IMPORTANT FACTS.

DR. LEIDY'S Sarsaparilla Blood Pills are applicable in all cases, whether for Purgatives or Purification. They possess all the boasted virtues of other pills, and are additionally efficacious, containing Sarsaparilla in their composition, which is not contained in any other pills in existence. They are also different from other pills in composition, being purely vegetable, and can be employed at all times, without any danger, and requiring no restraint from occupation or usual course of living.

Notwithstanding Dr. Leidy never pretended his Blood Pills would cure all diseases, yet it is not saying too much of them, from the innumerable cures performed by them in every variety and form of disease (certificates of many of which have been published from persons of all denominations, physicians, clergymen, and others) that they seem to be almost universal in their effect; and persons using them for whatever sickness or disease, may rest assured that they will be found more efficacious than any other pills in existence.

From the known reputation of Dr. Leidy's Blood Pill, it is necessary to remind the public where they can at all times procure the genuine, as it is attempted to impose other pills, called the 'Blood Pills' upon the public on the reputation of Dr. Leidy's. ☞ Be particular and ask for Dr. Leidy's Sarsaparilla Blood Pills and see that the name of N B. Leidy is contained on two sides of each box, (the boxes being of paper, and oblong, square shape, surrounded by a yellow and black label.

PRICE—25 cents a Box.

Prepared only, and sold wholesale and retail, at Dr. Leidy's Health Emporium, 191 North Second street, below Vine, Philadelphia, and by B. A. FAHNESTOCK & CO., corner of Wood and Sixth streets, Agents for Pittsburgh. jy 12—1y

DENNING'S FIRE PROOF IRON CHESTS.
PITTSBURGH, Oct. 22, 1842.

J Denning: On Friday, the 30th of last month, about 9 o'clock at night, the Planing, Grooving, and Sash Manufactory, owned by Gay, Dilworth & Co., with a large quantity of dressed and undressed lumber, was all consumed by fire.

The Iron Safe which I bought of you some time back was in the most exposed situation during the fire, and was entirely red hot. I am pleased to inform you it was opened at the close of the fire, and all books, papers, &c., saved;—this is the best recommendation I can give of the utility of your safes.

THE PHILADELPHIA RIOTS.

The Philadelphia Ledger, of Monday, contains six columns of testimony taken on Friday and Saturday before Judge Jones, relative to the riots. The following, from Col. Bradford, was fully sustained by the other witnesses:—

Col. Bradford—I was at the time of the commotion and still am, the aid to Gen. Cadwalader. On Saturday evening we left with a detachment from the brigade, arrived at half past 5; the General marched it down and halted in front of the church; we found the Sheriff with a posse. The General requested the citizens to retire; if they had any grievance he would sign a petition for a town meeting to ask the Governor for an assession of the Legislature, to amend the laws they had helped to make the laws, and must support them; he hoped they would not disgrace themselves by disobeying the laws. In return for this we received groans and two bottles, one struck me on the breast and another the General on the left; the Sheriff followed the General upon horseback, several hold of the horse by the bridle, and with my sword put them aside, and endeavored to point out all I could mark for the authorities; Gen. Cadwalader pursued this course until he got the street cleared to Second and Queen by that means he then returned to Third and Queen; the General undertook to speak, but the groaned him down; he said if they did not leave the world fire; they said "fire and be d——d," he waited for a few minutes to see if they would retire; they rushed still stronger upon the military, and Col. Pleasanton received and gave the order to fire; Capt. Scott's first platoon brought their pieces to a level while Col. Pleasanton was giving the order, Gen. Cadwalader was telling the mob he would fire, by the God who made him, if they did not retire; by this time Gen. Cadwalader's horse was knocked near the guns of Capt. Scotts men, and he did not give the order to fire. At this time a man stepped forward and said "don't you fire," whether addressed to the General, Colonel Pleasanton, I don't know; General Cadwalader had then arrested; I understood this was Charles Naylor. The Sheriff's posse behaved extremely well; stood to their posts; on Sunday morning at 10 o'clock I reported to the General's head quarters; during the course of the day the General received various reports; at about 12 Judge Parsons came to Gen Cadwalader's house, and the Judge afterwards proceeded to give the prisoners a hearing at the church; about that time Gen Cadwalader received by an orderly, an account that if Capt Callahan was not relieved they would all be overcome and butchered alive; the orderly was told to report that the General would relieve him as soon as the troops assembled; Gen. C. afterwards learned that the orderly could not reach his commanding officer; Gen. C. afterwards learned that Capt. Callahan had given up the church to the citizens and marched out, and that one of the Greens was killed; in the afternoon Gen. C. went to head quarters; there reports was made the mob were waiting for night to burn the church; Gen C. was ordered to St. Philip de Neri church.

