NOTICE TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.—The Public Spring Sales of Real Estate at Rochester are now closed, and the BUILDING SEASON has fairly commenced. Every citizen of Rochester is busily employed. Even thirty or forty new families, who have become citizens the present Spring, find constant employment; and in a few days a hundred families more will be required to carry on the work of the present season.
The Car Building Establishment is now near completion, and will be in full operation in June. Several Cars will be ready for delivery, by contract, the 1st of July 1855.
Two or three new churches, in Rochester, will be contracted for immediately, and numerous other improvements will be commenced, requiring a great amount of mechanical and other labor independent of the Car Establishment, which will probably employ from one to two hundred.
A prominent brickmaker from Pittsburgh has just purchased nine large lots, and contracted to make upon them forthwith 500,000 bricks. Two gangs of hands commence work the present week, besides the other yards heretofore established in the neighborhood.
Our Stone Quarries are already alive with workmen, and the road leading to them lined with teams.
Lumber is becoming abundant and cheap, and tenements will soon spring up to relieve some of our houses, which now have five families, four families, three families, and dozens of them two families each.
Any who did not buy cheap lots at the four public sales last season, or the four public sales the present spring, can still secure good bargains at private sale by calling on the subscriber in Rochester. TERMS—One-third down, one-third in one year and one-third in two years.
M. T. C. GOULD
P. S.—A few lots can yet be had at $50 to $100 each, if applied for before the 25th May. These lots are twice as large as usual city lots, viz. 40 feet by 125, and the price only from $1.50 to $2.50 per foot front. The present reserved homestead and magnificent profit of Ovid Pinney, four acres in the centre of the borough of Rochester; also, the beautiful twenty acres, building, orchard, &c., of F. Reno, can be bought through the subscriber at great bargains, and there are not two such bargains within a hundred miles. G.

PITTSBURGH AGENCY OF THE ÆTNA INSURANCE COMPANY, of Hartford, Conn. Chartered 1819. Paid up Cash Capital, $500,000, with large surplus securely invested. Semi-annual dividend of 8 per cent., July 1, 1855.
This Company have been doing an insurance business nearly a half century—have paid out for property destroyed by fire under its policies, more than Fifteen Millions of Dollars since they commenced business. Its annual receipts and present assets (which are below) give indemnity to each policy-holder of more than two millions of dollars. A policy of insurance is no better than brown paper, unless it is in a Company that will pay in case of loss. It becomes necessary, therefore, that you know something of the character and solvency of the institution before you take a policy. Its age, experience, cash capital—its uninterrupted success for thirty-six years—its uniform course of honorable dealing—places the Ætna Insurance Company among the first and most solvent institutions of the country. Its premiums are cash. No premium notes taken—no assessments made on policy holders—but all is CASH. If you meet with a loss, make up your proofs, and in sixty days call and get your money. This is the way we have done business for nearly forty years.
They continue to make insurance on Country Stores, Mills Factories, Dwellings, Barns, and all descriptions of property in town or country, at fair rates. Your attention is invited to the following low rates on Country Dwellings, or the whole term of one, three, or five years.

THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.—Established August 4th, 1821. Weekly edition between 80,000 and 90,000.
In issuing their Prospectus for 1856, the proprietors of the Post take it for granted that the public are already tolerably well acquainted with the character of a paper that has grown strong during the storms and sunshine of THIRTY-FOUR YEARS. Their object always has been, as it remains to be, to publish a weekly paper for the family circle, which shall not only amuse, but also instruct and improve, those who may read it. To accomplish this object, the best articles are selected or condensed from foreign and domestic periodicals, and original articles of an instructive character procured, when possible.
Letters from Foreign Lands; the most interesting portions of the Weekly News of the World; Sketches of Life, Adventure and Character; Selected and Original Articles upon Agriculture; Account of the Produce and Stock Markets, and a Bank Note List, are included among the solid information to be constantly found in the Post.
But the mind requires a wider range—it has faculties which delight in the humorous and lively, the imaginative and poetical. These faculties also must have their appropriate food, else they become enfeebled, and, as a consequence, the intellect becomes narrow and one-sided, and is not able to take an enlarged and generous view of human nature and its destiny. To satisfy these heaven-implanted cravings of our mental being, we devote a fair proportion of the Post to FICTION, POETRY and HUMOR.
Among our contributors in the first two of the above Departments, are several of the most gifted writers in the land. We also draw freely for Fiction and Poetry upon the best periodicals in this country and Great Britain. We design commencing a New Story by Mrs. SOUTHWORTH, author of "The Deserted Wife," "Miriam," &c., in our first paper of January next.
ENGRAVINGS, illustrative of important places and scenes, of Agricultural and other new Inventions, with others of a Humorous, though refined character, are also freely given.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.
This is one of the few large papers filled with life and thought, instead of lumbering trash. Its management is marked by liberality, courtesy, ability and tact. It employs the best literary talent, and spares no pains or expense. As a family paper, one of literary and general intelligence, we cordially recommend it.—Cayuga Chief, Auburn, N. Y.
Our readers may rely upon it, that Deacon & Peterson will be as good as their word. So far as we can judge by years of observation, these publishers do rather more than they promise; and their paper is edited with very marked ability. It is singularly free from silly sentimentalism and bluster, but is of a healthy tone on all subjects; always moderate in language, but always mildly advocating the right. We find it one of the most generally attractive papers in our exchange.—Saturday Visiter, Pittsburgh, Pa.
It is the best literary and family paper in the Union.—Rock Islander, Rock Island, Ill.
We have heretofore spoken in high terms of the merits of the Post, as one of the best papers on our exchange list, and we regard it as one of the best literary papers to be found anywhere. Its editorials are written with ability, and take a liberal, independent and comprehensive view of men and things.—Star and Advertiser, Wrightsville, Pa.
It is deservedly one of the most popular public journals in the United States, combining as it does, in a literary point of view, all the interest of the best magazines, with a vast amount of general intelligence.—Republican, Litchfield, Ct.

Joseph White's Carriage Repository.
JOSEPH WHITE, now carrying on business in his spacious premises, (now lately enlarged,) on the Pittsburgh and Greensburg Turnpike, near the Two Mile Run, between Pittsburgh and Lawrenceville, respectfully invites the public to inspect his stock of CARRIAGES, BUGGIES, &c. And he particularly informs gentlemen purchasers, that one price only is made.
Fourteen years' experience in the business enables him to place before his patrons the same choice collection of Carriages which, so many years past it has been his particular department to select, from the various and most talented Eastern manufacturers. The success of his new system is complete—the economy of his arrangements will supply the best and most fashionable manufactures at moderate prices.
Unencumbered by those heavy expenses, which the mania for decorating houses of business has heaped upon the price of goods, (owing to large rents,) JOSEPH WHITE will sell, on ready money only, at much less than the usual prices.
☞ Carriages repaired in the best manner, with despatch. mh6daw

PITTSBURGH POST.

THURSDAY MORNING .... DECEMBER 6.

One of General Jackson's Soldiers Condemned for Murder.

HIS SPEECH BEFORE SENTENCE.

An interesting murder trial took place in Burlington, Iowa, in November last. The accused was a man named John J. Jones, seventy-three years of age. He had been a soldier under General Jackson, and was with the old hero in several of his campaigns against the Indians.

Jones was charged with murdering Horatio W. M'Cardle, a neighbor, some fifteen years ago. He made his escape, and was not heard of until a short time before his arrest. Capital punishment having been abolished in Iowa, the prisoner was sentenced to hard labor in the penitentiary during the remainder of his life.

Jones, through his attorney, when asked if he had anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced, submitted the following statement:

"May it please the Honorable Court:

"I am an old man, fast tottering to the grave. The frosts of seventy-three winters—though they have not whitened my brow, have wrinkled my face, and chilled my heart with many sorrows. Mine has been a chequered life. And now, when about to be separated from my fellows, I may give a truthful version of the past.

"I had a family and a home—a rude home, it is true, and a plain and humble family—but they were my all. The deceased robbed me of the one and invaded the sanctity of the other. Two small sons—a lovely daughter and a wife—a cherished wife.

