J. W. FORNEY, Chairman.

FRANCIS P. BLAIR.

The above named old dotard has made his last and highest bid for the "republican" nomination for the Presidency. He offers to betray all the confidential intelligence with which he was even entrusted, to slander all the influential democrats who ever helped him to get rich out of the party, and to prove, as well as garbled extracts, misinterpreted documents and sheer falsehoods can do it, that all the prominent men of the party are mere Calhoun and Tyler nullifiers!!! And in his letter just published, which is his last bid for the nomination, he heaps up a big pile of meal, but not large enough to conceal the whole cat. The tail sticks out; and the whole offence of the democracy towards him is shown to be that Mr. Polk and his cabinet declined to have him longer as the editor of the democratic paper at Washington. He quotes a number of letters from Gen. Jackson, all relating to that same matter, and all showing merely that Jackson expressed his wish that Blair might still be trusted by the democracy with the position he had before occupied. But another was preferred, and Mr. Blair was forced into retirement. It is now eleven years since that event; but it appears that the old man has been nursing his vengeance ever since, and now lets loose upon the whole democratic party.

The circumstances under which the old man takes the field in this crusade of ingratitude are worth knowing. He came to the "republican" convention at Pittsburgh last February, and professed to represent a large and influential association in Baltimore. He was immediately made President of the Convention. It is now ascertained that that association in Baltimore consisted of just two persons: an old quaker merchant of that city and his confidential clerk. They constituted the association; and the association held a meeting one evening in the merchant's counting room, at which the merchant presided and the clerk acted as Secretary. It was all that were present. Resolutions were adopted, and Mr. Blair requested by them to represent the association at the Pittsburgh Convention. Such was the breadth of the constituency that has given Francis P. Blair an opportunity to come forward and execute his long delayed vengeance upon the party that trusted him, that honored him, that has enriched him, and that he now raises his inhernal hand to destroy.

The abolitionists love the treason, seize upon it with eager avidity; and the poor old man in his mental blindness thinks they will love the traitor too, and make him their candidate for President. So, just six weeks before their nominating convention meets, he write a three column letter and sends it to New York for publication. Three-fourths of his letter is taken up with a display of his own grievance in not being allowed to continue as the confidential editor of Mr. Polk's administration. The other fourth of the letter is designed to prove that because the party did not choose to support him, and minister to his avarice any longer, therefore the party is all wrong, and he alone remains to represent the true democracy. And he even hints (at what he dare not openly assert) that Gen. Jackson was an abolitionist! His old benefactor is dead and cannot brand him with infamy for his ingratitude, so he thinks he is safe. And safe he is, for none wish to hang him. None can witness with any other emotion than compassion such a shaky combination of "lean and slippered" sensility, chronic revengeance, and palsied avarice and ambition.

A HEATED TERM.—As national conventions are pretty hot places, it is evident that the month of June will be the heated term of this year in this country.

On the 2d day of June, the Democratic National Convention meets at Cincinnati

On the 12th of June, the dissenting abolition anti-Fillmore Know Nothings meet at New York

On the 17th of June, the "republican" convention meets at Philadelphia, having adjourned there from Pittsburgh.

The Fillmore and Donelson K. N's hold a national convention at New York on the 28th of June.

Gerrit Smith and six hundred other abolitionists of the extreme stripe, hold a convention in June, at Syracuse, New York.

That will make five candidates for the Presidency; and then Sam Houston is out on his own hook. We are thus to have six candidates. The Democrats one; all stripes of opposition five. There may be a few more volunteers yet.

MR. BUCHANAN.—Desperate are the efforts of the K. N's. and "Republicans" now, to prevent the nomination of Mr. Buchanan by the Cincinnati Convention. His nomination would destroy those last shadows of a chance for the opposition. But they are very poor politicians indeed, if they do not see that this betrayal of their fears of Mr. Buchanan does but add strength to his claims, and encourages his friends. It is an admission of his popularity with the masses of the people, and of the certainty of his election if nominated. And we think now that his nomination is almost assured. State after State pronounces for him in unequivocal terms, and from all parts of the Union come the opinions of the Press, that no other candidate could, at the present time, poll so large a vote as the Great Pennsylvanian.

Election in Philadelphia.

