"Oh, the confederacy shall not hear of it through me There are others who can give them a hint: look here!"

And, going to the side of the room, he threw open a concealed door It had been made, for uniformity with the rest of the room, to resemble shelves and leather backs of books, each volume lettered and numbered, and so ingeniously contrived and finished that nothing but a minute examination could unveil the deception.

Mark wondered at this proceeding, and stood as if thunderstruck as he beheld enter from the dressing-room into which it opened the very men he had been betraying, to wit: the men called Young Crow, and Peter Watkin, (the Slounger,) along with others of much weight and influence among the men. Nothing could have been further from his expectation than this consummation of the adventure. There they stood before him, begrimmed and muddy, in the uncouth black mining clothes, scowling upon him through the darkness of their faces like so many accusing devils. Oh, what a sight was this for Mark! whither could he have sneaked away from him his boasted and long-tried cunning, that he should be so miserably outwitted—should have so wofully and irretrievably committed himself? And who could, with a pen adequately forcible, describe the convulsive throes of his mighty though reprobate mind? Bitter, bitter, anguish, [illegible] rage, hate, malice, fierce passions glow [illegible] defiance—all these haggard countenance [illegible] through his harsh and now while [illegible] ence, united into one expression [illegible] a terrible grandeur, a sublimity, [illegible] the big tears coursed down his rugged cheeks—a thing of which he was himself unconscious. Thus he stood, regarding them, then his brother; anon turning, and, staggering slightly as he did so, he walked towards the door and went forth from the house.

This, then, was Edmund's plan to break up the combination union, by exposing Mark to the body in his most villainous colors of double treachery, and by showing them that they were completely in his own power, that their whole organization was known to him, and that at any time he pleased he could give up any member to capital punishment or transportation.

The men he had brought to the house he had all along suspected—indeed, from his half and half connection with the society, all but understood—to be criminals, or connected with the crimes At all events, they were exceedingly popular and influential among the great body of the workmen Two of them were employed at his own mines, and he could thus easily get hold of them; another he enticed to his house, offering him the situation of "ganger," or petty overseer; the fourth, by stating that a letter from his brother, who had been banished, was in his possession When he had got them together he informed them that their great apostle, Mark Vasper, was "bought and sold," and had "sold" them and the rest of the confederacy To give them proof, he put them into the dressing room bidding them apply their eyes and ears to crevices he had previously made, and they would soon become aware of the truth of what he told them

DEMOCRATIC STATE NOMINATIONS.

FOR SUPREME JUDGE,

WILLIAM A. PORTER,

OF PHILADELPHIA

FOR CANAL COMMISSIONER,

WESTLEY FROST,

OF FAYETTE COUNTY

THE DEATH OF HON. THOMAS H. BENTON.

Another of our great men is numbered with the dead. Another brilliant intellect has ceased to perceive, to reason, and to judge the things of earth. Another great soul has departed from its temporary tabernacle, and winged its flight to the regions of immortality. The eloquent tongue is silent now—the brilliant orbs which intellect fired, are dull and glazed at last—the manly and robust form lies low in death. Thomas Hart Benton of Missouri, breathed his last at Washington city on Saturday morning, the tenth of April at half past seven o'clock. He was almost the last of the eminent statesmen who for the past thirty years have been most prominent in the councils of the nation and who may almost be said to have ruled its destinies. Clay, Calhoun, Marcy, Webster, and Benton—all are gone. Brilliant, eloquent, talented, patriotic men!

> "Not names more noble graced the rolls of fame.
> When on the Spartan's lips the Grecian sages hung;
> Not nobler eloquence the bosom fired.
> When genius thundered from the Athenian tongue."

Of these great men of the past generation no one has left behind him a purer name nor a higher reputation for usefulness in public life than Col. Benton. Possessed of great faculties, strong powers of observation, classification, and execution, the effects of his laborious public life—the productions of his bright genius, and the accumulations of his recollections of half a century spent in daily and direct communing with the chiefest men of the country, remain behind a rich legacy to his fellow countrymen. Through his voluminous written works, his printed, speeches, as well as by his recorded public acts "though dead, he yet speaketh." They form a treasury of political and national history such as few countries can boast of, and few men have had the experience, the knowledge and the capacity to produce. In his works, he has raised for himself a monument "more lasting than brass," which will remain as long as the English language shall be spoken or read.

