GERMAN BITTERS

PREPARED BY

DR C. M. JACKSON, Philadelphia, Penna.,

such as Constipation, Inward Piles, Fullness or Blood to the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for Food, Fullness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried and difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or suffocating sensations when in a lying posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or webs before the sight, Fever and Dull Pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, &c. Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil, and great depression of spirits,

And will positively prevent Yellow Fever, Billious Fever, &c,

THEY CONTAIN

NO ALCOHOL OR BAD WHISKY!

They will cure the above diseases in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred.

Induced by the extensive sale and universal popularity of Hoofland's German Bitters, (purely vegetable) hosts of ignorant quacks and unscrupulous adventurers, have opened upon suffering humanity the flood gates of Nostrums in the shape of poor whisky, vilely compounded with injurious drugs, and christened Tonics, Stomachics and Bitters.

Beware of the innumerable array of alcoholic preparations in plethoric bottles, and big-bellied kegs, under the modest appellation of Bitters; which, instead of curing only aggravates diseases, and leave the disappointed sufferers in despair.

YOU WANT SOMETHING to STRENGTHEN YOU?

YOU WANT A GOOD APPETITE?

DO YOU WANT TO BUILD UP YOUR CONSTITUTION?

DO YOU WANT TO FEEL WELL?

DO YOU WANT TO GET RID OF NER VOUSNESS?

DO WANT ENERGY?

Do you want to sleep well?

Do you want a brisk and vigorous feeling?

GO TO THE USE

OF

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS.

From I. Newton Brown, D. D., Editor of the Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge.

Although not disposed to favor or recommend Patent Medicines in general, through distrust of their ingredients and effects; I yet know of no sufficient reason why a man may not testify to the benefit he believes himself to have received from any simple preparation in the hope that he may thus contribute to the benefit of others.

I do this the more readily in regard to Hoofland's German Bitters, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, of this city, because I was prejudiced against them for many years, under the impression that they were chiefly an alcoholic mixture. I am indebted to my friend Robert Shoemaker, Esq., for the removal of this prejudice by proper tests, and for encouragement to try them, when suffering from great and long continued debility. The use of three bottles of those Bitters, at the beginning of the present year, was followed by evident relief, and restoration to a degree of bodily and mental vigor which I had not felt for six months before, and had almost despaired of regaining. I therefore thank God and my friend for directing me to the use of them.

J. NEWTON BROWN.

PHILADELPHIA, June 23, 1861.

From the Rev. Joseph H. Kennard, Pastor of the Tenth Baptist Church.

DR. JACKSON—DEAR SIR—I have been frequently requested to connect my name with commendations of different kinds of medicine, but regarding the practice as out of my appropriate sphere, I have in all cases declined; but with a clear proof in various instances, and particularly in my own family, of the usefulness of Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters, I depart from my usual course, to express my full conviction that for general debility of the system, and especially Liver Complaint it is a safe and valuable preparation. In some cases it may fail, but usually I doubt not it will be very beneficial to those who suffer from the above causes. Yours very respectfully,

J. H. KENNARD,

Eighth below Coats street, Phila., Dec. 24th.

From the Wife of ALDERMAN WUNDER, Germantown.

GERMANTOWN, June 1, 1861.

DR. C. M. JACKSON—Sir—It gave me pleasure, two years ago, to give you a certificate, testifying that the German Bitters had done for me. I am now perfectly cured of all those diseases your medicine professes to cure, viz: Dyspepsia, Chronic and Nervous debility, disease of the Kidneys, &c. The powerful influence it exerts upon Nervous prostration is surprising. I have been consulted frequently in reference to your Bitters, and without hesitation, have recommended it for the above complaints, and in every instance it has effectually cured. Your medicine has a great reputation in Germantown, and is sold in every Drug Store, and in most of the Grocery stores here. If any one should question what I say, let them come to Germantown, and I will prove to their satisfaction, that the Bitters have cured in this vicinity more than twenty cases of the above diseases.

Respectfully, HANNAH WUNDER,

Main street, above Rittenhouse, Germantown, Penn'a.

JUST THE THING FOR THE SOLDIERS.

Will build up the constitution, and give health and strength to an overtasked and diseased saith.

THE TESTIMONY FROM THE ARMY

PHILADELPHIA, August 12, 1862.

