CONCORD

GRAPE VINES.

WE WERE AMONG THE FIRST TO secure this INVALUABLE GRAPE, and have fruited it for five years. We obtained our original vine from Mr. BIELL who originated it. The Pittsburgh Horticultural Society in 1858 awarded us a diploma for its exhibition, and the Allegheny County Agricultural Society, in 1860, a premium for it as "the BEST new seedling grape, in all respects superior to the Isabella."

Our stock of Vines is unequalled anywhere, which we offer at 25 cents each, $2.50 per dozen; $12.50 per 100, $100 per 1,000. Small vines at less prices.

We can furnish a few extra large vines at from 50 cents to $1 each.

DAILY POST.

CONTRACTORS vs. THE PEOPLE.

Speech of Prof. Mason of New York, delivered in Connecticut.

He commenced by saying that we had fallen on times of great peculiarity. In peaceful times the minor associations appear almost lost in the movements of society. A civil war and its causes have resolved us into one class of citizens. As such we all appear here to-night, to consider what may be done to give stability and permanence to the deeply disturbed and deeply threatened institutions of government. We are now sharply divided into two political parties. Those parties, in ordinary times, would be the ins and the outs near the coming of an election. But at this time we are nearly resolved, and shall be soon quite resolved into two classes, the one paying taxes and the other consuming them. (Applause.) We hope that, although 50,000 new officers have been created by this administration, the time can never come when they or their successors will constitute the voting majority. This division will constitute us the aristocratic and Democratic parties, and it becomes us, as Democrats, to stand together upon a broad platform, holding in communion all that vote the Democratic ticket, when the day of election comes, and making our issues not among ourselves, but between ourselves and the consumers of taxes. For the next two years we should not quarrel with any man who votes the Democratic ticket. (Cheers.) This war was begun by parties who had great advantage against society. There was a great accumulation of men who could be made soldiers, and a vast accumulation of wealth to be consumed by soldiers both North and South.—This is the material history of war in all countries differing widely in climate. In 1816, at the fall of Napoleon, the civilized world was poor and bloody, and was ready for peace. The men of science and art, who had hid themselves from the scenes of war to investigate nature and apply her laws, came forth—Watt, with his engine; Arkwright, with his spinning and weaving machinery; Whitney, with his cotton gin; and a thousand other new arts, with their various appliances, which in forty years doubled the population of the civilized world and four-folded their enjoyments. At the end of forty years a rich and populous world was again ripe for war, and the ability to have war drew us, with other nations, into the vortex.—In the natural history of war the time comes when, through waste of life and exhaustion of wealth and disgust with the frauds of contractors, which have stained the history of every war on earth, all men become prepared for peace, and points of honor are easily settled. Some fancy that the end of our war is near, others dread the thought of its termination, and hence, in the variety of views growing out of a variety of tempers, and interests in this matter, men equally honest differ as to the time and mode of terminating this war. Contractors favor the Kilkenny plan, office holders are patient under delay (laughter,) but the great body of citizens are seriously inquiring how the effusion of blood may be checked, while the Union and the Constitution shall be preserved, and how the debt shall be paid.—Already the cost of this war surpasses that of any other war on earth. The interest of our debt exceeds that of England, and if a large part is not paid by the wealth that will be found in the hands of contractors at the close of the conflict there is great fear that it will not be paid at all. ("That's so!") Among a free people, accustomed to elect their rulers and change their laws, the time comes in the progress of unsuccessful war, when armies can no longer be enlisted.

An Ohio farmer, sitting in a country tavern, saw the drafting officer and his file of soldiers, guarding the draft-box, arrive at the door of the hotel. "What have you there?" said the farmer. "The draft-box," was the reply. "And why these soldiers?" "To protect it." "You may send your soldiers to fight the enemy," said the farmer; "we won't hurt your box. To-morrow you may place it on that table and draw out the names and we will obey. We will set the ballot-box on the other end of the table, and when we draw out you and your employers will obey, for an administration must so conduct the war as to command the patriotism of farmers and mechanics, or else stop the war or stop these people voting. (Cheers.) For no people can vote and be conscripted for any considerable length of time, anyhow."