It would be idle for us to attempt anything approaching to be a complete sketch of the personal history of this great man. His biography would be a history of the country for the last half century. A ripe scholar, a brave soldier and one of the ablest of our statesmen, he has been connected more or less with every great public measure which has come before the country for many years. He was born in North Carolina in 1782, and was about 76 years of age at the time of his death He received his education at Chapel Hill College, and studied law at William and Mary's College, in Virginia. In 1810 he entered the United States army, after retiring from which he practised law, in Nashville, Tennessee. He did not long remain here, but removed to Missouri, where he edited a newspaper. He was elected to the United States Senate, in 1820, where he remained until 1851 Here, he at once become distinguished for his surpassing talents, and at all times occupied a leading position; his opinions and his judgment commanding on all great questions, the respect and consideration of his peers and his fellow-countrymen of all political parties. He was one of the chief supporters of the administration of Andrew Jackson and Martin Van Buren. After the close of his Senatorial career, he was elected to Congress, having defeated a most formidable opposition, riding over platforms and caucuses by the force of his iron will and indomitable perseverence and resolution. He was styled "the apostle of freedom for the south and west," and upon whatever course he set out, he pursued it with "all his might." In the political as in the battle field, he never turned back—he never surrendered.

Col. Benton was married, subsequent to his first election as Senator, to Elizabeth, daughter of Col. James M'Dowell, of Rockbridge county, Va. His surviving children are four daughters—Mrs. William Carey Jones, Mrs. John C. Fremont, Mrs. Sarah Benton Jacob, and Madame Susan Benton Boileau, now at Calcutta, wife of the French Consul-General. Mrs. Benton died in 1854, having been struck with paralysis in 1844. He was a devoted husband and father, and since his wife's decease has avoided all gayety and public amusements.

In person he was short and stout. His head was most magnificent, with a face beaming with intellect, a Roman nose and keen expressive grey eyes. As a speaker, he was argumentative and philosophical. His memory was most remarkable.

For the past five years he has labored incessantly upon his great works of Thirty Years in the Senate, and his Abridgement of the Debates of Congress. He worked upon the latter almost to the very hour of his dissolution.—His disease was cancer of the bowels, and he suffered extreme pain and great physical exaustion, but his mind is represented to have remained clear and powerful as ever, and to the very last, "the high resolute Roman spirit of the old statesman struggled with indomitable energy and fortitude against sickness and weakness, and the awful presence of the King of Terrors." He dictated the closing chapters of his work but a few days since.

In his death, the country has lost one of her greatest and most remarkable men. Thomas Hart Benton has made his mark upon the age in which he lived. It is an indellible one.

WHAT KIND OF CONGRESSMEN WE NEED.

The time is at hand when the people will be called upon to select the candidates in the Twenty-first and Twenty-second districts to represent them, and watch over and advocate their interests in the next Congress. We take it for granted that there will be two nominees of the dominant party, from Allegheny county this year, inasmuch as Mr. Purviance, the present member from the Twenty-second district, is from another county, and political usages entitle this county to the next one.

