SENTINEL & REPUBLICAN

MIFFLINTOWN.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 16, 1888.

B. F. SCHWEIER,

EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

THE wheat crop in Michigan will be a short one.

CONGRESS will not adjourn till late in the summer.

THERE is a loud talk of war between turkey and Russia.

DR. ATKINSON delivered a tariff speech in Congress last week.

BUSINESS people in Altoona are raising $40,000 to start a silk mill in the mountain city.

THE Methodist Conference in session in New York protests against the admission of Utah.

SENATOR VOORHEES unloaded by making an apology to the Senate for his boorishness in debate with Ingalls.

GOVERNOR HILL of York State, has vetoed the High License bill. Democracy and the saloon seem to be inseperable.

SENATOR VOORHEES apologized and asked the pardon of the United States Senate for the foul language he used in the debate with Senator Ingalls.

"A TUSCOLA COUNTY, Michigan man, has during the past eleven years, been tapped 134 times for dropsy, and 2,500 pounds of water taken from his body."

LIQUOR dealers in Virginia are accommodating to the thirsty. In defiance of law they stealthily peddle it from a wagon. See despatch elsewhere in these columns.

THE General Methodist conference after wrestling with the question of the admission of women as delegates ruled not to admit the sisters as lay delegates to the conference.

"FORTY-FIVE boys left the Indian training school at Carlisle to go on farms for the summer, and 20 Indian girls left the school to go into families in a number of eastern counties of the State."

"THE district stewards of the M. E. church have fixed the salary of Presiding Elder Foster of this district at $2,000, the same as last year, which includes house rent and traveling expenses."

LAMAR, ex-rebel, on the Supreme Bench and Fuller, ex rebel sympathizer looming up as Chief Justice of the Supreme Bench, certainly should convince people that we are on the back track to the old state of affairs.

AN explosion of natural gas in Buffalo, York State, last Thursday, destroyed the finest church in the city. The church was valued at $250,000. Explosions took place in several other buildings at the same time, caused it is believed by an over pressure.

SENATOR INGALLS is President of the Senate, and when Senator voorhees stepped forward to apologize for the language used in debate, Ingalls softened the ordeal by calling a Senator to the chair while he stood on the floor which was a magnus act.

NOTWITHSTANDING the short wheat crop prospects in the United States, the price of wheat cannot be much increased, if peace continues to reign among the people of the old world, for India, Russia, Australia, Chili, have heavy crops to throw on the markets of the world.

MR. FULLER, President Cleveland's nominee for the Chief Justiceship of the United States Supreme Court, was during the war against rebellion known as a "copperhead," or rebel sympathizer. The people placed Cleveland in the Presidential chair and if he scatters dragon teeth to plague the country within the coming generation. Who's to blame? The Democracy and their followers.

A NATIVE of a certain locality in Georgia, killed a stranger because he wore store clothes. If the murderer is a representative of the feeling of the people of that community on the question of store clothes, that would not be a profitable place in which to start a clothing store. The murderer was placed upon trial and convicted, and sentenced to be hung. Last Friday was fixed as the day of execution, but strange to relate Governor Gordon commuted the sentence to life imprisonment, on the ground that the prisoner was not intelligent enough to appreciate the crime.

THE five women who were duly elected delegates to the Methodist General Conference in New York and after a weeks discussion rejected, or not allowed to sit in the conference as delegates, have friends enough to cause a considerable stir in Methodist circles. A series of resolutions were offered in which the Bishops were charged with exercising powers that they do not have conferred on them by the laws of the church. The question will come up again next year. The woman delegate question is a living issue in the Methodist church.

☞ IN a New York parlor, a few evenings ago, three couple were married by one and the same preacher. The three couple appeared in the parlor at the same time, one couple behind the other. The first couple were married and stepped to the rear and of the line; the 2nd couple were married and stepped back; the 3rd couple were married and stepped back, and then the line appeared as when it entered the parlor. The six newly married people came to a single line front face and in that way received the congratulations of the company.

THE State Supreme Court last week rendered an opinion under the liquor license act of May 13, 1887, that the power to grant license to sell liquor is discretionary with the lower courts. "Thus if a ward or county has one hundred public houses, where only fifty are required by the public wants it is plain that fifty houses must be denied license, although every one of the applicants is a worthy man and keeps a respectable house, and though there be neither remonstrance nor objection on the score or want of fitness. The denial of a license under such circumstances may seem arbitrary. The trouble is there are more persons who want to sell liquor than the Legislature considered it for the public good to license for that purpose.

