PITTSBURGH:

WEDNESDAY MORNING, JANUARY 21, 1857.

THE CONWAY'S STORY.

The Kansas Herald of Freedom, a leading Anti-Slavery journal, speaking of the recent election in Kansas, has the following significant paragraph:

"Had the Free-Soil party consented that the Territorial legislature should organize as a State, they have had every chance to have carried the election. Had, if they had wished, the Free-Soil Convention, as the fundamental law, they have been told they might have secured, so far as political security is concerned, and have avoided the appearance of being out of the Union, which, of course, seem inconceivable. We have a long chapter to write on this subject, and we shall put a different face on the case from that which seems to many to be evident."

This looks as though the truth were coming out at last. It will be a curious political chapter, and will show that the refusal of the Free State party to vote for delegates to the Lecompton convention, was entirely a Slack Republican movement. It will show that there was concert of action among this party, and that it was deemed unadvisable to settle Kansas difficulties then, because the important elections in our own State, as well as Ohio, New York, Wisconsin and Iowa, rendered it necessary, for the very existance of their party, that Kansas should be kept bleeding. The Democracy have ever desired the admission of Kansas as a State, and that the question should be decided. They have acted in fair and honorable means to attain this end, but the Black Republican players, in making their moves upon the Kansas board, have endeavored to checkmate the Democracy at every move. Pretexts have been made of the people in Kansas as well as those of the Territory. They pretend that they wish to have Kansas admitted. If they are sincere in their pretensions why, in the name of goodness, do they refuse to participate in any action which would lead to this desirable end?

This chapter of manifested hostility will perhaps inform the community of the ends and aims, which have actuated their course.

General Packer's appointments.

The rumor that the Hon. John G. Knox will be all probability be appointed by General Packer, under the new State administration, have called forth from the Sunday press, and other intelligent and independent sources, the warmest commendations of Justice Knox and the Governor elect. It is also said that Hon. W. M. Heistand is to be Secretary of the Commonwealth, and Mr. Diffenderfer of Clinton, Deputy Secretary. Governor Packer is peculiarly fortunate in his selections, and we congratulate him on being able to secure so distinguished ability in his Cabinet. These gentlemen as well as the Auditor and Surveyor General, are all from the eastern section of the State, as also is his Excellency the Governor. It has been our opinion ever since his election that General Packer intended to do something handsome for western Pennsylvania, and the location of these appointments induces us to believe that it is probable that our fellow townsman, A. E. McCalmont, Esq., will receive some distinguished mark of executive favor. It may perhaps be the Governor's intention that Mr. McCalmont should succeed Judge Knox upon the Supreme Bench. Such appointments talents would adorn, and the Democrats of the west would fully endorse such an appointment.

THE MERCHANTS' AND MANUFACTURERS' BANK.

This institution has made an official announcement that it has resumed specie payments, and the fact is hailed in some of the papers that she is the first bank in Pennsylvania to resume." &c. &c. These laudations are invidious to the other banks of the State, and the reason the men are patent here. While the other suspended banks in this city, have been making every effort in their power to relieve the community, the Merchants and Manufacturers' has improved the opportunity to legislate and now with a flourish of trumpets as "the first in the district she resumes with $5,002 44 specie in her vaults. This was done to make capital abroad, but here at home we know what issues have sustained the business community. The legislature and the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Bank resumed on the same day. It looks marvellously as though the Bank was anxious to vent a row out of its charter, that the legislature will not be fooled by such shallow devices.

Completion of the Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne and Chicago Railroad.

It is with great satisfaction that we are enabled to announce the fact that J. Edgar Thomson Esq. the President of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, has accepted the position of Chief Engineer of the Pittsburgh Fort Wayne and Chicago Railroad, with the view of proceeding at once to the completion of the eighty nine miles from Plymouth to Chicago. The chasm at this gap will complete the chain from Philadelphia to Chicago. Of this eighty-nine miles, forty are already graded and prepared for the rail. The well known skill and energy of Mr Thomson, so thoroughly displayed in the management of the Pennsylvania Road, will assure the public of the prompt completion of the work which he has now undertaken.

Receiving Work.

It gives us satisfaction to announce that a number of the large establishments in Allegheny and Beaver counties, where fires were put out by the panic, are about to resume operations immediately. Two or three large iron works have already done so. This is a sign of returning prosperity which will cheer every one. For two or three months the "hard times" of the city have been "hard up" and they will rejoice that their long rest is over at last. During the suspension our city has fortunately not suffered any thing like the business prostration of other cities.

Short Notes.

