

The Advocate.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 9, 1879.

The business of the country seems to be improving.

The debt statement issued on Jan. 2d shows an increase of the debt for December of $1,233,785.30.

The annual message of Governor Hartranft to the Legislature of Pennsylvania has been received at this office.

Secretary Sherman is beginning to contemplate the possibility of refunding the balance of 6 per cent. bonds at 3 per cent.

Hon. Morton M. Michael, senior editor of the North American and ex-mayor of Philadelphia, died on Monday of heart disease after a brief illness.

Hon. Caleb Cushing died on Jan. 2d at his home in Newburyport, Mass. He was born on the 17th day of January, 1800, and was eminent in law, literature, and public affairs.

Judge Charles T. Sherman died suddenly at Cleveland on the morning of January 1st. Deceased was a brother of General and Secretary Sherman, and father-in-law of J. Donald Cameron.

There is skating in Atlanta for the first time in 20 years. Thousands of pounds of ice have been cut and packed. This is the first time that such a thing has ever been known in that section. There is great suffering among the poor, who are being relieved by the municipal authorities.

Ex-State Treasurer Robert W. Mackey died on January 1st 1879, at Philadelphia. He was born in Pittsburgh on December 22, 1837, and was therefore but a few weeks past forty-one years of age. For several terms he filled the office of State Treasurer and was a prominent politician.

Two men were on Tuesday taken to McMinville, Tennessee, heavily guarded and lodged in jail, charged with a murder committed during the war. They belonged to Tinker Dave's command, and killed a man named Baker, in Cumberland county. Baker's son was a child when his father was killed, and having now attained manhood's estate, intends to see his father's murderers punished.

Resumption day in New York produced no excitement in business circles. At the sub-treasury the demand for gold was unimportant, a great many people preferring greenbacks to the "glittering chinks." Up to 2 o'clock, Jan. 2d, there was received at the sub-treasury over $500,000 in gold against a disbursement of only $125,000. Greenbacks are now taken at all the costume houses in payment of duties.

A girl fifteen years old, at Tennant's Harbor, Me., recently fell in love with a young man who preferred her cousin. This made her so jealous that she bought some sugar of lead, on pretence of using it for sore eyes, and tried to administer it to her cousin as candy. The peculiar odor, however, attracted the rival's attention, and she carried it home, where a doctor pronounced it poison. An attempt has been made to hush up the affair, and the would-be poisoner was not arrested.

A clerk in the Washington post office lost a package of $10,000 in cash which was returned intact after a few hours. In New York the regular messenger of the Importers and Traders' Bank being absent, a new man was sent with the usual consignment of clearing house. He was accompanied by the bank detective and carried $160,000 clearing house certificates of legal tenders deposited in the U. S. Treasury, $42,900 United States gold certificates, $6,755.98 currency and $67 in gold. This large amount has also been returned with the exception of about $7,000.00. People are either getting very honest or money must be getting very plenty.

At a late hour on the night of Jan. 2d a man named Anthony Dolmer was walking up Gratiot avenue, Detroit, Mich., on his way home, when a cutter containing three men came tearing along at a rapid rate. When opposite Dolmer one of the occupants drew a revolver and fired. The ball entering Dolmer's left thigh and taking an upward course is believed to have penetrated the lungs. The wounded man sank to the pavement while the cutter dashed on, one of the party crying out, "How's that for a happy New Year!" A policeman hearing the shot came to Dolmer's assistance. A surgeon probed for the bullet unsuccessfully, internal hemorrhages set in and the man will probably die.

The legislature of Maine has elected Dr. Alonso Garcelon, Democrat, Governor of that State. The laws of Maine require that the candidate elected shall have a clear majority of all the votes cast. At the election in September last Corner, Republican, received 56,419 votes; Garcelon, Democrat, 27,873; Smith, Greenbacker, 41,404. The Democrats and Greenbackers united in the lower house and sent the names of Garcelon and Smith to the Senate, as the law requires the names of two candidates voted for to be sent to that body, thus compelling the Republican majority in the Senate to elect either a Democrat or Greenbacker, and their choice fell on the Democrat, he being considered a hard money man.

Washington Letter. (From our regular correspondent.) Washington, D. C., January 1, 1879. The new year has opened full of promise. Without reviewing the melancholy things among the events of 1878, or referring to the distressed conditions belonging to its predecessors, we know that it brought us full granaries, and passed us twelve months further on in the grand advance towards a healthy state, and it makes its exit leaving behind unmistakable signs of better things to come. And resumption is now a legal fact, though it can not be said to be an accomplished fact. Probably many of your readers are among those who have regarded it impracticable, yet now that a trial has come, even though it is only a shadow and not the substance, they will hope none the less that it may succeed. Failure would be a hundred fold more disastrous than the past unsettled condition could have been even if prolonged indefinitely.