FROM the North American: Govern or Hill, of New York, probably hopes to catch the labor vote by his veto of the bill repealing the Saturday half-holiday law. There is a good deal of buncombe about the measure which this bill attempts to repeal. Business men must make hay while the sun shines, and cannot afford to lose a half day a week in the busy season. That is an important point to employer and employed alike. The object of the repeal bill is to have Saturday half holidays during June, July, August and September, but Mr. Hill was not satisfied with this and wanted the whole day made a holiday during these months, or the half holidays continued during the entire year. Fortunately the vote by which the repeal bill was passed is large enough to override the veto, and this is likely to be done.

THE next thing to mysticism is the Democratic party in Juniata. Next Friday the regular wing of the party will hold a Committee meeting in the Court House. Next Saturday the wing that is not regular will hold a Committee meeting in the Court House. Each or both wings want a representative in the Democratic State Convention soon to assemble at Harrisburg. The war-whoop resounds throughout this beautiful valley from the Susquehanna to the Huntingdon line, and the scalping knife is brandished and tomahawk is flourished in the face of defiant elan men. If six Philadelphia, Democratic lawyers, were brought into the case with Democratic lawyers, Patterson, Jacobs, Neely, Burchfield, Keller and Doty, they would hang the case in a disagreement and mystify everybody by a more persistent difference of statement. If six Philadelphia Democratic doctors were called in consultation with Democratic doctors, Crawford and Son, Fisher, Heading, Grubb, and Sulouff, the diagnosis they would make of the disease of the sick Democracy would be an interesting one to listen to. Above the discordant opinions of the lawyers and doctors are the deliverances of Garman of the Tribune and Jackman of the Democrat and Register. These editorial pillars of the Democracy seem to be in as happy a state of disagreement as the lawyers and doctors. The long list of lay chieftains, such as Conn, McCahen, Burchfield, Fink, Musser, Parker, Harlan, Knouse, Kerlin, Beale, and a hundred others are no more harmonious than the great mass of their party. They are all longing to be pointed to a city of refuge. They will not, they cannot understand each other. Gentlemen there is a panacea for all this trouble; take it. You ask what is it? The answer is, Republican medicine. Why live in a continual state of turmoil and trouble? flee to the city of refuge and be happy in the fold of the Republican party. Come ye disconsolate.

DAYTON, Ohio, May 9.—A public school house here was struck by lightning yesterday and two little girls were injured, while a panic was prevented only by the presence of mind of the teachers. Many of the children felt the shock.

A Moonshiner Rescued.

LYNCHBURG, Va., May 9.—United States Revenue Officer A. H. Williams arrested a moonshiner, George Hale at Rocky Mount, Franklin county, yesterday, while peddling illicit whisky from an ox cart. While on the way to jail the guards were overpowered by a crowd of one hundred and fifty men and the prisoner was released. The officers were threatened if pursuit should be attempted, and the rescued prisoner was carried to the mountains amid loud shouts. No pursuit was made.

Stealing a Beer.

CHICAGO, May 9.—A despatch from Newport, Neb., says: John Peters a farmer, living three miles from Newport, has been arrested for a singular crime. Early yesterday morning Henry Winkleman, a homesteader, was awakened by a noise on the roof and looking up saw that about half of it was gone. Greatly puzzled, he hurried out just in time to see the missing section of his roof on a wagon, which was disappearing around a curve in the road. Securing his rifle he waited. Presently the wagon came in sight again, and its occupant, a neighboring homesteader, named John Peters, drove to within a few yards of the house and then stopped. He then approached on foot carefully removed another section of the roof and was carrying it to the wagon when Winkleman halted him, and with the assistance of his son drove to Newport and delivered him to the constable. When asked what his motive was for the unique bit of villany, Peters said he had just completed the walls of a sod shanty and being unable to buy lumber for the roof, was tempted to appropiate his neighbors.'

Sunday Newspapers.

A despatch from New York last Thursday says: A very amusing discovery was made by the newspaper men yesterday. At least they think it a good joke on the Methodists Bishops, who spoke so decidedly in their address on the subject of Sunday work, especially on Sunday papers. A sharp reporter learned that the Daily Christian Advocate of Monday was set up in part on Sunday morning. This makes the publishers of Sunday papers laugh in their sleeves. They don't think the Advocate people have done anything wrong, but are inclined to thank them for unwittingly contributing to establishing that to supply the public with news on Monday requires a certain amount of work to be done on Sunday, and that really Sunday papers do not require as much Sunday work as Monday morning newspapers. Mr. Sheparagain's idea of condemning Sunday papers and then taking the news that other people have gathered on Sunday and using it on Monday doesn't seem hardly the fair thing.

A Young Husband.