The nail factories and printers of wooden goods in Providence R. I., have adopted the short credit system. At a large meeting on Tuesday evening, they unanimously resolved to reduce the general credit on domestic goods to not over six months. They state the adoption of all parties interested in the domestic goods trade, to assist by united effort in bringing about so desirable a reform. A large proportion of the merchant tailors of Boston have signed a paper announcing that in future they shall present their bills for payment quarterly, instead of semi-annually as heretofore.

In Pittsburgh, although there has been no general movement to effect this desirable end, still we observe that some of our merchants have advertised a reduction of from three months, and a disposition to do a little more for the short a time as possible, exists among all. The cash is the thing.

Death of Miss Leslie, the Authoress.

Miss Eliza Leslie, a lady who was probably as widely known by her writings as any one that has ever lived in the United States, died on Friday, at Gloucester N. J., where she has been confined to her room for one months from the injury received three last summer. Miss Leslie was a native of Philadelphia, and was sixty nine years of age. Her family, on the father's side, were of Scotch descent, her great grand father having come from Scotland and settled in Cecil county, Maryland in 1745. By wife was of Swedish descent.

Her first literary production which a connection was a lively "Sketch entitled" Mrs. Washington Potts, which appeared in 1832. Soon quently she published several similar works.

But it is as a writer of books on cookery and housekeeping, that Miss Leslie is most widely known, and there is scarcely a home in the United Stitos where her name is not literary a "household word." Her various receipt books have probably attained a larger circulation than almost any other American book ever written. She is also the author of "The Behavior Book," a clever manual of the proprieties of life. She was a sister of Leslie the artist.

Annual Report of the Supervising Inspectors.

We acknowledge the receipt from Mr. Benjamin Crowford U. S. Supervising Inspector, for the Savannah District, for a copy of the proceedings of the sixth annual meeting of the Board, held in Louisville, October 1856.

It contains a great variety of interesting and useful statistical information relative to steam navigation upon the rivers of the United States which are derived from such sources as insure their correctness. It is a useful book, especially to those interested in Western navigation.

The Illustrated London News, the finest Pictorial now published, is for sale at Hunt & Minors, Fifth Street.

The frigate Niagara is fitting up at the New York Navy Yard, for her second trip to lay down the Atlantic cable.

VARIOUS THINGS.

—Several coal depositions have recently occurred on the Jeffersonville (Ky.) railroad. Last week a letter bag, made up at Louisville for Washington city, was stolen from the depot of the Jeffersonville railroad. It is supposed, however, that the letters in it contained but little money. The Philadelphia letter bag for the Louisville postoffice was stolen on the Jeffersonville railroad.

—George G. Pendleton, Esq. of Tennessee, has received the appointment of chief clerk of the General Postoffice Department, in place of John Gardner, Esq., resigned. Mr P. entered upon his duties on the 1st instant.

—The United States sloop of war Saratoga, Capt. Montgomery, arrived in Hampton Roads on Friday, in eighteen days from Gibraltar, brought one hundred and fifty men of Walker's men, who are said to be in most destitute condition.

—The damage at the United States Mint in Philadelphia during the year 1857 was as follows: $10 817,287 in gold, $4,452,700 in silver, $178,510 in nickle, making a grand total of Eleven million four hundred and forty eight thousand five hundred and forty eight dollars.

—Fourteen army surgeons belonging to the English service have perished in the disastrous revolt in India.

—We learn from the Hartford Times that the Emperor of Russia has contracted with Colt Sam Colt for a large amount of machinery for making arms, and part of it has already been shipped. He has also engineer Col. Colt to build for him two steam engines, suitable for driving the machinery.

A Remarkable Mayor.

Mayor Rice, of Boston, vacates his office on Monday, and the papers of that city are all in extolling his praises. He has been but two years in office, and during that time by his efficient administration, the debt of the city has been decreased a quarter of a million of dollars, while the public property of the city has been greatly augmented and increased in value.

Governor Wise on the New England "Forefathers."

Among the letters sent to the recent New England dinner in New York, is the following by Henry A. Wise, of Virginia:

I much, then decline. But it is not for want of any respect or gratitude to the "Forefathers" of New England. They were solid, practical men, who looked to the real substance and not the shadow of things. They were men to whose walk in conversation was former to the morality of the Gospel. They were persecuted and long suffering for the cause of religious freedom. They were brave and hardy, and earnest and honest, and manly and persevering in maintaining certain rights by the observance of law and order and decency in all things. If they were at all deluded and perhaps fell into delusions, it was always in their purest and conscientious in the Lord's cause. They were against the devil and all his witches. They kept the faith and labored, and suffered, and fought for it. And they gloriously triumphed over their physical and spiritual foes, and laid down a legacy of liberty and law, worth preserving for all ages, at any hazards, by their descendants. And they were pioneers of our forefathers in Virginia, and in the east struggle. Who knows but the Pilgrims are more sacred than our mother's blood. They bound themselves and their seed forever. Time, events, and triumphs, renewed covenants, more broadened greater interests, higher responsibilities, weightier hopes, greater prospective prosperity, greater dread of worse disasters than could once be contemplated—all, everything which has grown up, or may after, or is gone or now is, or is hereafter to be, bind us, the sires, sohns and descendants of the forefathers of this republic, to each other more than they were bound together.

