

FARM, GARDEN AND HOUSEHOLD.

FOR THE FAIR SEX.

Orchard and Garden Notes. Tacks were driven in the bodies of trees from one to six years old on the grounds of the Iowa agricultural college...

Fashion Notes. Tulle illusion is the popular bridal veil. Bridal slippers may be either of white satin or white kid.

Avoid hollies, ravines and any spongy black land. Even if well drained, such land grows trees which are likely to be succulent and short-lived.

The most costly silk hose have oval or oval lace inserted in the instep. Slippers have precedence over boots in the moment, for the bridal toilet.

The Rural New Yorker says: We condemn the practice of heaping up the earth about the stems of fruit trees...

Underwear of spun silk, in cardinal red, are among the choice novelties in hosiery. The bridal fan and handkerchief should be of the same kind of lace that trims the wedding robe.

One of its readers sends an exchange the following note: Out of twenty-six witnesses I have examined in reference to the best way of managing an orchard...

Bridal gloves are of cream or grey, white kid, with from eight to twelve buttons. Underwear of spun silk, in cardinal red, are among the choice novelties in hosiery.

Plants are often frosted through neglect, and allowed to die through ignorance. Those that have been quite severely injured may be saved if treated rightly.

When the bridal veil is of point lace, the fall over the face is of tulle, interleaved on one side with a bridal bouquet.

Very youthful brides wear Valenciennes and Mechlin laces, while those no longer in their teens or twenties select points de Bruxelles, d'Alencon, or Duchesse.

White silk stockings for bridal wear are either plain, checked or embroidered on the side seams or instep, or have medallions or ovals inserted in the instep or sides of fine laces.

Spun silk hosiery in broad ribs and high colors—red, blue, black and brown worn in the coldest weather by delicately organized women who cannot bear the contact of wool stockings.

Black kid gloves, embroidered in silk to match the dress and with several rows of buttons, are the most stylish gloves for ceremonious toilets.

I have for several years cultivated a few choice roses. Last spring I added twenty to the number, and nearly all of them I set out in three or four-inch pots.

Buttons occupy so large a field that any taste may be gratified in choosing. From agates and foreign pebbles, on with great care and beauty, down to the plain machine-trimmed—there is a great variety.

Several years ago I was forced to strip my bushes of their leaves, not knowing then how otherwise to get rid of the aphids, though I have since proved the virtues of hellebore.

A Parrot's Piety. Captain James Etobehber vouches for the following bird story: About thirty years ago when in Honduras in command of the bark Eldorado, his wife then accompanying him, he was presented with a parrot, a sprightly bird and a fluent dissembler in the Spanish language.

A Flag that Refused to Go Up. During the last grand "review" of the troops by the Emperor, at Aldershot, the big flag refused to go up the staff, to the great mortification of the managers.

PAYING THE PENALTY. The scene opens in the Morgue, New York, when the body of a handsome young man has just been brought in, and where lies under the dripping of the lead water, which falls upon it to arrest the progress of decomposition.

Two soldiers had long stood ready at the flagstaff to hoist the grand standard; and, when the queen was seen, the signal for its raising was given. Up it went, flapping in the strong wind; but so clumsily was it done that the flag was wrapped round the staff, and not half of it blew out freely.

At last a soldier advanced to climb the flagstaff; subdued cheers greeted him; the queen was now far away, trotting down the long line of soldiers; the men were shouting and cheering.

On the previous day Dr. Fordyce had been summoned to the house of his next door neighbor, Mrs. Remington. On his arrival there he found Mrs. Remington and her daughter Flora in the agonies of grief.

Conceals were introduced into England by Elizabeth, Queen of Aragon, in 1580. Elizabeth, on public occasions, rode behind her chamberlain; and she, in her old age, according to Wilson, used reluctantly such an effeminate conveyance.

Up went the bold dragon, not stopping even to take of his heavy boots. The point of the dragon's tail had stopped; then all seemed to take breath, and the murmur of triumph swelled.

When Lisa heard that her lover's body had disappeared, and found that she had an instinctive idea of what Dr. Fordyce's object had been in buying her husband's body, she burst into tears.