"On returning to that home, the day of the fatal deed, I learned the certainty of the maddening truth, and hastened to the field, my rifle still in hand. I know not why I went. I had no fixed design. He met me with a club—I shot him. And though I claim not to have acted in defence, I do assert that there was mutual combat. You know the rest. I fled—my family followed. But for the fifteen years I have lived at Lockland I made no secret of the deed I had done.

"Now time has done its work. The government itself has changed. New laws are passed and old ones repealed—and those who then surrounded me have mostly passed away. A different people are in the land—a different code of morals now prevails. I drank liquor, it is said, and true it is I drank it. Not to have done so then would have been the objection. Men in high station leaned upon the dram-shop for support. To treat one's fellow to the poisoning cup was deemed proof positive of genteel training.

"I may not be held responsible alone for the vices of society—it is enough that I have been their victim. Those days are past, and that loved one is gone—borne down with trouble, she sank into an early grave. That lovely daughter is now a hopeless cripple, wearing a haggard face. Of those two boys—who should have been the prop of my old age—the one is gone to join his injured mother, as witnesses against the dead destroyer of their peace—the other—and my heart sinks within me when I say it—lives—but not to me—with an ear deaf to my calamity, he comes not near me! But I forgive.

"To this honorable court, the jury, and to the attorneys and officers thereof, and to the people of this community, I return my humble thanks for their impartial hearing.

"I have never been a criminal from choice, but rather the creature of circumstances, beneath the weight of which far better men than me have sunk. I may have been too jealous of mine honor, but never have but once proved faithless to my trust. When my country's rights were invaded, I answered them, and so I did mine honor. With General Jackson in all his Creek campaigns I battled for my country and its laws. At the FAST in the WILDERNESS I was there; at that of acorns I was there; at Ennefa and Taledega I was there; and when the shouts of victory drowned the cries of the dying at the battle of Horse Shoe, in the front ranks of my country, I was there; and the name of him whom we now call John J. Jones was another word for deeds of daring.

"These are of the past. A long life is nearly spent—the scene has changed; but He above, who reads the human heart, is, further than the formal sentence of the law, competent to judge me."

Judge Lowe, says the Burlington Telegraph of the 28th ult., then proceeded to sentence the prisoner:

"The court cannot accept your statement as a valid or sufficient reason in law to arrest the uplifted arm of justice, and therefore it remains for the court to perform the last crowning act of your trial, by proclaiming the sentence of the law.

"Your great age, having outlived your three-score and ten years—the fact that you long resided near my native spot in Ohio, and still more important fact, that you have honorably served your country, as I am informed, in the capacity of a soldier under Gen. Jackson, make the performance of the duty one of great poignance and severity on the part of this court. And we would willingly have been spared the same, for the honor of your weight of years—for the honor of that patriotism, at whose altars you bravely served in the flower of your manhood; and still more for the greater honor of that common humanity, which in later life you should have observed towards that inoffensive neighbor of yours, for whose murder you now stand convicted.

"It is painful to reflect, in reviewing the evidence for and against you, the mind can rest on no one fact or circumstance that would seem to offer the slightest apology or palliation for your offence. The story of your crime is a short one, and may be briefly told thus; You had set up some kind of a claim to land occupied by Mr. McCardle, upon which he had raised a crop, and was engaged in gathering the same for himself and family. Instead of testing your claim in the peaceful mode prescribed by law, you insisted upon reaping where you had not sown. And you said to McCardle that if he should take any more corn from his field, that you would shoot him. McCardle, believing himself entitled to the fruits of his own labor, persisted. You, brooding over that fatal menace a few days, walked deliberately into his field with your gun, and executed your fell purpose, by sending a bullet to his heart in the presence of his son."

"McCardle went down to the grave, and you, a guilty felon, to parts unknown. Fifteen years have since rolled away, and a mysterious Providence turns you up, and brings you within the jurisdiction of that law, whose majesty you have outraged.

