the gunboats need men, they take them from these points, while the women are sent North for servants in families, or for such occupation as they may be suited for. Fleet-Surgeon Pinckney has on board of his hospital ship, the Red Rover, at Memphis, Jeff. Davis' own cook, and one of his best waiters, both bright, intelligent colored men and excellent servants, and I will venture to say, that even in the best hotels and restaurants in Cincinnati is there a better cook, than this same cook of Fleet-Surgeon Pinckney. No wonder the Southern Confederacy is suffering, especially when after taking their food we take their cooks. The body servant of the rebel Secretary Benjamin is now engaged on board one of the steamers plying between Memphis and New Orleans, and many other once valuable slaves, are now in happy freedom, making men of themselves. At many of the contraband camps, zealous chaplains, and noble men and women sent forth by the Christian commissions of the several States are now laboring to elevate the character of the freedmen, and trying to make them industrious and useful, both to themselves and the community.

Kentucky Rebels.

The Frankfort, (Ky.,) Commonwealth has the following forcible remarks on Kentucky affairs:

How can the Federal authorities expect recruiting to go on in Kentucky, when they permit the State to be filled with the worst rebels—men who would be ready, upon the approach of a rebel army, to prove more troublesome and dangerous than ever. The meanest rebels who figured in the invasion last year, were those who had been treated most leniently. Rebels have been permitted to return, who aided in tearing the stars and stripes from our State Capitol, and trampled the flag in the dust; and who, when here, were most violent and vindictive. Union men can't afford to leave their homes, when such men are left behind to do mischief. This indiscriminate return of rebels should be stopped.

Cargo of Enfield Rifles in Texas—Rebel Plot Discovered.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—The Tribune's special from Washington, dated Nov. 16, says: The government has received information through our Consul at Monterey, that a few days before the capture of Brownsville by General Banks, a large cargo of Enfield rifles, enough to arm all the militia in the State, had landed there.

When the U. S. steamer Newbern was on her way with a large number of rebel prisoners, a plot was discovered to take the vessel from the officers and men, as there were less than fifty of them, and fifty rebels could have effected their design, had it not been for the ingenuity of the naval officer who, disguised as a sailor, discovered the plot.

Bounty to New York Volunteers—The Iron Clad Dictator.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The county bounty in this city to volunteers is fixed at $300, State bounty $75, in addition to a government bounty of $302 to new recruits or $402 to veterans. Thirty thousand men are wanted.

The Iron Clad Dictator will be launched on thanksgiving day.

NEW ORLEANS is filling up with a Northern population. Two steamers from New York recently arrived, with 452 passengers. The New Orleans Times of the 27th ult. says: "Every vessel that comes from the North reaches us freighted with the wives and children of those who have come here to reside—very many of them permanently—among us."

A BILL to prohibit the manufacture and sale of spirituous liquors in West Virginia is before the Legislature of that State. Liquor for mechanical and medical purposes only may be sold, and that by agents to be specially appointed for the purpose. One gentleman, in favoring this measure, said he "considered the act of whisky selling worse than treason."

GENERAL ROBERT ANDERSON has been relieved from the command at Fort Adams, at Newport, Rhode Island, to which he had been but recently assigned, his ill health not allowing him to continue longer in the service.

THE streets of St. Louis must be in a pleasant condition. A paper of that city says a woman was smothered to death in a mud-hole some days since.

ONLY two hundred and seven recruits were obtained in Pennsylvania during the month of October.

Special Dispatch to the Pittsburgh Gazette.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17, 1863.

The Banks expedition made a reconnoissance over the Texas coast and the mouth of the Rio Grange and disturbed a very pretty arrangement with the blockade runners. The works and forces of the enemy off Sabine Pass and Galveston, have all been reconnoitered, and are not half so formidable as supposed. The blockade runners off the Rio Grange, Brownsville and Freefort are much discomfited.

Four prizes were taken by the fleet at the mouth of the Brazos river. San Luis Pass, and the fortifications around Galveston were all examined and measured. Our forces behind are sufficient to hold the points occupied. The practical purpose of the expedition is the interruption and destruction of the immense contraband trade carried on between Europe and the Southern States by way of Mexico.

The government intends to seal Matmoras as well as Charleston and Wilmington. The latter could have been sealed long ago, but the fleets look to prize money, and instead of destroying, try to capture. Hence so many escapes.