At Third and Queen a number of persons seemed to form across the street as we approached they stepped aside and groaned; we proceeded to the front of the church; as we halted, Gen Cadwalader ordered Col. Pleasanton to throw out sentinels, and rode up and requested the citizens to retire; they said "we'll soon take your d——d nice coat off;" they seized a sentinel's gun; another came up and cocked his gun, and said if he did not release it he'd fire; they did release it; Capt Scott was ordered to clear Queen street, from Second to Front; Captain Scott came out into the street and cleared Queen street from the church to Second street; he said his command was not strong enough, and Gen Cadwalader ordered Capt Hill to assist Capt Scott. In a few minutes Mr Grover came out, and others, from the church, and Gen Cadwalader passed them down Queen street to Second, as they came out some said "General, we hope you'll have a quiet night;" the mob was very dense outside; the military were in a solid body, facing the mob at a shoulder arms; the mob were very insolent pointing out those they knew; the military made no reply.

I had turned my horse to go towards the General, when my horse was struck in the rump, and immediately a volley of brickbats flew all around; one hit Captain Scott's and Capt Hill's company fell; I felt the ribs of Sergeant Stair, of the Greys, and one on the head of another; both were disabled. At this moment I saw Capt Hill out in the mob, and in a moment Capt Hill disappeared; there was a man in a check shirt had been leading him towards the mob; the men came to a present; they never fired a musket until Capt Hill was down; they killed four the man with a check shirt was killed; I saw a man trying to wrench the musket from the hands of a Cadwalader Grey; the Grey told him to desist, or he would fire, and he received for answer, "fire and be d——d." At that moment the Grey jerked his musket so as to come accidentally by the side of the man's cheek, when he pulled a trigger, and when the smoke cleared off, I saw the man lying on the ground, with half of his face shot off; I was mounted, was above the rest, and could see distinctly what occurred.

Gen Cadwalader then said, cease firing; people were now running in every direction; the firing and the order seemed to be simultaneous; the dead were carried off; I am certain no firing was done until Sergeant Stair and Capt Hill were down; then Colonel Pleasanton arranged his field pieces in battery position; Gen Cadwalader ordered him to take position at Second and Queen; the pieces were loaded with canister; all was quiet until 9; then there was a fire at Second and Queen from Front and Queen; by this no one was killed; it was fired three times; Capt Scott was shot from the north side of Queen street, from above; the shot went downwards; he was taken to the hospital and soon after Col Pleasanton was brought in; then Gen. Cadwalader took command of the artillery; we learned that they fired with a slow match, and loaded under cover; they then ceased firing and commenced beating a tin kettle, after a while they came up with many wheels with their piece, and after a while a volley of all sorts of things, bottles, chairs, nails, &c., fell in all directions; it was very dark; don't know that Gen. Capt Mallory and a boy with him then fired their gun alone twice; Capt Snyder's Washington Cavalry of Bustleton, came on the ground, and charged the insurgents, and took their piece and spiked it; they then received another fire, and Capt Snyder charged that piece and captured it; from authentic information we received, we have reason to believe that the insurgents were 250 at different points; one computed them at 120, all told; there were 20 or 30 killed; the wounded I can't say. I was constantly with the military all Sunday night, but the greater part of the city was astonished to perceive the coolness with which Gen. Cadwalader was received, and the influence which he appealed to the people; I heard Gen. Cadwalader say, it is useless for us to take prisoners; those who are taken are released and surely we must take no prisoners, but kill all; the words "fire" were confined to those caught firing upon the military, for when the General gave orders to Capt Snyder's troop to capture a piece of artillery, he directed him to cut every man down who was found managing the guns near the military, when my horse was wounded I cut the hand of the man who seized him, and had him put in custody in the church; he was released the next morning.

The testimony of Sheriff M'Michael was very full and satisfactory, showing that he had used every reasonable means to quiet the multitude before the military was called out to assist him. His evidence went to prove that the military were driven to the mob, because it was the only power that could not be successfully resisted. In the course of the examination evidence was adduced which caused the arrest of Edwin Haverford, and Washington Conrad, who were held to bail and committed for their appearance and testimony. F. Springer, carpenter, Queen street, Southwark, a member of the present Grand Jury, was brought into
