Flyer owner seeks share of Eagles

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ed Snider, owner of the Philadelphia Flyers, says he is considering buying a 48 percent share of the Philadelphia Eagles football team but no offer has been made.

"Basically, all we did was take a look at the thing," Snider said from his home Wednesday night. "It's gone no further than that; it's no more complex than that. This is all very premature. There's nothing to report."

Snider added that he and advisors in his corporation, Spectacor, had no timetable for reaching a decision.

Susan Fletcher, daugher of Eagles owner Leonard Tose, was quoted in the Philadelphia Daily News on Wednesday as saying that Tose has offered to sell up to 48 percent of the ownership of his NFL team. Tose intends to retain majority ownership, his daughter said.

Snider's Spectacor organization includes the Spectrum arena, the PRISM cable TV service, the SpectaGuard secucity service, and the Showcase group of retail stores, along with the Flyers' NHL team.

"Spectacor looks at a lot of opportunties, and we're looking at the Eagles the same as we would any other opportunity," Fred Shabel, president of the company, said Wednesday.

"We're still very much in the analysis stage, trying to come to some conclusions. When you look at anything, there are all kinds of questions that come up. That's what we're doing now. We're making up a list of all kinds of issues."

Shabel said that Snider, a former executive vice president of the Eagles, remained interested in the team.

"He was very much involved many, many years ago," Shabel said. "And he is very appreciative of what the Eagles have accomplished."

Fletcher said, however, that three other groups are also negotiating to buy the minority share of the Eagles. She declined to name them.

NFL spokesman Jim Heffernan, in an interview with the Philadelphia Inquirer, said the league would wait and see what Tose proposed.

He said he could see no problems with the deal, unless Snider were trying to buy a majority share of the Eagles.

Fletcher said she wants to go about the sale in a methodical manner, but she'd like to close the deal before the beginning of the NFL season.

Steelers sign 2 picks

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers said Thursday the team had signed two more players selected in this year's college draft.

The latest players to sign contracts with the NFL team were wide receiver Wayne Capers, a second-round pick from Kansas, and offensive guard Mark Kirchner, a seventh-round pick from Baylor.

Pittsburgh has signed 11 of its 14 draft choices.

Those still negotiating contracts are defensive back Isaac Metcalf, guard Blake Wingle and running back Roger Wiley, a team spokesman said.

Hernandez disappointed about deal

St. Louis fans less than reserved over Hernandez trade

By PAUL NOWELL
Associated Press Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — First baseman Keith Hernandez admits he was "a little shocked, to say the least" when he learned that he had been traded by the St. Louis Cardinals to the New York Mets. But the five-time Gold Glove winner had expected to be traded sometime this year.

"I'm disappointed," Hernandez said. "I love it here and the fans were great to me. The hard part is that my family gets uprooted. But that's part of the game.

"I knew that one day I would be traded."

However, fans at Busch Stadium to see the Cardinals game with the Philadelphia Phillies were less reserved about the deal that sent Hernandez to New York Wednesday night for right-handed pitchers Neil Allen and Rick Owneby.

"Who are we going to put in his place?" asked Robert Williams of south St. Louis. "If they trade two more, I ain't coming."

Eddie Householder of Jacksonville, Ark., had driven nearly 400 miles to see the Cardinals play. "If the Cards trade Hernandez, they can give up on the series," he said. "They need hitters. They don't need a pitcher."

Hernandez, a .299 lifetime hitter, drove in 105 runs in 1979 when he shared the National League Most Valuable Player award with Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell. He led the league in batting with a .344 average.

Hernandez was a key figure in the Cardinals' successful run last season for their first world championship since 1967. However, he had driven in only 28 runs in the team's first 56 games in 1983, and he had batted only about .200 with runners in scoring position.

The trade apparently resolves two problems Manager Whitey Herzog has been wrestling with all season. Herzog has made it clear that he lacks confidence in his pitching staff. Joaquin Andujar is 3-8. Middle relief has been suspect, and two future hopefuls, John Fulgham and Andy Rincon, both are injured.

The Hernandez trade also paves the way for Herzog to move George Hendrick from right field to first base. And that clears the way for David Green or Andy Van Slyke to play regularly in the outfield.

The lefthanded-hitting Van Slyke, 22, was batting .364 for St. Louis' top farm club when he was called up by the Cardinals this week.

"We've got Greenie, Willie (McGee) and Van Slyke who all can play left field, center field and right field," Herzog said. "I might let them all play three innings at each one."

Whether the Cardinals got equal value in return for Hernandez remains unanswered. Allen is 2-7 with two saves and a 4.50 earned-run average. And Rick Ownbey, another right-hander, is 1-3 with a 4.67 ERA.

But Herzog points to Allen's 69 saves in four-plus seasons with the Mets.

"If his stats weren't bad you couldn't get him," Herzog said. "All I know is that he's got one helluva arm."

The trade came as something of a surprise because it was thought that with Lonnie Smith in a drug rehabilitation center, the Cardinals couldn't afford to lose two .300 hitters in the same week.

"The Lonnie Smith thing didn't enter into our thinking because of Van Slyke," said Cardinals General Manager Joe McDonald.

"It's hard to trade a player of Keith's stature," McDonald said. "But we've demonstrated in advance that we have traded many popular players like Ken Reitz and Garry Templeton and Ted Simmons. We're not afraid to do what is best for this club."

Herzog said he weighed the delicate balance between pitching and hitting.

"We had to decide if we were going to have enough hitting if we did this. Or did we have enough pitching if we didn't do it? We need pitching."