That one-half the people do not know the other half live, finds an illustration in the following, from the New York Mail and Express of May 8: A 15 year old husband was arraigned at the Essex Market Court this morning for abandonment. His wife gave her age as 19, but she looked to be 30. The youthful husband is Hirsch Geiger, a cloak operator, of No. 154 Forsyth street. The woman caused the arrest of young Geiger in April, for breach of promise of marriage, and he was thrown into Ludlow street Jail. He earns $5 a week, and she wanted $2,000 damages. He was in jail two weeks when, on May 1, he consented to marry the girl. He was taken to Lawyer Nathan Lozy's office, where he said that he had $40 in bank, and that after the ceremony was performed they would go to house-keeping together. Alderman Philip Benjaman was sent for and the wedding took place. Then the bridegroom made for the door, and his wife did not see him again until this morning when she caused his arrest.

A Murderer Escapes.

LEBANON, Pa., May 8.—William Showers the old man who murdered his two little grandsons at Annville, in order that he might be free to marry according to his choice, escaped from the jail here last night, leaving behind letters in which he bid defiance to the people who had threatened to lynch him.

About daylight this morning one of the Sheriff's daughters saw that the cell in which the murderer had been confined was apparently empty. She at once informed her father, who hurried to the cell. There he saw light shining in through a hole in one corner, and he no longer doubted that the bird had flown. Investigation showed that the old man had secured an iron instrument of some kind, and had commenced operations in the northwest corner of his cell, about three inches from the floor. He marked out a space about eighteen inches long and twelve inches wide. He then commenced taking out the stones and mortar. There is no doubt that this work was begun several days ago.

As he progressed in the work of digging through a wall two feet in thickness he laid the stones and mortar under his chaff bag, and the hole in the wall was covered with his pillow and a few newspapers.

When the hole was large enough to permit his body to pass through, the old man made a rope from his blanket and let himself down to within six feet of the ground and dropped into the jail yard, from which it was an easy matter to make his way to the street.

The Sheriff and Detective Bechtel at once organized a searching party, and a reward of $100 is offered for the capture of Showers. The murderer, though over seventy years of age, is strong and vigorous, and will be able to make a desperate fight for liberty.

The pursuing party traced him to the mountains in the vicinity of Indiantown Gap. From the jail he had gone to Annville, his old home, and visited John Gross, an old friend, of whom he asked a hiding place. Upon being refused he went on to the mountains.

Showers was captured on Sunday the 13th and returned to Lebanon jail.

Interstate Picnic Exhibition at Williams Grove, Pa.

Opens Monday, August 27, 1888, and continues the entire week. Those desiring either exhibitors' space or tents should apply early, as the demand is greater than ever before. Over 150,400 farmers will be present during the week. Applications for tents and space are received by every mail. For further information, address,

E. H. THOMAS,
General Manager.

Mechanicsburg, Cumberland Co., Pa.

This great meeting of farmers and manufacturers, which opens August 27, 1888, and continues the entire week, gives abundant promise of being much more largely attended than ever before. Manufacturers are learning to better appreciate the unrivaled advantages which this Exhibition affords, and to realize that the surest way to introduce to our agricultural turists the different implements and varied kinds of machinery designed to lighten labor and facilitate farming operations, is to meet the farmers themselves, talk with them, show them the workings of their machinery and learn from them in return just what is defective, or where improvements are needed.

Last year many manufacturing firms, unacquainted with the magnitude of this gathering, sent on special representatives to take a survey of the situation and see what was going on. To say that these representatives were pleased would be putting it too mildly; they were astonished and freely confessed that in all their varied and extended business experience they had never witnessed anything that came near equalling the display of machinery on exhibition, or the number of solid, substantial and representative farmers who were present, not merely for the purpose of having a holiday, but for the purpose of learning something that would enable them to farm more successfully and to procure such improved farm machinery as would be helpful in farm work. The representatives of these firms were so impressed with what they saw, that this year they will be added to the list of exhibitors. Most of the firms which have been present during the past years are enlarging their space and otherwise improving it, adding new attractions and will bring larger exhibits.

Even at this early day representatives of new manufacturing establishments are visiting the grounds and personally seeing after desirable locations. The interest in the coming exhibition is greater than has been manifested at any former period in the history of the institution, and as a consequence the General Manager is putting forth greater efforts to keep this assemblage in the lead of all agricultural meetings.

We particularly enjoin upon those desiring either exhibitors' space or quarters to make early application, as it will be impossible to hold accommodations this year which are not positively engaged.

Officers of subordinate Granges can do much for the prosperity of the Order by informing their neighbors of the magnitude of the annual gathering of Patrons at Williams' Grove. The meeting will be held this year during the week beginning August 27th. This meeting is under the auspices of the Patrons of Husbandry, and is a powerful auxiliary in Grange work. Every patron should attend, and should use his influence to bring his neighbors, who are not members of the Order, to this exhibition, where they can learn the true objects and purposes of the Grange.