These, however, are the feelings of the rank and file, who fight in the front and receive the smallest pay. (Laughter.)—Another feeling animates those who consume taxes in larger sums, and if ever any war fell justly under the suspicion of being conducted in the interest of men holding office, this is that war. History has no record of an equal consumption of wealth and life to so little purpose. (Great cheering.) The signs of earnestness are few, while the signs of expensiveness are great beyond a parallel. Was the administration in earnest to be at Richmond when it removed McClellan? Was Banks in earnest to clear the Mississippi, or was he rather like the countryman whose mill-dam was carried off by the first shower, and who apologized for the failure by saying he only built it for an experiment to see how high the water would rise?—(Laughter.) But, be the fortunes or the fates of the war what they may, it moves by laws that cannot vary, toward extermination, and that will bring us to a close. John Quincy Adams foreshadowed this war with prophetic satisfaction as far back as the admission of Arkansas, and did so because, he said, "the war would push slavery into the Gulf of Mexico." His son, at Baxter Hall, mindful of his father's idiosyncracy, said, "it was well understood that Mr. Lincoln's election was to put an end to slavery in the Southern States in some way or other. A way was to be found to break through the Constitution either by Abolition aggression, John Brown raid, or a proclamation." John Brown burnt the first powder in this war. (Great applause.) The fire-eaters were delighted with the occasion, the New England office-seekers prohibiting the new administration from making any terms with the border States. To make their folly complete, the South was invaded with 75,000 men, instead of three hundred thousand; and the empire which Scott predicted is nearly accomplished. The acts of Congress pointing to abitrary power have left us still the ballot-box.—Fear to encroach too rapidly on the liberty-loving and law-abiding temper of the people has restrained them in this manner, and therefore it becomes us to marshal the Democratic host to the elections until the only party having either the wish or ability to restore the Union and preserve the Constitution shall guide the destinies of the United States. (Cheers.)

Stirring Appeal in Behalf of the Sufferers in Ireland.

The executive board of the Irish relief committee of New York have issued a stirring appeal to the people of the United States for prompt aid in behalf of the starving people of Ireland. After referring to the repeated failure of the crops in isolated districts of Ireland, the address proceeds as follows:

What was before limited to certain districts now extends over the whole island, involving in one general calamity richly cultivated and prosperous parts of the country, where want had been previously unknown. "Hundreds of families would have starved," says a gentleman writing to a member of the committee, "had it not been for the timely aid you sent us." There is every indication that a famine is impending, which will be more extensive than that which occured in Ireland in the years 1846 and 1847, when over 20,000 human beings are estimated to have died from starvation. The famine during that period was owing mainly to the failure of the potatoe crop; but, as other crops were luxuriant, there were many districts where the famine was unfelt; but at the present period every crop has failed, and there is no part of the country which can be said to be exempt from causes which have been general in their effect.

Our Relations with Great Britain.

A special Washington dispatch to the New York Tribune, says:

Our relations with Great Britain are considered by those who are conversant with them extremely delicate. The correspondence between Earl Russell and Minister Adams with relation to the fitting out and sailing of the pirate Alabama, contained in the English Blue Book, but not yet published in this country, and the correspondence still going on touching the construction and equipment in British waters of other piratical vessels, with Bull in a tone which is unfriendly, if not menacing and provocative of war. Russell plants himself on the strict letter of the statute applicable to the case, refers our government to that statute, and in effect refuses to take steps to remedy the grievance complained of. The matter has recently been seriously discussed in the Cabinet.

Cause of Prince Alfred's Illness.

Prince Alfred's illness, according to the Paris correspondent of the Montreal Herald, is declared by the highest Greek authority in that city to have been caused simply and solely by the intensity of his grief and indignation at being prevented from accepting the crown the Greeks have offered him with such wonderful unanimity. Such a proof of affection from the descendants of the heroic artist nation of the old world might well touch the heart and fire the imagination of a youth of eighteen; and it is said by those who can scarcely be mistaken in the matter that the young Prince has given his heart unreservedly to the people and the country that have so unreservedly offered themselves to him. Such has been the bitterness of the young Prince's disappointment that it was feared that the distress and excitement would bring on brain fever. Happily the crisis seems now to be passed; but the Greeks, when they learn the real cause of the illness of their favorite, will not be likely to abate their determination one jot to have him for their king. As far as I can learn, the probability seems to be that the Provisional Government of the Parliament at Athens, will, ere long, appoint a Ministry to govern the country in the name of King "Alphredos," until the latter attains his majority, when they will make a formal offer of the crown to the elect of the nation, who, they believe, will then accept the offer on his own responsibility.

A Female Drug Store.

On Friday evening last an important seizure of contraband goods and arrest of persons having them in possession, was made at Cincinnati on board the Alice Dean, just as she was about to leave for Memphis. The parties arrested were Mrs. Moon, mother-in-law, and Mrs. Jenny Moon, sister-in-law of Judge James Clark, of Hamilton, Ohio. When the ladies were confronted by the officer, and charged with bearing letters and contraband goods to the rebels, they sternly denied it, saying that this was all prejudice and spite against them, but the officer told them they would have to disgorge. Finding there was no alternative, the young lady collapsed, and delivered her precious charge. She had concealed upon her person from twenty-five to fifty letters, addressed to sundry colonels, captains, majors, &c., in the rebel army, and in a huge bustle, or sack, fastened to her person, she had forty bottles of morphine, seven pounds of opium, and a quantity of camphor, all of which was taken possession of in the name of "Uncle Sam."—The ladies, together with the correspondence, were handed over to the custody of the military authorities.

The Kansas Congressman.