To-day, the 6th of May, a municipal election in Philadelphia takes place, when a Mayor and Councilmen are to be selected. It is easy to prophecy the entire route of the dark lantern oligarchy who have so grievously misruled our sister city for the past two years. As to the fitness of the candidates, we will quote the North American, a respectable Old Line Whig journal, which, after mentioning the Republican candidates as standing not the shadow of a chance, proceeds to say:

"The contest actually lies between the Know Nothings and the Democrats: and Whigs and conservative men generally, who desire to make their action felt, must decide between those two. The Know Nothings have adopted a ticket made up exclusively of sworn members of the lodges—apostates from the Whig and Democratic ranks, and—a majority of them at least—with no antecedents to recommend them to special favor. Upon what ground, unless it be for some special fitness in the nominees themselves, Whigs should be asked to vote for nominees like these, we are at a loss to conjecture. They repudiate the principles that constituted the Whig party—they scorn the Whig name—they have assumed oath-bound obligations utterly irreconcilable with the generous and liberal sentiments that always inspired Whig action. And do they possess any special fitness? If they do we have endeavored in vain to discover it. Their sole recommendation is that they belong to the "order," and the time has gone by when that proscriptive principle can serve as a passport to favor. The Democratic nominees on the other hand, are men of a superior mark to those commonly put forward by that party. They are severally well qualified for the offices for which they have been named, and they can all be vouched as honest, upright, reliable and intelligent. As a mere matter of selection between individuals, therefore, the latter should command the support of those who desire to secure the best of the material from which they are to choose."

MR. CRAMER, editor of the Milwaukie Daily, Wisconsin, gives an elaborate obituary of the life of Watts Sherman, the great banker and senior partner of the house of Duncan, Sherman & Co., of New York, who died at Mobile on the 24th ult., from disease induced by "excessive devotion to a wearing business." The conclusion of this sketch of the "eminent banker," is of the following tenor, and may well serve to "point a moral" to "adorn a tale":

"Mr. Sherman was a banker merely. He was not a generous man in the dispensation of charities. He lived in princely style, adorned his house with rare paintings, statuary, and furniture fit for a royal palace; but to the great and noble charities to which Philips, Astor and Girard Suffen would give thousands, he rarely gave anything. He was naturally a selfish man, and liked to live like a prince himself, but cared not how the world got along. He only desired to have other folks fight for their rights. With his great influence, he might have lived a more useful life. But he was content with being a successful banker, and this ambition was gratified to the full. He was something of an exquisite in fashionable life, and in dress was almost a Beau Brummell. He was considered the best dressed man in Albany, and among his peculiarities was that he prided himself upon being a leader of fashion, as well as a leader of bankers; such tastes are rarely combined. The house will, doubtless, continue its business, but it is shorn of its great head, to whom the wise men of Wall street looked when the sky was deeply overcast."

OBITUARY.—Hon. Ogden Hoffman, one of the first lawyers—the very foremost as a criminal pleader—in New York, died in that city last week after an illness of only one or two days. In early life he served in the American Navy, as a Midshipman, and was on board "The President," when she was captured by a British ship of the line. He subsequently studied law. About twenty-five years ago was appointed District Attorney for the Southern District of New York; in 1838 was elected to Congress, where he was considered an able debater, and in 1852 Attorney General of the State. Mr. Hoffman was the counsel of Richard P. Robinson, in the famous trial for the murder of Helen Jewett.

IT seems that Frank Blair, like Cassius M. Clay, is a dealer in slaves! of course they are both great philanthropists, and are especially commended by the abolitionists and black republicans. Frank, out of pure love to the black race, bought one of them, and kindly hired him out to age, in order to prevent a fine other slave dealer from buying him, who might be cruel to him or, according to the language of a black republican democratic convention, treat him with flesh in his heart, which is a violation of morals, will deem him a fit subject of denunciation.

A congressional roster in Ohio, published states that a member of the Pittsburgh bar to Congress, Lyl Courtner, is a member of the House of Representatives, and has an association of certain charges against the U. S. District Court Judge was called in. We state that no such petition has been presented, and we do not account for the appearance of such a piece of news.

THE DEPARTURE OF THE STATE ARMS.—On Friday, Mr. Van Buren, a member of the last Legislature, left for Philadelphia, was tried in Harrisburg, on a charge of larceny of the State arms, and a conspiracy to defraud the Commonwealth. He was acquitted. A man named Drum, the keeper of the State Arsenal, plead "guilty" to similar charges.

THERE is a strong rumor abroad that Queen Victoria is coming to America, this summer, to visit her loyal Canadian Provinces. The London newspapers are out in favor of the trip.

The entire vote upon the ratification of the Topeka constitution, by the people of Kansas, was but a little over 700, about one-tenth, probably, of the voters there.