In the remarks we have to make regarding the kind of men which should be selected for the position of Representatives in Congress, we shall speak for what we conceive to be the interests of the people of the two districts. We have neither personal preferences nor personal dislikes to gratify; among the talented and prominent gentlemen, who are before the people for nomination. We do not speak as partizans, but as advocates of the best interests of a great commercial and manufacturing community—a community of practical men, and working men, who have large stakes in every measure, which affects the business of the country and who desire to be represented by men who have a clear practical knowledge of the resources and the wants of our people, their energies, and capacities for enlarging, and improving, and enriching the general sum total of the assets of our State and of our district, when proper encouragement is afforded them to display their qualities. The kind of men whom the people of the Twenty-first and Twenty-second districts, want in Congress are not the mere theorist—no matter how extensive may be his acquaintance with the general doctrines of government not the mere speech maker—no matter how startling his eloquence—not the mere politician seeking place and influence and perchance the emoluments of official position. There are now and always will be in the Halls of National Legislation, enough of great professional statesmen, to safely guard the general interests of the nation, to argue the questions of constitutional law—to manage the leading subjects of public policy as laid down in political platforms, and to astonish the world by their brilliant eloquence. The Halls of Congress will never lack such great men as these But it is not men of this character, who can best represent such interests as those of Western Pennsylvania, at Washington. We need men of sound judgment; thorough personal acquaintence with our people; great practical knowledge of business, and who at the same time possess the facilities of head and tongue and pen, plainly and clearly to set forth either by speech or in writing, the fruits of their knowledge, the conclusions of their jugdment, and to argue strongly the measures which they may desire to advocate. We want men who, having a practical knowledge of the facts, statistics and combinations of our own material resources in minerals, machinery, industrial ability, climate, soil, advantages of location, and character of population, shall be able to present in the Halls of Congress, such measures as the producing interest of Western Pennsylvania need, and to urge them with the strong and convincing arguments of facts which are more potent than the most eloquently worded harangues, and which will more certainly procure the kind of legislation calculated to foster the interests of the greatest iron producing State in the Union, than the most eloquent appeals could do. It is such men that the people of these districts need to represent them, and among the prominent business men in Allegheny County they can be found. It is not essential that the selection should be made among these who have taken a leading position in the political movements of either party. The knowledge, experience, ability and honesty to make a good Congressmen does not depend altogether upon the party with which a man has acted Other things being equal the people here would prefer to trust their interests in the hands of a practical man rather than a mere politician.

There are questions of the most vital interest to Pennsylvania, which must shortly come before Congress It is evident that there is a necessity for some modification of our present tariff laws. This is shown plainly by the wants of the public treasury, as well as the depressed condition of the great manufacturing interests of our own and other States. When this modification comes up for consideration, the interests of Pennsylvania must be in charge of men who thoroughly understand her resources and relative position to the other States of the Union, as the greatest iron producing State, and equal to any in the value of her manufacturing investments. Situated between the Northern and Southern States, in the adjustment of the present tariff, Pennsylvania was not duly considered. In endeavoring to deal fairly between the diverse interests of the extreme North and the extreme South, the important iron and other manufacturing interest of this State—greater in the aggregate than those of any other—did not receive that share of protection to which they are justly entitled. The question of where the proposed National Foundry shall be located, and other similar ones, relating to manufacturing contracts of the government, also require the attention at Washington City of practical men.

But it is not our object to suggest matters of policy—we simply urge upon the electors of Allegheny county the selection of such men as we have spoken of. To the workingmen this matter is especially important, and at the primary meetings they should see to it, that such delegates are elected to the nominating convention as will vote for the right kind of Congressmen. Our remarks are equally applicable to the nominations of either of the great political parties. The opponents of the Democracy are here the dominant party, and among them most of of our manufacturers are ranked. Our opponents have plenty of the kind of men of which we have spoken from among whom to select. Let them make a good selection, for it is their boast that a nomination is equivalent to an election.

To our friends we say, look carefully about you, and choose from among yourselves men of practical business experience, sound judgement, honesty and ability, and even if you cannot elect them, the moral force of your action will be felt, and will result in benefit to yourselves.

FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON CITY, April 7, 1858.

For many years it has been the common habit of the representatives of almost all the other States of the Union to sneer at those from Pennsylvania. The Keystone was pointed at as a sad emblem of intellectual deficiency, and her people were told by the citizens of even such sand-patches as Maryland, New Jersey, and Delaware, that statesmanship could not flourish in the land of Penn. How true or false these allegations were, I will not now attempt to determine; suffice it to say that the reputation of our State did not suffer from the aspersions cast upon her, and she held her own in the family of nations remarkably well.

But the day has gone by for these sneering charges. Whoever has had the good or bad fortune to be domiciled in Washington this winter, will have observed that Pennsylvania is decidedly No. 1 in point of ability in the Government at present. From the commencement of this session of Congress up to the present time, she has taken a leading part on every question, and in no instance has her reputation been sacrificed—mentally, morally, or physically.

Leaving the President, the Cabinet, and the Senate out of the question, I wish to say a few words about a "bright, particular star" which has arisen in the political horizon of Western Pennsylvania. I allude to Hon. William Montgomery, representative in Congress from the Washington District. I never knew Mr. Montgomery until after the meeting of the present session, and I might say the same for a majority of the Pennsylvanians now here. He had never been in office, I believe, until he was elected to Congress, and the natural barrier of the Allegheny mountains, dividing, as it does, the eastern portion of the State from the western, had prevented those on the Atlantic slope from meeting him in business life and learning what manner of man he was. True, I was told that Mother Nature had "given him a spark of her fire," and I was ready to find him a man in every sense of the term. My expectations have been more than realized.