Some time before the adjournment of the last Congress Hon. Martin F. Conway, representative from Kansas, received resolutions, passed by the Legislature of his State, strongly condemnatory of his course in the House. Mr. Conway returned the resolutions to the Secretary of State, with the expression of his "most profound contempt," and closed his letter by saying: "I shall ask the people, in their next election, to saw whether I am a traitor or not; and in the meantime I spit upon the resolutions."

Jeff. Davis Going Bl

A correspondent of the Money Advertiser, writing from Richmond the 21ts ult., says that President Davis has been confined to his house two weeks, and is a great sufferer. Abscess has been formed on his temple at to his sound eye, and it is feared will lose the sight of that eye also.

PITTSBURGH PRODUCE MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE DAILY POST.
Thursday, April 9th, 1863.

Remarks—We have another change to notice in the weather; it is again pleasant for out-door transactions. Business also exhibited a slight improvement; country merchants are beginning to come to town in large numbers. A few days of the present weather would help matters considerably in the way of operations. Money matters present no change worthy of notice, and seem to be as unsettled as they can be. Groceries—There is a good trade going on in this article. Prices are not so firm as they were a few days ago, Sugar being from ¼ to ½c lower; Molasses 1@2c per gallon lower; Coffee ½@¾c lower for Rio. The rates here are low as compared with those of the Eastern cities. The stock in this market is not heavy, but the receipts are on the increase. Flour—This article seems to be pretty much neglected, the demand being limited and sales likewise. We never witnessed less disposition to operate than prevails at present, and whilst other branches of produce are being disposed of, this one alone seems to be left out in the cold. The news, both East and West, represents a declining market. Probably our flour dealers don't read the Eastern papers. Grain remains firm. Oats have further advanced, under an active demand. One of our large dealers has furnished the Government with 80,000 bushels; this is one of the secrets of the present high prices. Corn is also looking to an advance, as the stock in first hands is quite light. Bacon was never in better demand than at present. The daily sales in the aggregate are large, and the present stock will hold out very long at the way the article is being disposed of.

Flour—The market during the week has been dull and inactive, the sales being few and parties taking far more of a retail than a wholesale trade. Whilst the markets East and West have declined, our market remains nominally as before. We quote: Superfine, $5@5 25; Extra, $5@5 50; Extra Family, $6@6 25; choice, $7 25@8. The stock on hand is not large, for small lots.

Bacon—The demand continues active; there is a large business doing daily. The stock in first hands is not large. Among the sales we notice 20,000 lbs Plain Hams, 9¼c; 20,000 lbs shoulders, 6c; 10,000 lbs S C Hams, 10c; 10,000 lbs Plain, 8½c; 5,000 lbs sides, 7¾c; 10,000 lbs shoulders, 6c; 32,000 lbs shoulders, 6c; sides, 7¾c.

Lard—Market steady; sales 20 tierces City Leaf at 11c; sales of country at 10@10¼c.

Mess Pork—Sales 10 bbls at $15 50@16.

Lard Oil—Sales 10 bbls No. 1 at 95c; New held at $1.

Dried Beef—Demand improving; sales 1000 lbs S C, 11¾@12c; 2000 lbs Plain, 10¼@10½c.

Grain—The demand for the leading article continues brisk. Oats are inquired for and are firm at 70@72c, first hands; it takes a large amount to keep the Government supplied. Corn in good demand; sales at 85@90c. Wheat steady, sales of red, $1 30@1 35; white, $1 40@1 45. Barley, not inquired for; prices nominal. Rye in good request at 95@$1.

Sugar—Sales of 25 hhds Orleans at 12½c, 15 do Porto Rico, 12c; 20 bbls Crushed, 16c; 15 do coffee 14½c; 20 do coffee T, 14½c.

Molasses—Sales of 25 bbls Orleans at 55c

Syrup—Sales of 25 bbls at 60c.

Coffee—Sales 40 sacks Rio at 33¾c.

Melt.—Market steady; sales of 200 bbls at $1 75 ⅌ bbl.

Rice—Sales 15 tierces at 8½c

Fish—Firm and in good demand; sales 20 bbls No. 1 Mackerel, $5; 10 bbls No. 2, $10; 40 half bbls do, $3 37; 20 bbls No. 3, medium, $7; 30 half bbls do, $4; 10 bbls large No. 3, $9 50; 20 bbls Halifax Herrings, $8.

New York Cattle Market.

Tribune's Report.

MONDAY, April 6.—The market opened this morning in Forty-fourth street, with about 3,700 bullocks on sale, and a much greater proportion of them good, fair quality than last week, but, for balance this there was a large number of the veriest scallawags we have seen for a long time. Yet there are but very few cattle selling at less than 10c per pound for the estimated net weight—indeed none that are fit for any decent butcher, and there are a great many selling at 12c per pound, and a considerable number still higher. Several droves of first-class bullocks will average 11½@12c per pound upon the owner's estimate of net weight. Droves of good fair Illinois steers, such as average 72 cwt net, have been sold wholesale at full 11c per pound