"You have been tried and pronounced guilty of the highest grade of homicide. And to grant you immunity under these circumstances, from the legal consequences of your crime, would cause McCardle to turn in his grave. The law under which you committed the deed, visits your crime with the penalty of death. Since which, the legislature has materially changed the law of murder—which fact, taken in connection with the peculiar construction given this law by the Supreme Court, makes it more than doubtful whether this court has the power, under the indictment and form of the verdict, to claim life as the forfeit of your crime, and therefore, giving you the benefit of this doubt, I shall limit your punishment to hard labor in the penitentiary during the remainder of your life on earth."

THE POOR BOYS OF FRANCE.—An American woman in Paris writes to the New York Tribune as follows:—

On the Place du Trone we passed a regiment of soldiers coming in from Vincennes. Many of these were beardless, soft cheeked boys, learning their first steps to Sebastopol. It is sad to see those peasant youth, wearing still the ruddy brown brought from their quiet homes fitted into soldier gear with almost a certain doom in this war. The conscription is well called the peasant's nightmare. The rich may buy off their sons, but the poor have no hope but in the Virgin. But all this merits treatment from a more graphic pen than I hold. We often meet new recruits in Paris, coming from the railway stations—so green and awkward in their uniforms, often walking tender footed in their soldier shoes, some looking up grand in their little dignity of gun and knapsack, while others seem to think of something left behind. One of those younglings came here a little while ago to bid his sister, one of the servants, adieu. He was off for the war, all flushed with pride. Now Victorine is in mourning for him. I shall never forget how she tore off her cap and held her face in her hands when she heard the news.

WASHINGTON, Monday, Dec. 3, 1855.

I think we shall hardly get a Speaker to-morrow, though the conference this evening may change the aspect of the case. The House will pretty certainly organize before adjourning on Wednesday.

In the three ballots to-day, Whitney, Valk and Bayard Clarke voted steadily with the proslavery Know Nothings for Humphrey Marshall. Fuller, of Maine, and Barclay, of Pennsylvania, selected as anti-Nebraska Democrats, voted for Richardson. Evans, the Texas Know Nothing, voted for Richardson throughout. Haven, of Buffalo, scattered. Williams and Spinner, Free Soil Democrats from our State, voted for northern men. The pro-slavery vote, all told, is from 105 to 110; leaving the Free Soil majority from four to eight. We must, therefore, triumph whenever our vote can be concentrated. I still think Banks, Pennington or Fuller, of Pennsylvania, will be chosen, but it may be a new man.

The adjournment was carried by the two pro-slavery parties, with a few hungry votes from our side. The House has yet no rules, and the yeas and nays cannot be called. Forney called not only Whitfield for Kansas, but Bird Chapman, as the delegate from Nebraska, where he is the beaten candidate. Wait a little. H. G.

[SECOND DESPATCH.]

The conference this evening at the Capitol was badly attended, the notice having been insufficient. Another will be held to-morrow night, if no Speaker should in the mean time be chosen, as is now probable. Wells, of Wisconsin, claiming to be anti-Nebraska, voted steadily for Richardson to-day. H. WASHINGTON, December 3.

It is believed that Campbell cannot be elected. He will run up to eighty votes, and that is the extent of his strength. Banks seems to be the favorite, although his vote is meagre. There are quite a number ready, I am informed, to cast their votes for him, whenever it is deemed expedient to do so. Some man whose antecedents are democratic—some man, perhaps, not now in the ring—will eventually be elected.

Marshall, with his thirty adherents, rather than see Republicanism triumphant, will throw their vote for Ort, which, together with the administration men, who number seventy-four, will not be sufficient to elect a southern or administration man.

Fuller's antecedents are not of the stripe to secure him the twelfth section men of the South. His record, they intimate, is not clear. Therefore, to harmonize these discordant elements, it will require a Hercules in political manœuvres, and he doubtless might fail.

I am just informed by a gentleman who was in attendance at the Republican caucus, which was largely attended—upwards of sixty members present, Breton, of Indiana, presiding—that a proposition was made to invite members of other parties who are desirous of effecting an organization in opposition to the present administration, and it is thought something may be accomplished, provided both parties are willing to make proper concessions. The twelfth section men are also in caucus for some purpose.