The first question upon which Mr. Montgomery addressed the House was that arising out of the arrest of Walker, the fillibuster, by Commodore Paulding. Your readers will remember that the leaders of the Southern Democracy—such men as Stephens, Quitman, Shorter, and others—almost without exception, took grounds against the position of the President, and denounced the action of Com. Paulding in the bitterest terms. They piled an Ossa of argument on a Pelion of vituperation, and their chivalry almost ran mad. It was in reply to such declamations that Mr. Montgomery first spoke. With a nerve that nothing could intimidate—with an eloquence that compelled attention, and with a logic that no one attempted to combat, he told the South what the honest people of the North thought of these marauding expeditions. That speech was published and read all over Pennsylvania, and it convinced thousands that its author was no ordinary man.

Next came the Kansas struggle, and it was the question which not only "tried men's souls," but their intellects also. On this question I differ from Mr. Montgomery, but I must say that I believe he is acting from as honest motives as ever controlled a man. If he is in error, it is the error of judgment and not of prejudice. On this subject he has been the very soul of the opposition to the admission of Kansas under the Lecompton Constitution. He has brought order out of chaos, and has joined factions together which are as antagonistic as the poles of the magnet.

His speech on this question was a great effort. It teemed with argument and abounded in beauties. I know probably a score of intelligent men, who entertain different views of this subject on which it treats and who have read it carefully, and every one whom I have heard express an opinion has declared that it was the best speech of the session. Judge Douglas remarked recently that "it was the ablest speech which has been delivered in Congress for ten years," and he ought to know something about American oratory. Such a remark from him is a high compliment, even admitting the sympathy of feeling which exists between himself and the author.

It is gratifying to every Pennsylvanian to see one of her sons assuming such a distinguished position in the capitol of our country, when the assembled wisdom of the nation is brought in contact. The man who can in one session of the American Congress assume a position among the first statesmen of the Republic, must be gifted with an intellect of a high order; and time alone is necessary to place him besides those who have brought imperishable glory to our land.

Mr. Montgomery is untiring in his industry, and this is one secret of his success. He takes hold of a question and he masters it. No part of it escapes his scrutiny. It is examined in all its bearings, and viewed in every light. He is, therefore, always master of the question upon which he undertakes to speak, and cannot be confused or thrown off the line of argument marked out. His style of oratory is terse, vivid, and powerful. He does not attempt "to weave a web of beauty" by poetical quotations and Addisonian sentences; but he speaks plainly and positively, always suiting the word to the idea. When he is done, he is done. There is no ambiguity to be cleared up—no elucidation to be made. Added to this is a voice which is stentorian in its power, and a physique which can endure any amount of labor, and the reader has an idea of the man who, I firmly believe, is destined to assume a position in our nation second to no man of the times. S.

BANK RESUMPTION.

To-day, the 12th of April, is the time fixed by law for the resumption of specie payments by the banks throughout the State. In the principal cities, the banks resumed sometime since and many of the country banks have also done so. Those who do not pay the coin from and after to-day forfeit their charters. The banks have forfeited themselves during the suspension and many of them have been resuming gradually, so that there will be no sudden shock upon their business. Let them learn a lesson from past experience and avoid undue expansions in future.

Lands in Virginia.

We refer our readers to the chances offered for receiving a home at little cost in the advertisment of Mr. E. Bauder, published in this day's Post.

National Foundry in Pennsylvania.

Mr. Kunkel, of Pennsylvania, offered the following resolution, which was read, considered and agreed to:

Resolved, that the Committee on Military Affairs be, and are hereby instructed to inquire into the expediency of establishing a National Foundry at Harrisburg or Lebanon, in the State of Pennsylvania.

We hope the members from Allegheny County will see to it, that the name of Pittsburgh is inserted in this resolution before it is finally disposed of.

SOME wag remarks truly, when he says that "popularity in politics is to see your name in large type posted to a fence." Somebody will inquire as to who you are, and when the first rain comes you will disappear.

NEW YORK, August 30, 1852.