It is, however, sheer nonsense to assume that this so-called resumption will produce an "immediate change for the better," or an "immediate prosperity." The improvement now beginning to be felt in business, has been slowly taking place for months past, and returning confidence and buoyancy is not a consequence of resumption, but the very thing that renders it even remotely possible. These improvements are not the result of anything Secretary Sherman has done, but in spite of it. He did not create the usual foreign demand for our products, nor did he grow the wheat, iron, cotton, hogs and beavers, that enable us to supply it. As a strong constitution will enable a patient to throw off disease and slowly convalesce toward perfect health, despite bad medical treatment, so this vigorous country, aided by boundless resources, has been recovering from depression, despite all the evils of bad legislation and the cruel, grinding policy of Sherman. There is reason to believe that the same causes that have been helping our financial condition and great industries, will continue to help them. In short, while the indications for the future do not promise a speedy return to the feverish speculative period of prosperity more apparent than real; they do point to a season of wholesome, well-grounded business activity, drawing capital out from its hiding place, and giving employment to those who are willing to work. One of the most encouraging features of the last few months has been the wide-spread feeling, among the possessors of means, that nothing was safer than government bonds. But with gold and silver and greenbacks on an equality, and enough of all to transact the business of the country, moneyed men will be more ready to invest their funds in their accumulations.

New Year's day is a state occasion in Washington, always, and it never was a livelier one than on Wednesday. After the grey light and fast falling snow were painting the atmosphere with a cold tint, the streets were thronged with carriages and well-dressed pedestrians making for the city. The White House was the theatre of a most brilliant scene. Before 10 o'clock in the morning the carriage-ways were thronged with vehicles, and at 12 o'clock when the doors were thrown open, the guests were welcomed by his suit entered, attired in the court costume of their country. After them came in quick succession the French Legation, the Russian Ministry, and the Turkish ambassador, all decked out in the full ceremonial of their respective countries. They were a pleasing sight, these foreigners, and attracted much attention. The guests were then taken to the Judges of the Supreme Court, and after them officers of the Army in dress uniform. At 12 o'clock the general reception ensued, when there gathered about a hundred of our citizens, Speaker Randall and Secretary Ewart, Schurz, Thompson and McCrary, also held receptions in the afternoon, which were largely attended. Secretary Sherman did not receive, on account of the death of his brother, Judge Sherman, at Cleveland.

Quite a large proportion of Congressmen have remained in the city during the recess and the industrious ones among them have been preparing to contribute their share towards a season of activity after the reassembling on Tuesday. If there is any one thing more than another that is preparing his speech it is "figgers," and judging from the numerous calls upon the various departments for "figgers," a goodly number of oratorical efforts are to be fired off before the end of the session. It is very probable that there is to be done. There is going to be a hot fight over some of the important appropriations, and a general stirring up of numerous other things. It is to be expected that the bill will have to run the gauntlet of sharp opposition. The charge is already made that the section depriving the government of the right to manufacture arms is a vast job in the interest of some private establishments. But most objectionable of all is the provision which reduces the Secretary of War to a mere cipher, and overthrowing all civil control of the military and naval departments, and placing them under the control of the President. It won't go through in that shape.

Always Wear Suspender Buckles! The Titusville Herald records a shooting affair at that place New Year's night. It appears that S. W. Blakesley and Race Thomas had some words in the Exchange Hotel bar-room about a woman whom Thomas slapped Blakesley in the face for an alleged insult. Blakesley then went to a hardware store and bought a revolver. Entering the Exchange Hotel bar-room again, the Herald says he approached Race Thomas, leveled a pistol at him and said, "Good bye, Race," and fired instantly. Race rushed upon his assailant just in time to prevent a second shot. The bullet struck Thomas in the back and gave him severe punishment. At this point Mike Moran entered the saloon, seized Blakesley, and conveyed him to the lock-up, while the revolver, which had fallen to the floor, was picked up by the sheriff. The firing party were so completely taken by surprise that they could hardly realize the situation. Upon examination it was discovered that the ball had entered the right coat sleeve of Thomas and struck square against the buckle of his suspender under the right nipple, from which it glanced around the body and grazed the skin. Blakesley spent the night in the lock-up, and yesterday was arraigned before Justice Strouse on a charge of shooting with intent to kill. His counsel, Charles B. Guthrie, waived an examination and asked for bail. The prisoner was bound over to stand his trial in default of $1,500 bail. He spent last night in the lock-up, and unless he can procure the required amount of bail to be taken to Meadville, the punishment for this offense, if convicted, will be five years solitary confinement. The place where the ball struck Thomas is black and blue for several inches. The spent ball was found in the lining of his coat.
