JOHN HYLE'S SPOOL SILK,
Expressly for Sewing.

TO avoid the many inconveniences attending the use of the ordinary skein, the slower sale of the same much, and for a long time wanted. It has now been a matter of astonishment that some enterprising manufacturer has not conveniently spooled the article of silk, so much more valuable, which has been supplied in skeins, from which so much trouble, vexation, and loss has arisen.
The difficulty has at last been overcome, the public offered a good article, handsomely put up in a convenient form for domestic use.
The only objection urged against this article is the apparent small quantity on each spool. This is easily explained. Each Spool is warranted to contain 200 yards of Silk, while the ordinary Skein, at the same price, has but an uncertain quantity, varying from 1 to 18 yards.
The Spool Silk is ready for use at the time of purchase, and is only needs a trial, to convince the most skeptical of its superiority in quality. Independent of the neat and convenient form in which it is furnished, it has great advantages over the skein, as it does away with the tedium of winding, the vexation of snarling, and the loss of time in preparing it for use.

Great American Mechanical Work.

D Appleton & Co., New York, have in course of publication, in parts price twenty five cents each,
A DICTIONARY
Of Mechanics, Mechanical Engineering, Engineering, Engineering Work, and Engineering, designed for Practical Working Men, and those intended for the Engineering Profession.
THIS WORK is of large size, and will contain two thousand pages, and upwards of 1000 illustrations. It will present working diagrams and descriptions of the most important machinery in the United States. Independent of the results of the ingenuity, it will contain complete practical treatises on Mechanics, Mechanics, Engineering, Engineering, and Engineering, with all that is required in more than one thousand dollars worth of folio volumes, in language and other books.
The great object of this publication is, to place before practical men and students such an amount of information as shall enable them to work to the best advantage, and to avoid the mistakes which they may at present be liable to commit for want of useful information. The labor of compiling such a work has been almost beyond precedent in such works. Indeed, there is no work of the kind in the English language, which is treated with such elegance, and which contains such a mass of the most valuable information, that even a man of the most limited means can afford to purchase it, and it is so much which is so important for every mechanic.
The work will be issued in semi-monthly numbers, at the rate of one shilling per number, and completed within the compass of twenty numbers. A liberal discount will be made to those who take the whole work.
Any one receiving the publishers $10 in advance, shall receive the work through the post office free of postage.

Opinion of the Press.

"Your work on Mechanics, Mechanics, Engineers, and Artisans, will be a mine of wealth." Providence, (R I) Journal.
"We shall inform your readers with knowledge of Working Drawings, and Engineering, and Engineering, and Engineering." Scientific American.
"We unhesitatingly recommend the work to those engaged in mechanical or scientific pursuits, as eminently worthy of their examination and patronage." N Y Tribune.
"It is a great work, and the publishers deserve the thanks of inventors, mechanics, and manufacturers." Philadelphia Ledger.
"Mechanics will find it highly useful in practical mechanics." Philadelphia Ledger.
"Mechanics will find it useful in all who wish to acquaint themselves with the progress of invention in the mechanic arts." New Haven Palladium.
"Mechanics might, very profitably up in the sciences as well as practical knowledge." Boston Mass Advertiser.
"We have published that work that scores and hundreds of our most intelligent mechanics have desired to possess." Scientific American.
"Its illustrations are descriptions, and so full and complete as to enable the reader to make use of the information." Scientific American.
"All interested in mechanics should send for the prospectus." Newark (N J) Daily Advertiser.
"Mechanics, Mechanics, Engineers, and Artisans, will find it a great work." Boston Mass Advertiser.