This is to certify that I have had the Liver Complaint for five years, during which time I have tried almost all known remedies, but to no purpose. Hearing of Dr. M'Lane's Celebrated Liver Pills, I concluded to try a box. I did so, and am now almost cured. I think one box more will effect a permanent cure. I can cheerfully recommend these Pills to all who may suffer from liver complaint. I have also known them used with the most happy results in cases of sick-headache, or dyspepsia.

MR. SWIFT, No. 116 Attorney street.

[Special Despatch to the Morning Post.]

PENNSYLVANIA LEGISLATURE.

HARRISBURG, April 10.—Senate.—Friday night, on motion of Mr. Gazzam, the City Revenue bill was passed finally, and goes to the House.

On Saturday the Liquor bill was materially amended by giving discretionary power, and substituting the County Treasurer and Associate Judges for a Board of Licensors.

The House bill relative to lateral railroads was passed in Committee of the Whole in the Senate.

The House was not sitting.

Further News by the Steamer America.

INDIA.

NEW YORK, April 10.—Colin Campbell, with fifteen regiments of European infantry, three regiments of European cavalry, three regiments and detachments of two other regiments of native cavalry, and eighty heavy guns and mortars, and sixty-three field pieces, had crossed the Ganges. The attack on Lucknow was expected to commence February 27th, when Jung Brahdoors and General Frank's forces of twelve thousand strong would reach Lucknow to aid in the attack.

RUSSIA.

A camp of 100,000 men is to be formed in Poland in the month of May. This step is considered as a manifestation against Austria.

TURKEY.

A force of eight hundred Montenegrins had violated Austrian territory and had penetrated into Herzegovina; forty had entered Sutorria and burned and destroyed all before them.

Turkey refuses to submit to the treaty for the navigation of the Danube. Several irregular corps are being organized in Bosnia by the wealty boys.

FRANCE.

The Paris Constitutionel has an article in large type on the English alliance, which expresses the most friendly sentiments.

The Bourse was quite animated on the 25th ult., and a decided rise had occurred.

A line of railroad is to be constructed to traverse the western coast of France. It is clearly a strategetic, more than a commercial project.

Petitions for the reduction of the duty on sugar and coffee are pouring in.

The Minister of the Interior has ordered all the artillery in the different towns of France to be dismounted and deposited in the arsenals. The plea for this movement is that the pieces are in a condition that renders their use dangerous, and that they will be replaced by others in a better condition. The impression prevailed that the guns are removed for fear that they should fall into the hands of the people, in case of a rising against the government.

SPAIN.

Some slight disturbances had occurred at Valencia, but were quieted at latest dates. There are also doubtful rumors afloat of disturbances at Saragossa. The government had presented to the Cortez a project for abolition of slavery in the Spanish colonies.

ITALY.

Count Cauvier had dispatched a very energetic note to Naples in relation to the refusal of that government to surrender the Cagliari prisoners.

RUSSIA.

There is great agitation in Russia in consequence of the opposition of the nobles to the proposed emancipation of their serfs. Many of the government families have fled to St. Petersburg for fear of their lives.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON CITY, April 10.—Both Houses will adjourn on Moday to attend the funeral of Mr. Benton.

There has been no acceptance by the President of the volunteers from the several States for service in Utah, nor will there be until the passage of the Deficiency Appropriation bill by the Senate.

Senator Davis is now regarded as convalescent.

Neither House is in session to-day, having adjourned over till Monday.

The Union, of this morning, in speaking of the Deficiency bill, says that such is the condition of affairs, that even such a great measure of public necessity and urgency as the supplies of the Utah Expedition, must owe its passage to Black Republican favor, and speaks of some half a dozen Southern Democrats as being afflicted with a weak vanity for figuring as the watch-dogs of the Treasury, aspiring after cerebrine fame, who hang about the spigots of the public cider barrel, giving the violent symptons of babies at every superflous drop that happens at the bung. It also charges them with uniting with the Free Soil party on a great financial measure, while certain Northern Democrats unite with the same party to defeat the other great leading question—the Kansas bill.

The Union says it is idle for squads of twenty odd members each, who have gone off and acted with the Black Republican phalanx, on one question, and another on another question, but some squad or other on every question that has yet arisen, to suppose that the Administration and five-sixths of the Democratic organization, will change their policy at the bidding of a handful of men. The only salvation for the Democratic party is a firm, unwavering persistence by the Administration in the policy it has from the first espoused. To yield one jot or tittle to faction, is to commence at once for the Democratic organization the work of disintegration and destruction.