ANTIQUE silver, half and quarter dollars, by other, are henceforth to be worth only forty and twenty cents in the Island of Cuba.

SENTIMENT IN THE LITTLE TENNESSEE DISTRICT.—A private letter from an intelligent gentleman in this district conveys to us the following gratifying information:

"We hold a district Convention for this district at Marion, on the 20th. The country approaches to absolute unanimity for Buchanan. I was at Wythe, attending the Federal Court, and saw persons from the whole district, and the sentiment is the same."

Know Nothingism Defunct in Boston.

An election was held, last Monday, in the city of Boston, for Register of Deeds and Aldermen. The whole city voted, and the Know Nothings spared no possible effort to elect their nominees. The following was the vote:

Register—Alline, (Citizen's candidate,)	3,291
—Rice, (Know Nothing,)	1,018
Anti Know Nothing majority	2,277
Alderman—Wightman, (Citizen's candidate,)	3,062
Baldwin, (Know Nothing,)	1,126
Anti Know Nothing majority	1,936

When it is recollected that a few years ago the Know Nothings carried Boston by an overwhelming majority, this result is a gratifying proof that the foul heresy has run its course, and is rapidly "going the way of all flesh."

THE following instances of meanness is given by the Buffalo Commercial of Saturday:

A few days since two men passing along the track, found on the railroad near Attica ten or fifteen, cords of wood which had tumbled down upon the track. Knowing that a train came along—and one was due—that it would doubtless be the cause of an accident, they set to work removing it. One of them started back quite a distance, and by means of signals stopped the train. They stated they were rewarded by the Conductor with ten cents each, and a free passage over the road for about two miles!

THE RESULT IN MICHIGAN.—To give our readers some idea of the extent of the recent Democratic victory in Michigan, we give below, as far as heard from, the result of the township elections for supervisors:

Democrats	353
Black Republicans	183
Whigs	12
Know Nothings	4

The Democratic majority in the State will be at least eight thousand.

SENATORIAL STRUGGLE.—A Washington correspondent, of Wednesday last says Gen Houston surprised the Senate to-day by introducing into that body a large bowl of coffee, standing upon a huge saucer, from which, he spoke against the action of the late Naval Board, he would take a sup now and then. It looked more like a breakfast scene in a play than anything else.

Col. Benton, it is said, has declined the nomination for Governor of Missouri.

[From the Detroit Free Press.]

The Douglas and Lane Affair.

The history of this affair, some accounts of which our readers have had by telegraphic dispatches, may be stated in a few words. The reader is already informed of the presentation of the spurious Kansas memorial to the Senate, and the vote of that body permitting it to be withdrawn and returned to Col. Lane. Subsequently that redoubtable gentleman sent to the Senate a petition, accompanied by the original memorial, (as he alleged,) of which the only previously presented was said to be a copy. This was referred to the Committee on Territories, of which Mr. Douglas is chairman. Upon examination, the committee discovered that the alleged copy, instead of being a true transcript of the original, had been in many material respects altered. The subject was reported back to the Senate, when Mr. Douglas, in his capacity of chairman of the committee, narrated the facts as they had been found. These facts, inasmuch as Col. Lane was bearer of the memorial from Kansas, reflected somewhat on that gentleman. They showed that he had been guilty of fraud, and Mr. Douglas in substance so said.

Whereupon Lane addressed Mr. Douglas a note in which he said that he had previously told him in private conversation that he (Lane) "was the reviser of the memorial," that "it was prepared under his direction," and that he "was authorized to revise it." [It should be remembered that the paper purported to be a memorial of the (bogus) Legislature of Kansas, signed by all the members.] He complained that Mr. Douglas had done him injustice by charging him, after he had explained the matter, with having materially altered the memorial, and he therefore asked of Mr. D. "such an explanation of his language as will remove all imputation upon the integrity of his action or motive in connection with that memorial." This note was delivered to Mr. Douglas by a third person, to whom he addressed his reply, the concluding paragraphs of which are as follows:

"It should be borne in mind that the first time this fraudulent paper was presented to the Senate I pronounced no judgment upon the question of its authenticity, or the means by which it found its way to the secretary's table. Other senators did denounce it as 'a fraud and impudent forgery.' I remained silent on these points, not from any sympathy with the perpetrators of the fraud, but from my profound respect for the feelings of the illustrious senator from Michigan, whose confidence had been abused so far as to induce him to present it under the impression that it was an authentic memorial. When he discovered his mistake, I joined him in that rule of condemnation which the Senate pronounced by thirty-two to three in the adoption of Mr. Mason's resolution.