DR. C. M. JACKSON—Dear Sir: While in Virginia, owing to the change of water, I was taken with a severe diarrhœa, which seemed incurable, and which greatly weakened me. When we reached Martinsburg, I feared I should have to come home; but noticing some of your Bitters in the store, Mr. H. H. Price, in that town, I purchased a supply, and on taking it was speedily relieved, and the diarrhœa was quickly checked, and I experienced no return of it. A number of my comrades, who suffered in the same manner and from the same cause, with whom I shared the Bitters, join me in this certificate. I expect to return to the seat of war with the Legion, and shall certainly take a supply of the Bitters in my knapsack. I would not be without it in weight in gold, particularly on going into a new region.

Yours, truly, A. E. ALTEMUS,

Company H, Scott Legion.

TO THE PUBLIC.

ESPECIALLY the ignorant and falsely Modest of all denominations, treat secret and delicate disorders, self-abuse and diseases, or prostrations common and incident to youths of both sexes, and adults, single or married. Because Dr. BRANDRETH publishes the fact of his doing so, the ignorant and falsely modest are dreadfully shocked, and think it a great sin very immoral and for contamination and corruption among their wives, promising sons and daughters. Their family physician should be cautious to keep them in ignorance that they do the same as Dr. BRANDRETH, (except publishing) lest a lucrative practice might be lost to them among stupid falsely modest and presumptuous families, born and raised in ignorance, sprung up as mushrooms and who compare society, intelligence, sense, &c., to dollars and cents, mysteriously, meanly coilly gotten. It is to publicity, however, that numerous parents and guardians are thankful that their sons, daughters and wards, previously feeble sickly and of delicate condition and appearance have been restored to health and vigor by DR. BRANDRETH, besides many before and after marriage through him have been saved much suffering, anxiety, mortification, &c. Spermatorrhea or nocturnal emmissions, are completely cured in a very short space of time by his new remedies, which are peculiarly his own. They are compounds from the Vegetable Kingdom, having seen the fallacy of the Mercurial treatment, he has abandoned it and substituted the veritable Female diseases are treated with marked success—having had over forty years (40) experience in their treatment in hospitals of both the Old World and in the United States leads him to say—to all with a fair trial, health and happiness will again bloom upon the now—pallid cheek. THE SPECTRE SCOUT.

A STORY OF THE INVASION OF MARYLAND.

BY FERDINAND L. SARMIENTO.

It was night, and Frank Darrell was seated in his tent, his head upon his hand, his thoughts far, far away with his beloved mother and sisters. Father he had none, for he had died long years since—so that those of whom Frank was thinking had a double claim upon him and shared, and justly, a two-fold portion of his love and anxious care.

The candle which served to illumine the small area of the tent had burned almost to the socket, and the moon, which was already high in the heavens, told that the night was far advanced.

On the table, spread out before the young officer, was a sheet of paper, upon which one could trace by the flickering light the sacred words: "my mother."

It was a momentous period in Frank Darrell's life. It was the night before the terrible battle of Middletown—and on every side was stretched, far as the eye could see, long lines of deadly bayonets and threatening cannon. To-morrow a battle must be fought, and could one have foreseen the terrible slaughter so soon to deluge that fair spot, one must have shrunk in horror, and cried, "Oh, may that Sabbath morn ne'er break."

It was, indeed, a momentous period of Frank's life, for that Sabbath morn, the hour of whose birth was now almost tolling, was to be his baptism morn in that career of blood and of danger yclept a soldier's life.

It was then with saddened feelings that Frank paused from his letter-writing, rested his head tremblingly upon his hand, and suffered the pen to fall unnoticed to the ground. Yet Frank Darrell was no coward. He was young at the trade, but a braver spirit never lived. But, as we have already said, Frank had a mother and sisters, loved beyond all earthly beings, and dependent, since his father's death, upon his own exertions for their sole support. It had been a long time before Frank could bring himself to leave them, although his torn and rended land needed every one of her sons, to wipe from her bleeding brow the insult offered by cursed traitor hands. But at last his patriot blood could stand it no longer. His forefathers had fought and died in the dread days, and amid, the iron-hearts of the Revolution—should he be less sacrificing? No! a thousand times no! His sires would raise themselves from their honored graves and justly "shake their gory locks" at him who dared thus to cast the slur of cowardice upon a Darrell's name and patriot fame.