Arrangements for the Funeral of Mr. Benton—Foundry Burnt.

ST. LOUIS, April 10.—A well attended public meeting was held at noon for the purpose of making appropriate arrangements to do honor to the memory of Thomas H. Benton. Brief eulogies were pronounced by several gentlemen, appropriate resolutions were adopted, and a committee of prominent citizens appointed to take such action as may be necessary for a public demonstration of respect to the remains of the deceased when brought hither for interment.

The foundry of Newman Graham was burned last night. Loss $40,000. Insured for $6000.

From Mexico.

NEW ORLEANS, April 10.—The steamer Tennessee is coming up. She brings important news from Mexico. Gen. Orell took the city of Guadalaxara, capturing entire the government of Janerez. Janerez and his officers have been permitted to leave the country. Osello was on his way back to the city of Mexico, and will probably be declared President. Vera Cruz still holds out for the Constitutionalists. Tampico is beseiged by Garza.

An American Vessel Boarded.

NEW YORK, April 10.—The bark Anna arrived here this morning, from Galveston, and reports that she was boarded, off Havana, by a boat from the British brig-of-war Styx.

10,000	Shares, amounting to	10,000 "

CERTIFICATES of the above Shares, (with Bonds for the immediate execution and delivery of the Deeds,) have been enclosed in 10,000 envelops, exactly alike, and sealed, which, after being well mixed up, have been numbered on the outside from 1 to 10,000 inclusive, so that no one now knows the contents of any particular envelope. They will be sold at $10 EACH, without reference to what they contain, and sent to any one making application. Unexceptionable Titles will in all cases be given.

The largest Farm, containing a Gold Mine, is valued at $30,000, and the smallest sized Building Lots have been selling at $10, each. Hundreds have already been sold upon these terms. Whilst all stand the same chance of getting the Farms, every purchaser is guaranteed one of these lots at least. Every other purchaser is bound to get one of at least double its size in value. Every fourth purchaser one of at least quadruple its size and value. Whilst every tenth purchaser will get a Farm ranging in value from $200 up to $30,000. These Farms and Lots are sold so cheap to induce settlements, a sufficient number being reserved, the increase in the value of which will compensate for the present sacrifice. The net proceeds are to be applied to local improvements, such as Schools, Factories, Mills, &c. Any number of Shares can be taken by individuals—to secure a Farm take at least ten Shares. The Certificates can be obtained by paying ONE-HALF, and the Deeds by paying the OTHER HALF.

☞ 70,000 Acres of Land, in large or small tracts, can also be had at PRIVATE SALE and upon most REASONABLE TERMS. Some of it is HIGHLY IMPROVED. AGENTS ARE WANTED EVERYWHERE TO SELL THESE LANDS.—Liberal inducements will be given. For full particulars, apply to

SUPERB GRAND PIANO, FROM THE MANUFACTORY OF STEINWAY & SONS,
NEW YORK.

H. KLEBER & BRO., TAKE PLEASURE in announcing to to the public that they have just received a splendid GRAND PIANO, from the Factory of Steinway & Sons, New York, which for exquisite sweetness and volume of tone, lightness and elasticity of touch, and a most tasteful and elegant exterior, is considered the FINEST GRAND PIANO ever brought to this city. The mechanism is a DOUBLE REPEATING ACTION, a patented invention of Steinway & Sons, which combines with the utmost promptness and delicacy of touch a degree of durability but rarely attained.

One of Steinway & Sons' GRAND PIANOS has lately been performed on by S. Thalberg, in Baltimore, who stated that it was remarkable, even and pure in tone; powerful and of fine touch. All those who have heard this grand piano, are unanimous that it is far superior to those of any other. William Mason and Gottschalk, the American Pianists, who have lately played on Steinway & Sons GRAND PIANOS at their concerts, are of the same opinion.

Mr. Satter, the eminent Pianist, late of Boston, who has tested all the grand pianos now in this country, is using Steinway & Sons' Grand Piano at his concerts in New York in preference to any other.

We respectfully invite the public, one and all, whether purchasers or not, to call and see this unrivalled instrument.