"The next week Col. Lane comes to the Senate, through Mr. Harlan, of Iowa, and presents a memorial, in which he asks and challenges a comparison of the two papers, with the view of inducing the Senate to reverse the judgment which said he so emphatically pronounced upon the conduct of the authors of that fraud at the same time avowing himself to be the person who perpetrated the act. I did make the comparison in pursuance of the invitation contained in his memorial, and stated the facts to the Senate as I found them to exist, together with my opinions upon them. The senate ratified those opinions in the rejection of the memorial by a vote of 40 to 11.

"In the face of these facts, your friend, Col. Lane, calls upon me for such an explanation of my language upon that occasion as will remove all impute from upon the integrity of his action and motives in connection with that memorial. My reply is that there are no facts within my knowledge which can remove all imputation upon the integrity of his acts and motives in some one such that me—

"For the reasons which I have stated, I can have no correspondence with Col. Lane, and therefore I address this note to you."

Upon this letter coming to the knowledge of Col. Lane, he published a letter denouncing Mr. Douglas as a coward, and charging him with having betrayed private confidence. When this appeared, several gentlemen, who were aware of what had passed, addressed a note to Mr. Douglas asking him to permit the publication of the correspondence as the only mode that should be taken of Lane's communication. Upon the receipt of our copy of the whole affair, we gave it to our readers. It is an opposition journal, which has never been warm sympathizer with Mr. Douglas.

So far as this affair is a personal controversy, we have no hesitation in saying that Senator Douglas has the best of it. As to the alteration of the memorial, we can only give an opinion, for we have nothing of the facts except the statements of the respective parties. Mr. Douglas alleges that they were material, in the original memorial the gentlemen claimed the right of Congress to prohibit slavery in the Government of Kansas, whereas, in the copy laid before the Senate, the word "not" was inserted, with a view to acknowledge the Lecompton fraud, and by this alleged alteration, he says, that the change were made known to and concurred with the authority conferred upon him by Lane, to suppose the principles of the original memorial. We even if this be the case, if such an authority was given, it is not of a questionable propriety. Also, from this, we cannot agree with Col. Lane in attributing dishonesty to Senator Douglas, because he did not consider Lane's challenge to the Senate designed to elicit such a statement as he should have been expected. The challenging to a comparison was fresh, although which it lies not at all, and the charge dwelling.

"If the allegations in the letter of Mr. Lane are true, it would be a shameful thing if Lane has taken a base and treacherous course, in endeavoring to bring the wishes of the people of Kansas to the knowledge of the Senate. If they are true, Col. Lane should have no hesitation in doing so."

SOUTHERN EMIGRATION.—The Charleston Patriot and Winnsborough (S. C.) Register, deprecate southern emigration to Kansas. They think the south cannot compete with the north in the work of colonization; that it is hardly weakened by the drain of its population, and that, in the case of Kansas, slave property would only be placed in jeopardy.

HEAVY MARINE LOSS.—The committee on commerce in the U. S. House of Representatives state the amount of pecuniary loss incurred at the port of New York, in the years 1854 5, at $10,000,000.

It is said Mr. Buchanan has accepted an invitation of Gov. Wise to visit Richmond, Va.

Worms! Worms!!—Various theories have been started relative to the origin of intestinal worms, and yet the question is still a vexed one among medical authorities. Of one fact, however, all are informed, and in which all agree—the fatal nature of the influence they exert on children. At this season of the year, the attacks of worms are most frequent as well as most dangerous. We take great pleasure in directing the attention of parents to the Vermifuge of Dr. M'Lane, prepared by Fleming Bros., Pittsburgh. It is one of the most extraordinary medicines ever introduced to the public, and has never failed of success when tried.

A Medicine Chest in a Bottle.—This remark is applicable to KENNEDY'S MEDICAL DISCOVERY; for the stock of no medicine chest in the world ever cured so many individuals of such a variety of diseases, as that ONE bottle of the MEDICAL DISCOVERY. The testimonials of our paper, if they were increased threefold, could not attest a greater part of the diseases of those who have been cured of Scrofula, Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, and other humors equally painful and aggravating. This is no exaggerated statement, as we have seen certificates from persons who have been cured of all these diseases, and we recommend the Discovery to the afflicted everywhere.

Opinions of the Press—The following is from the Pittsburgh Morning Journal, of Nov. 7, 1855:

All editors profess to be the great friends of the rights of the people, and to keep them abroad, through their columns, of whatever small abuse to their benefit.