A dispatch from Atlanta, Ga., dated the 13th inst., says that a fight between the rebel batteries and our forces before Chattanooga continued briskly up to that time

Our troops have made a diversion from right to left, with a view probably to attack Lookout Mountain, or to send troops to reinforce Gen. Burnside.

There is nothing further from Charleston.

The great Canadian scare has fizzled out.

Messrs. Cornell, Jewett and Vallandigham have addressed letters to a Liverpool paper in favor of French mediation in America.

An arrival from Panama shows that war is imminent between New Granada and Equador. The New Grenadian Minister had received his passports from Quito.

Remarkable yields of gold and silver are reported in the Northern provinces of Chili.

GEN. SHERMAN'S ARMY AT CHATTANOOGA.

The Potomac Army Not Going into Winter Quarters.

HOOKER REPORTED ENGAGED WITH THE ENEMY.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 17.—A telegram dated yesterday, from the Headquarters of the Army of Tennessee, states that Maj. Gen. Sherman was at Gen. Thomas' headquarters yesterday, having made a junction of his entire corps with Grant's right.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Generals Meade, Graham and Kilpatrick went to the front today. It is evident the Army is not going into Winter quarters at present.

A Chattanooga letter, dated Nov. 13th, to the Herald says: It is rumored that Hooker has just been engaged with the enemy

Affairs at Chattanooga.

CHATTANOOGA, Nov. 16.—All is quiet in front. The Lookout battery has been quite vigorously worked to-day, alternately on Hooker's camp, Moccasin Point and Chattanooga. Shells are occasionally thrown into the town, but the plunging fire is neither accurate nor effective. No casualties are reported here. Our Moccasin batteries have splendid range on the camps in Chattanooga valley, on the east side of Lookout. The indications were that a battle would be made on Hooker's position by a large force of rebels ere long; but its strength and advantageous position, with a co-operation with other forces, has led to the abandonment of the scheme.

It is believed that the latest information obtained from our scouts contradict the former reports.

It is said that the Western and Atlantic road is worked to its fullest capacity, bringing reinforcements to Bragg, and the road from Chickamauga Station, eight miles South, is lined with the camps of rebels.

The campaign will not be closed without a decisive and bloody struggle for Chattanooga and East Tennessee.

The intelligence from East Tennessee to the evening of the 14th is satisfactory.

Another Capture—Rebel Agents Imprisoned—Gen. Graham—Rumors of Cavalry Fighting—A Wagon Team Captured by Rebels.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—The Navy Department has received information of another capture off Wilmington. The particulars are not yet received.

George T. Ayre, agent for the sale of Confederate bonds, has been sent hither from the Army of the Potomac, and committed to the old Capitol Prison. Several other dangerous characters, also, have been sent to that prison.

Brigadier General Charles K. Graham has been relieved, by order of the Secretary of War, from his command in the Army of the Potomac, and directed to report to General Butler.

The Times' dispatch from Washington, dated November 16, says: Rumors reach here tonight of cavalry fighting to-day on the Rapidan. Firing was heard yesterday in the direction of Stevensburg, and again to-day in the same direction. The rebels captured a wagon train yesterday near Stevensburg. The cause of the firing to-day is not known up to this hour (11 p. m.)

From Nashville—Movements of Rebels—Bridges Destroyed—The River, etc.

NASHVILLE, Nov. 16.—Forty-five prisoners, among them one captain and three lieutenants, captured by Major Fitzgibbon, of the 14th Michigan, at Lawrenceburg, reached the city to-day.

The rebel Col. Cooper's force, which were routed at Lawrenceburg, are now endeavoring to cross the Tennessee river.

The country around Columbia is clear of guerrillas.

On the 12th inst. Roddy's rebel cavalry crossed the Tennessee river and came to Caligulo, near Lynnville, on the Tennessee and Alabama railroad, and destroyed two bridges and trestle work.

It is reported all quiet at the front.

Lieut. Col. H. C. Hodges, Chief Quartermaster, has been ordered to Leavenworth, Kansas. J. L. Donaldson, Lieutenant Colonel and Assistant Quartermaster, has been appointed to this post.

River.—There are 3½ feet of water on the shoals. A large lot of coal for government use has arrived.

Soldiers' Bounty.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—A bill will be introduced early next session of Congress to have the bounty to soldiers paid in monthly instalments, additional to their monthly pay. This will make their pay $30 a month instead of $13.

Steamer Water Witch Foundered—All on Board Supposed to be Lost.