It was a time for every one to go.—Wives might do the reaping; children might sow the fields, and gather in their golden yield, as in those days that ushered in the birth throes of our nation. Again our glorious land was shaken; again it was called upon to stand the dread regeneration of patriot blood—and should a Darrell shirk the issue? So Frank departed, his mother's blessing falling like a sunbeam through her showering tears, and the prayers and sustaining words of his noble-hearted sisters following and cheering him in the performance of that which he felt to be his and every one's duty!

It was in truth a moment that demanded the efforts of all, for the rebel hordes, emboldened and triumphant, through the petty jealousies of those in power in our land, had burst through the steel band that had hitherto encased them and their vile projects, and were now laying waste the broad valleys and rich fields of noble Maryland. Behind them lay starvation and despair; before them was hope and plenty. It may be seen, then, whether or not it behooved each freeman of the North to put his shoulder to the wheel, and close forever, and with one conclusive crash, the doors of the temple of Janus thrust open by traitorous hands, and held thus by the perfidious grasp of traitor friends.

And Frank Darrell did it, like a man; and, although he entered but as a simple lieutenant, his worth had raised him to a position on his general's staff, where we now find him, beloved and appreciated.

But to return to our story. The moon was high in the heavens, and the night was undisturbed, except by the slow tramp of the sentry before the quarters of the General. Directly the sentry paused. "Who goes there?" rang out clear and ringing on the midnight air. The answer was apparently satisfactory, for soon one could hear him resume his measured pace, while the person challenged approached the tent in which our friend sat. He, however, had heard nothing of the colloquy outside, so absorbed was he with his "tryste" reflections, and was not aroused until a portly, but noble-looking man, wearing a General's uniform had entered his tent and rested his hand upon his shoulder.

"Oh, General!" exclaimed the young man; then, springing respectfully to his feet, "General, you took me rather by surprise."

"Yes, my young friend, your thoughts were doubtless far away, amid the peaceful scenes and sacred memories of home," answered the General, as his eyes rested upon the unfinished letter spread out before the young officer, "But I have more stirring things for you to occupy your thoughts with—indeed, I have work, and dangerous work for you to do. The enemy are evidently preparing for some movement, and I have reason to believe that it will be a retrograde one. These late rains, as you know, have swollen the Susquehanna to such a degree as to prevent completely its successful passage, and, if they can be cut off from the Potomac, it is evident they must all fall into our hands like overripe apples. For this, however, we dare scarce hope—their generals are too crafty, and as alive to the facts as we are. I fully believe, therefore, that they will attempt to recross the Potomac before it becomes impossible, and thus will the benefits which their own fool-hardiness has thrown within our grasp be again snatched from our eager clutch."

"My scouts have brought information to that effect already, but it is vague and unsatisfactory. I now come to ask you if you will set your life upon the venture.—It is hazardous. I seek not to conceal its danger; but you are, if I mistake not, a Marylander—you have a perfect knowledge of the country hereabouts, and more, you have my complete confidence—and it is now the time for you to show your loyalty, and to do a service to our beloved land that will cover your name with immortal fame."

"And this information, where is it to be obtained, General?"

"In the enemy's camp."

"Do you forget that were I even to succeed in penetrating into the enemy's lines in this uniform, that I should never return to report my acquired knowledge—in short, that certain detection would ensue, and a lingering prison-life follow?" asked the young officer, pointing to the Federal uniform which he bore so proudly, and which became so well his noble form.

"But it is not in that uniform that I would have you go. You must be disguised."

"And act the part of a spy!" exclaimed Frank, while the hot blood mantled his fine features.

"Just so" answered the General, "it is no time to mince words. It is the part of a spy I wish you to act. If caught it is death on the gibbet—but if successful it is the work of a patriot. Nay, I hold out no offers of rich rewards; I speak not of increased rank—for well I know that you need no such incentives."

"We have a vigilant and mendacious foe to compete with—sons who seek to murder their own fatherland, and against such attempts and against such a foe all means are justifiable, so that they lead to good."

"But I will not urge you further. I have told you of the danger of the enterprise, and of the immense benefits that may redound to our glorious land from it. Of bloodshed saved of the nearer termination of this struggle which has well-nigh subverted half the world, I leave you to decide. Take time—I give you ten minutes to decide."

"But, General!"

"You then refuse!"
