Lady Lion athletics best in the country

Women's sports at the University had a productive year in 1979-80. In fact, the Lady Lion teams enjoyed their most successful year in the 16-year history of the Penn State women's program, according to a Penn State Sports Information press release.

The release said Penn State has won more major college national championships in women's sports over the last three years than any other college in the country.

Overall, a winning percentage of 73.6 was earned by the University's 31-sport athletic program in the 1979-80 year, according to the release.

The 31 sports teams compiled a record of 316 victories, 112 defeats and four ties.

National titles were won by the Lady Lions in fencing, gymnastics and lacrosse last season. The three national titles last year increased Penn State's three-year national championship total to seven, three more than Arizona State and four ahead of Cal State-Northridge, Ohio State, San Jose State and Southern California.

The Lady Lions have also won national championships in bowling (1979), gymnastics (1978) and lacrosse (1978 and 1979).

Two other women's teams enjoyed a productive year.The women's field hockey team finished second in the nation, while the women's cross country team finished third in the country.

Individual honors did not pass by Penn State either.

Lady Lion fencing coach Beth Alphin earned coach of the year honors following the national collegiate title at Ohio State.

Candy Finn and Lynn Thompson competed on the U.S. women's lacrosse team. Both players scored winning goals in games against England, according to the release. England is regarded as the best team in the world.

Lady Lion Ann Carr won her third Broderick Award as the outstanding woman collegiate gymnast.

Corine Gulas recently played for the U.S. women's basketball team in the R.V. Jones competition held in Taiwan. Joining Gulas was Cindy Davies, a high school teammate of Gilas, who will be joining the Lady Lions next winter.

Men's athletics generally had a solid year also.

The men's cross country team and soccer team recorded third-place finishes nationally. The men's fencing team finished in a tie for fifth place and the men's gymnastics team took eighth in National Collegiate Athletic Association competition.

The men's basketball team finished with a record of 18-10 last year. This was drastic improvement from the year before when Penn State's record was 12-18. This switchover from loser to winner was the most dramatic improvement in 83 years of Penn State basketball history, the release said. The Nittany Lions earned a National Invitational Tournament invitation last year.

Pirates 3, Cards 2

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Phil Garner singled and came around to score the winning run on Mike Easler's fielder's choice grounder in the 10th inning as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2 last night.

Garner hit a one-out single to center off Jim Kaat, 2-5, and moved to third on Steve Nicosia's single to center. Easler then hit a grounder to shortstop Garry Templeton, who threw to second for a forceout, but the relay throw to first on the attempted double play was not in time and Garner scored.

Grant Jackson, 6-2, was the winner in relief of Bert Blyleven.

Braves 13, Astros 4

ATLANTA (AP) — Bob Horner hit a tie-breaking two-run single in a five-run fifth inning and Atlanta broke the game open with six more runs in the sixth last night, beating the Houston Astros 13-4 for the Braves' fifth victory in six games.

Jeff Burroughs followed Horner's hit with his sixth home run in 12 games — after having gone 61 games without a home run — to drive in three more runs.

Bruce Benedict's two-run double capped the Braves' six-run sixth inning as Atlanta came up with seven hits against Houston starter Joe Niekro, 8-7, and reliever Randy Niemann.

Fellow Cubans assist refugees

By LYNDA ROBINSON
Daily Collegian Staff Writer

From 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., seven days a week, Amparo Martinez works as a translator at the Cuban refugee camp at Fort Indiantown Gap, located about two hours from State College. Her husband, Benjamin Martinez, often volunteers his time at the camp on the weekends.

Mr. and Mrs. Martinez emigrated from Cuba in 1961. Both said they are happy to have the opportunity to help the refugees currently pouring into the United States.

Of the estimated 135,000 refugees now in the United States, approximately 15,500 Cubans are at Fort Indiantown Gap waiting to be relocated. Mrs. Martinez said about 80 percent of the refugees have relatives in the U.S.

Those without family will be placed with sponsors who will help them find jobs and adjust to life in American society. . . .

"Those people that came without friends or family would be difficult to place, but the American people are so generous that there are many volunteer sponsors," said Mr. Martinez.

Most of the refugees are expected to settle in Miami, New Jersey and New York.

"They are very grateful to be here. They don't have the words to express how they feel, but they are very happy. The majority want to leave and start being productive. They don't want to be a burden to the American people," said Mr. Martinez.

The arrival of the Cubans in the U.S. has generated a great deal of protest from people who claim the economy is not capable of absorbing the refugees.

"They can understand the hostility because of the shortage of jobs. But compared to what they suffered in Cuba it doesn't matter much," said Mr. Martinez.

Many of the Cuban immigrants are skilled laborers, though few are professionals. However, Mr. Martinez said, "They will take any job that comes along."

Mrs. Martinez estimated that about one percent of the refugees at Indiantown Gap are criminals. They have been placed in a special compound and will remain there until President Carter decides what to do with them.

Only 3,000-4,000 of the refugees at Indiantown Gap can speak English,said Mrs. Martinez. Those who do speak English read about the riots at the Fort Chaffee refugee camp.

"They are displeased with the rioters, but they know it is only a few," said Mr. Martinez.

How well the Cubans adjust to life in this country is a concern to both immigration officials and the Carter Administration. Both Mr. and Mrs. Martinez are optimistic about the refugees' future.

"The majority will assimilate. This is paradise to them. They will always have more and better of everything in the U.S., especially freedom,'said Mr. Martinez.

Survey says vets would serve

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The most exhaustive survey of Vietnam era veterans ever conducted found a little over half said they would serve again if asked, but almost all said the United States should have stayed out of Vietnam.

Among veterans who had served in Vietnam, Cambodia, Laos, Thailand or the South China Sea, 55 percent disagreed with the statement, "If I were asked to serve again, I would refuse."

Almost all the rest agreed with that statement to a greater or lesser degree.

Twenty percent said the statement matched their sentiments "very closely," 10 percent said it matched "somewhat," 11 percent said it matched their feelings "not too closely" and 4 percent were unsure or did not answer.

Those findings emerged from a $484,000 survey conducted for the Veterans Administration by Louis Harris and Associates of 2,464 Vietnam era veterans, 510 educators and 1,000 business executives. The VA released the results yesterday.

Nearly three-fourths of the veterans said they were glad they served their country and 69 percent disagreed with the statement: "The United States took unfair advantage of me."

Max Cleland, VA administrator, was encouraged.

"I think this indicates that Vietnam veterans are not the sunshine patriots that Thomas Paine warned us about," Cleland said.

An earlier part of the survey, released last November, showed that 63 percent of Americans feel GIs in Vietnam "were made suckers, having to risk their lives in the wrong war in the wrong place at the wrong time."

Forty-nine percent of the Vietnam era veterans and 47 percent of those who actually served in the war zone felt the United States should have stayed out of the war.

In other results:

- By 51-45 percent, Vietnam era veterans gave the VA a negative rating on the job it does in serving their needs. But when asked about specific programs, veterans generally rated them higher. The public was even more critical of VA programs.
- About a third of the veterans agreed with this statement: "It is shameful what my country did to the Vietnamese people."
- 72 percent of Vietnam era veterans felt troops were asked to fight in a war which U.S. political leaders would not let them win.