A CHINESE SHYLOCK.—The Chinese community of Drytown, Amador County, California, are a least half of the inhabitants, and enjoyed to be so by the laws of their own country. An instance of Shylockism, says correspondent of the Amador Ledger was brought to light among them last week, that exceeds old Shylock himself. Over two years ago a Chinaman lent a China woman $150, she giving her note for it, to bear interest at the rate of twenty per cent, compound interest, per month. Suit having been brought on the note, judgment was rendered for the principal and twelve hundred dollars interest. The man threatened in open court for the money or the woman.

Editorial State Convention.

It is proposed to hold a State Convention of the Democratic editors of Pennsylvania to meet on the day succeeding the inauguration of Gov Packer—the 20th of January next. We anticipate a large number of our editorial brethren will be in attendance, and they will all be heartily welcomed. They will have an opportunity for free interchanges, and interchanges of opinion that cannot fail to result in much pleasure to themselves, and more or less good to their calling generally. The truth is, the craft in Pennsylvania know too little of each other personally. If they were better acquainted, it is more than probable they would have a better opinion of each other. In other States, conventions of this kind have been held, and the result has been highly satisfactory to the best of the Democratic brotherhood of the press. We will hope to see the new Governor inaugurated, their presence at the proposed convention will not be attended with any additional expense, and we do not see how it can be a large gathering. The place of meeting, we understand, has been fixed at Maj. Brady's Hotel.

Thrilling Account of the Relief of Lucknow.

CALCUTTA, Tuesday, Oct. 8, 1857.

I give you the following account of the recent Lucknow, as described by a lady, one of the survivors:

Early in the morning our death seemed its inevitable. Our ammunition would avert it any longer. We saw the moment approach when we must bid farewell to earth, yet without feeling that unutterable horror which must have been experienced by the unhappy victims at Cawnpore. We were resolved rather to die than to yield, and we were persuaded that in twenty four hours all would be over. The engineers had said so, and all knew the worst. We women strove to encourage each other, and to perform the little duties which had been assigned to us, such as conveying orders to the batteries and supplying the men with provisions, especially cups of coffee, which we prepared day and night. I had gone out to try and make myself useful, in company with Jessie Brown, the wife of a corporal in my husband's regiment. Poor Jessie had been in a state of restless excitement all through the siege, and had fallen away visibly within the last few days. A constant fever consumed her, and her mind wandered occasionally, especially that day, when the recollections of home seemed powerfully present to her. At dawn, overcome with fatigue, she lay down on the ground, wrapped in her plaid. I sat beside her, promising to awaken her when, as she said, her father should return from the plowing." She fell at length into a profound slumber, motionless, and apparently breathless—her head resting on my lap. I, myself, could no longer resist the inclination to sleep, in spite of the cannon as it roared on my ear. Suddenly I was arrested by a wild, unearthly scream close to my side—my companion stood upright beside me, her arms raised, and her head bent forward in the attitude of listening. A look of intense delight broke over her countenance, she grasped my hand, drew me towards her, and exclaimed: "Do you hear it? dinna ye hear it? Ay, I'm not dreaming, it the slogan o' the Highlanders! We're saved! we're saved!" Incredulous, thinking for myself on her losses, she thanked God with passionate fervor. I feel utterly bewildered, my English ears heard only the roar of artillery, and I thought my poor Jessie was still raving, as she darted to the batteries, and I heard her eagerly inquiring of the men, "gie us your cauvap! hark to the slogan—hark to the Macgregor, the grandest pipe o' them a'! Here's in it at last!"