The friends of Campbell and Banks held a caucus to-night, and determined to continue balloting to-morrow without a change of programme, and on Wednesday to concentrate on Banks. The issue is, then, to be strictly sectional. Banks is a member of the Republican party, and can carry that vote. He stands prominent with the Know-Nothings North, and can unite them; and being a democrat, he is sure of the northern anti-Nebraska democratic vote. These three interests combined can poll one hundred and twenty votes, without the aid of a southern man.

On Wednesday you may expect an organization on this sectional basis, with Mr. Banks as Speaker. Such is the calculation of the party leaders to-night.

A Waggish Judge.

Judge Jake Flinn, of Cincinnati, is a bit of a wag, as the following, from the Enquirer, will show. Some time ago, Judge F.'s court was abolished by act of Legislature, but his Honor not being satisfied of the constitutionality of the act, continues to sit pro forma, until the Supreme Court have decided the case. The December term of the Criminal Court opened yesterday, in the office of the Prosecuting Attorney, Judge Flinn presiding. The officers present were the Prosecuting Attorney and his assistant; three Deputy Sheriffs, Messrs. Bellman, Thomas, and Longshore, and a Deputy Clerk, Mr. Thrasher.

Judge Flinn inquired of the Prosecuting Attorney the condition of business in the Criminal Department of the county.

Mr. Cox—I have set down a number of cases under the liquor law for to-morrow; but your Honor, being interested in these, (as counsel,) would, I suppose, decline to try them.

Judge Flinn—Of course; let there be an order made transferring them to the Common Pleas.

Mr. Cox—The next matter to which I would direct the attention of your Honor, is that, for a whole year, we have been working in this Court without a salary, and I think that an allowance might be made for the Prosecutor and his assistant.

Judge Flinn—I am disposed to do what is right in the premises. I desire to see first how the Commissioners are going to settle with the Sergeant-at-Arms. Eleven months of the year, however, have only expired, and we contemplate a settlement by the first of the year.

Mr. Cox—But I would respectfully intimate to your Honor that I cannot get my groceries on the credit of the criminal court.

Judge Flinn—You will have to get them on your face, as I have been doing for the last eleven months.

The clerk thought some extra allowance should also be made for his services, if it was only to cover current expenses at the Debolt.

Judge Flinn could take no action in this matter without a showing, brandy having risen from five to ten dollars a gallon.

Deputy Sheriff Thomas drank no brandy; but hoped not to be cut off from any generosity on the part of the court on that score.

Judge Flinn—As Tom Gallagher says, "There is a great constitutional question" involved here; I would remark, however, that this will probably be the last month at which I shall be compelled to open this court pro forma, as in case the Supreme Court do not dispose of the question relating to the jurisdiction of the Criminal Court at their coming session it will form an early subject of attention in the Legislature. It is no longer a matter of doubt that such a court must be provided. The wants of the community demand, and the rights of persons accused call for it. So far as I am concerned, personally, it is an insignificant consideration, but the principle must be passed on if any deference is paid to the wants of the community. Mr. Sheriff have the goodness to prorogue this parliament—I should say adjourn this court.

The Court was then adjourned sine die.

NEWS OF THE VICINITY.

Mr. William Wood, of Salem township, Westmoreland county, while looking along the public road, near Greensburg, on Thursday evening last, was knocked down and badly injured by a man whose evident intention was robbery. The assailant, however, did not succeed in getting any money.——The Argus states that a disgraceful riot occurred at a singing school near Greensburg, on Thursday night, in which two young men, named Henry and Isaac Willgard were dangerously stabbed with dirks,—the one through the side, and the other through the wrist. Several of the rioters were knocked down, and a scene of general confusion followed. Six of the rioters were afterwards arrested and held to bail.——A meeting to take into consideration the project of building a railroad, from Ligonier to Latrobe, on the Pennsylvania railroad, was held at the house of Philip Miller, in Ligonier, on Saturday, 1st inst. The meeting was quite large, composed of citizens from Ligonier Valley, Latrobe, and the intermediate district. Considerable enthusiasm was manifested for the success of the project, and $14,000 of stock was subscribed.

Christian Fisher, a German, who lived near the railroad depot, at Erie, committed suicide by shooting himself with a shot gun, in his kitchen, on the 25th ult. Trouble with his wife, and the free use of "schnapps," were the cause of his crime.