Subordinate Granges should arrange early for quarters at Williams' Grove during the continuance of the coming Interstate Picnic Exhibition. The rush is going to be great, and those who delay their applications may not be able to secure all the room they desire.

COUNTERFEITERS CAUGHT.

The Huntingdon Globe of the 11th inst., says. For some time past spurious silver dollars have been in circulation in the vicinity of Lloydsville, Cambria county, and the authorities undertook the task of unearthing the shovers of the "queer." The duty was assigned to assistant United States Marshal Ford and early on Friday morning, in company with Detective Simpson, he drove to Lloydsville, on the Bells Gap railroad, and arrested Isaac Edmonston, whom he found at work in a little attic room of his mountain cottage. Edmonston had about him counterfeit silver money of the various denominations, and with the remark: "Boys, the jig is up," submitted to arrest. He was heavily chained and taken to Bellwood.

Crossing through the deep pinewood the Marshal continued his raid and made the great haul of the week. By a winding mountain path bordered by big boulders and short oak trees, he reached Hornet's Hotel—a wild pass in the Alleghenies where human footsteps rarely tread. Before him was a rough log shanty, covered with a bark roof, and through the chinks he saw a man at work.

"You're my prisoner!" shouted the Marshal, as he broke in the door and rushed for the counterfeiter. The fellow was the notorious Daniel Garman, and surrounding him were dies, casts, a melting pot and other tools.

"We fight, we do," was the response, as the counterfeiter reached for a carbine in the corner, but detective Simpson was too quick for him, and pinioning him down soon had the irons on him. In a rough box buried in the ground the officers found 2000 finished spurious dollars ready for the market. Following up the clues given by Edmondson the officers drove over to Coalport and unearthed two more counterfeiters at work. They were Lord and Estep, crooks from New York, and their workshop was an unused house at Blain City. They had complete kits of tools and some plates for banknote engraving. Both were put in irons and taken to Bellwood.

Marshal Ford completed the arrests by taking into custody John Myers, a recent appointment as postmaster at Lloydsville, on the charges of tampering with the mails and co-operating with the counterfeiters. The prisoners were brought to this city on Saturday morning and given a hearing before United States Commissioner L. S. Geissinger. The evidence against Myers was not deemed sufficient to hold him and he was discharged. The other prisoners were held in $1,000 each, in default of which they were taken to the Allegheny county jail the same evening, where they will be tried in the United States Court now in session at Pittsburgh.

Edmunds was put upon trial last Wednesday, for having counterfeit money in his possession. The old man's story, in explanation of how the coin came into his possession, was that some time last fall a strange man came and occupied a vacant building opposite his place in the mountains. He came to Edmondston's for food occasionally, and became indebted to him for several dollars for bread and potatoes. One day the stranger packed up his traps and went off, leaving Mr. Edmondston a box which he said contained enough to pay him in full for his bill. When the old soldier (he had been all through the war) opened the box it was found to contain fifty spurious dollars. He had kept them about the house for several weeks, when some one offered him twenty-five cents for twenty five dollars of the bad coin, which he took, thinking they were bought more out of curiosity than anything else.

The jury recommended him to the extreme mercy of the Court.

"Six small boys played "cowboy" at Burgettstown, Pa., the other day, and one was lassoed so vigorously and effectively that when his captors took the rope from his neck he was dead. He had been choked to death."

About two years ago J. McMillian began sinking an artesian well on his premises, and after boring a long time the depth of fifty five feet was reached, when the machine used in gouging into the bowels of the earth suddenly dropped of its own accord several inches, followed almost immediately by a large flow of water, coming apparently from some underground stream. Other flowing wells having been discovered in the city, nothing unusual was thought of this, although the water came up with almost terrific force, throwing a stream which promised not only to furnish a good supply for the surrounding neighborhood, but shortly to turn the locality into a small lake. A covering was secured for the well, and all was secured until some time after, when certain repairs were being made, and taking the top off again the water boiled up as furiously as ever, throwing out thousands of small pickerel.

The little fish were alive and came up in innumerable quantities for a considerable time. Last winter they made their appearance as usual, the last catch being displayed at Alderman Ryan's store. The pipe in the artesian well is three and one half inches in circumference. The discovery is one unheard of in this country before, and hundreds of people will doubtless visit the well and see the strange sight of fish coming out of the pipe sunk fifty five feet underground. The opinion is expressed that a small or large stream runs underneath the ground, propably coming from Lake Manitoba. Owing to the force of the water it would be impossible to sink spawn to the bottom of the well from the fish which might have originated.

In conversation with an old resident of Winnipeg recently it was learned that a similar discovery to that related above was made in this city about ten years ago. A well was sunk to a considerable depth, and small fish came forth in the water in countless numbers.