I describe not the effect of these words upon the soldiers would be impossible. For a moment they ceased firing, and every soul listened in intense anxiety. Gradually, however, there arose a murmur of bitter disappointment, and the wailing of the women who had flocked to the spot burst out anew as the Colonel stood his head. One dull Lowland ears heard nothing but the rattle of the musketry. A few moments more of this death-like suspense, of this agonizing hope, and Jessie, who had sank on the ground, sprang to her feet, and cried, in a voice so clear and thrilling that it was heard along the whole line—"Will ye no believe it now? There's slogan has ceased indeed, but the Campbells are coming! Dye hear, dye hear?" At that moment we seemed indeed to hear the voice of God in the deadness, when the pibroch of the Highlanders brought us tidings of deliverance, for it was there was no longer any doubt of the fact. That shrill, penetrating, ceaseless sound, which rose above all other sounds, could come neither from the cannon of the enemy, nor from the work of the engineers. No, it was indeed the music of the Scottish bagpipes, now shrill and awful as threatening vengeance on the foe, then in softer tones seeming to promise succor to their friends in need. Never surely was there such a scene as that which followed. Not a heart in the residency of Lucknow but bowed itself before God. All, by one simultaneous impulse, fell upon their knees, and nothing was heard but blessing, broken by the murmured voice of prayer. Then all arose, and there rang out from a thousand mouths a great shout of joy which resounded far and wide, and lent new vigor to that blessed pibroch. The sure chase of "God save the queen," they replied by the well known strain "as never every foot to retreat, to should advance quarter—for long, O!" &c. After that, nothing else made any impression on me. I scarcely remember what followed. Jessie was presented to the General on his entrance into the fort, and at the flower banquet her health was drank by all present, while the pipers marched around the room playing some more the familiar air of "Auld lang syne."

Moral Effects of the Play of "Camille"—A Dreadful Murder.

Yesterday a most vile murder was committed in a house of ill-fame, on Basin street (late St. John) between Perdido and Gravier streets. The victim is a young man named Louis Bryant, from Mobile, where, it is said, he is respectably connected. When he came to this city he obtained employment as a clerk in an extensive fancy and dry goods store, but becoming acquainted with a woman of bad repute, named Emma Roberts, an intimacy ensued into his situation, and neglecting his business he lost his place as a clerk at once with his position in society. Finally, after seeing the play of "Camille" several times, he determined, he concluded that he could trust his happiness to the safe keeping of Emma, and so married her.

Since that time Emma has lived in a house of ill fame and Bryant as her man. On Sunday morning the house was visited by a rowdy crew, consisting of Charles Colter, William Ross, and one Skillings. They were somewhat intoxicated, and behaved rudely, especially Colter, who quarrelled with one of the women, and amused himself by frightening the others by pointing his revolver at them. They, of course, remained and Emma entered for the purpose of restoring quiet, threatening to go for the police unless her visitors conducted themselves like gentlemen. This enraged Colter to the last degree, and he commenced abusing, calling Emma foul names, and inviting her to come out her bully, meaning Bryant, and she would see some sport.

In the meantime Bryant, who was in an adjoining room, opened the door to see what was the matter, when at once Colter turned the current of abuse on him, calling him all the blackest names in the vocabulary of Hackguardism—Bryant told him to go away; that he did not want to have anything to do with him, and as he did so, Colter advanced on him and struck him in his face. One of the women then tried to pull the infuriated ruffian away, but he pushed her aside with a bloody threat, and stated with an oath that he intended to kill the son of a b——. He then drew his revolver and fired, the bullet entering the left side of Bryant's head just above the ear. The wounded man reeled and fell, closing the door with an involuntary movement, and as it closed the murderer discharged another shot, which passed through a panel and went harmless on. Colter and his friends then escaped, but the noise of the firing had attracted the attention of the police, who succeeded in arresting Colter and Ross. Dero is the man who was indicted as one of the parties concerned in the murder of the Greek sailor, Geronimo Dmitry, and who (with Forbes, his associate) was some time since admitted to bail. As he was running, he threw away a set of metal knuckles, which he since passed into the hands of Corporal Hyde.

After the escape of the trio, Bryant was examined and found to be fatally wounded. He was taken to the Circus street Infirmary, with brain and blood coming commingled from his wound. The Infirmary he lingered till 9 o'clock last night, when death put a period to his current of breath.

I have used Dr. M'Lane's Worm Specific, prepared by Fleming Bros Pittsburgh, Pa, in my private practice, and am prepared to say that the unparalleled success with which I have invariably met in expelling worms, has fully convinced me that it is the most in its favor of any specific or patent medicine ever before brought to my notice. The mode of administration, the smallness of the dose, and the certainty of its thoroughness effects, give it in my opinion, a decided advantage over any other medicine. Yours and respectfully

We herewith send you a certificate of a cure performed by the use of one one bottle of the German Bitters: we think Mr. Clark to be a man of veracity, and have no doubt of the truth of his story."

Messrs. Drs. B. Hall & Co—Gentlemen: In answer to your inquiries, I will state that my daughter, aged about 16 years, has been complaining of a pain in her side for six or seven years, and about the first of January last, was taken down and confined to her bed. The pain in her side was very severe, besides broke out with with pains between her shoulders and in her breast. From reading a number of cures performed by "Hoofland's German Bitters." I was induced to try it in her case, and sent to your store and purchased one bottle. She had taken it but a few days when she began to improve, and now, after taking only one bottle, she is enjoying better health than she has for years. She feels no pain in her side or in any part of her body, and attributes her cure entirely to the German Bitters.
