Notes

-Very pleasant weather for a fer days this week.

-The sound of coal falling into the bin warns us that winter approaches. -Presbyterian sociable at Mrs

Chapins' house, Friday evening. A new and extensive lot of samples of overcoatings at McAfee's. Call and see them.

-A new sidewalk from Hall's brick building to Woodward's corner on Depot street.

-The dwelling house of James Mc-Mannus, near Daguscahonda station was destroyed by fire with its contents on Tuesday evening.

-The dissolution notice of Morgester & Jackson will be found in another column. Mr. Morgester withdraws from the firm, and Mr. Jackson continues the business.

-The bell in the Lutheran church at this place, has been cracked, and ily to town, and occupies the house now instead of a soft melodious back of Healy's store, from which sound, the bell sends forth a melody John Fannin, Jr., recently moved. between the croaping of a bull frog and that produced by a man with a cold in the head.

-Another cow loose in the court square. The commissioners passed a resolution, while Daniel Scull was Sheriff, prohibiting the pasturing of cattle in the court square, and for a time the resolution was observed. We protest against any one using this beautiful square for a pasture field. Another cow loose in the court square.

-One by one the leaves are falling. and one by one the boys of our town, who have neared the vortex of oldbatchelorism, are entering the uncertain portals of matrimonial alliance. Orderly Horton and Frank Seager are among the recent names added to the honorable list of married men. Before the cold weather sets in we shall not be surprised to hear of three or four old roosters we now think of, going the same road. We are always happy to announce marriages as misery loves company you know.