Rumors run rampant around Martin; Steinbrenner and N.Y. skipper meet

By CHUCK MELVIN
AP Sports Writer

CLEVELAND (AP) — Billy Martin, in his third stormy tenure as manager of the New York Yankees, confirmed last night that he met with team owner George Steinbrenner, but he declined to reveal details of the meeting.

Rumors have been swirling this week that Martin, who signed a five-year, $1.5 million contract with the Yankees before the start of this season, will be fired again.

Steinbrenner fired Martin once and Martin barely beat him to the punch a second time when he quit when his firing was reportedly imminent.

"The meeting had nothing to do with my job," Martin said before yesterday's game with the Cleveland Indians. He refused to elaborate.

A Yankees source said Steinbrenner, who owns American Ship Building Co. in nearby Lorain, Ohio, met with Martin for about 90 minutes Wednesday night, after the Yankees snapped a four-game losing streak with an 8-5 victory over the Indians.

The victory evened New York's record for the season at 30-30.

Steinbrenner no longer was in Cleveland yesterday, the source said.

Speculation persisted that Martin's job was in trouble, in part because of the Yankees' recent problems on the field and in part because of his reportedly questionable work habits.

According to some reports, Steinbrenner has been upset with Martin because he allegedly was taking pregame naps in the clubhouse, was not communicating well with his coaches and was permitting some of his players to remain in the clubhouse after games started.

Steinbrenner also was reportedly upset because Martin failed to attend a recent workout ordered by the owner.

"I think when you're a leader, people tend to want to knock you down. Everybody has a skeleton in his closet, but I don't do those things people say I do," Martin said, adding that the rumors are different every year.

"I go to church on Sunday and the Lord knows where I am. I don't care what people say."

Martin, who fielded ground balls and worked out with his players before last night's contest, made light of the rumors about his job.

"Yeah, I'm going to be fired before the game tonight," he said with a slight smile. "I don't pay no attention to rumors."

Oakmont is Palmer country

By D. BYRON YAKE
AP Sports Editor

OAKMONT, Pa. — This is Arnie Palmer country.

Young golfers dream dreams about being an Arnie Palmer, and those dreams probably are multiplied if you've grown up in his back yard.

"When you stand in front of the king you have to be in awe," said Mike Nicolette, who was paired with Palmer yesterday in the first round of the U.S. Open Championship.

AP Laserphoto

Arnold Palmer drives off the ninth tee yesterday's first round action at Oakmont Country Club. Palmer had a share of the lead early on, but faded to a 74.

"You can't say enough about him."

Nicolette was raised in Palmer land. He grew up in Mount Pleasant, about 20 miles from Latrobe, where Palmer lived.

"I've always wanted to play golf with him," said the 26-year-old Nicolette, who was born when Palmer, now 53, was 27.

Nicolette said he was a little nervous about playing with his boyhood idol, but that the fear pumped him up.

"I hit my drive 30 feet past him on the first hole," Nicolette said.

Things continued to go well for several holes. Then on No. 6, a par 3, they went awry, and he took a double bogey after hitting his drive under a tree.

Nicolette finished with a 76, and never got a birdie. He had three bogeys on the back nine.

Palmer, meanwhile, seemed to have his magic working for a while, only to see it shattered with bogeys on No. 9, 17 and 18. He finished with a 3-over 74.

"No. 9 is probably the likeliest birdie hole on the course, and 17 is close to the next," Palmer said. "Those holes you have to play well, and if I had played them well I would have had a respectable round."

Palmer looked weary after the round was over.

Asked whether the heat — 84 degrees — bothered him, he said, "No."

Then he looked up, chuckled, and asked, "What do you think I am, an old man?"

Asked if he heard any echoes on this famed course, where he has played so often in his career.

"Oh, memories?" he replied. "There are so many they are all jumbled up. I can go back to the early 40s if you wanted to, or the mid or late 40s."

He smiled again. "Or the mid-50s or 60s or 70s. I can go back a long time, a lot of memories."

Nicolette has few memories of Oakmont. He had not played Oakmont since he was 15, and he played just three practice rounds, deciding to play no more because the course was playing so tough.

Italians: no chance to win Cup

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

NEWPORT, R.I. — Gianfranco Alberini may be managing a syndicate that has the backing of 17 major Italian corporations to the tune of some $5 million, but he isn't foolish enough to believe that money can buy an America's Cup.

"We have no chance to win," he said when asked if he thought the first Italian effort in the 132-year history of sailing's most prestigious event would be successful. "But we're here, and we came to learn how to sail 12-meter yachts."

And learn they will when trials begin tomorrow for foreign competitors from seven syndicates with designs on becoming the first non-Americans ever to win the Cup. The Italians, their enormous budget notwithstanding, simply don't figure to match up well against the likes of battle-seasoned syndicates such as the Australians and British.

Nontheless, Alberini wants the world to know that his country finally has made it to the big show of sailing. An attempt to send an Italian boat was made initially in 1957, but there was little in the way of money or interest in the country.

Now, through the support of the Aga Khan and the Costa Smeralda Yacht Club of Sardina, the light blue Azzurra will sail the waters of Rhode Island Sound in hopes of winning a few races.

"We have made a financial commitment that will last for 10 years," Alberini said. "There was no reason to raise all this money just to come over here once. We like to think we are here to stay."

Among the backers or the syndicate are Alitalia, the giant international air carrier, and Cinzano a large importer of wines and spirits.

The Italians had been doing well last week in tuneups against the French boat France 3 and were planning some final races with top flight contender Australia II before the serious competition was to began Saturday.

"That's when we'll find out how good we are," Alberini said, adding with a laugh that he wanted Italy to be remembered in the United States for something other than "spaghetti and some bad things."
