The Altoona Tribune says. Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes advises young men not to smoke, on the ground that it "is liable to injure the sight, render the nerves unsteady, enfeeble the will and enslave the nature to an imperious habit likely to stand in the way of a duty to be performed." But the average young man of the period, believing himself much wiser than Dr. Holmes, will follow his own inclination and cling to his cigar.

Everybody in the Juniata Valley is in hearty accord with the effort of Representative Hertzler to secure the passage of a bill through the Legislature for the construction of a fish way in the Millerstown dam. The river should be free for the finny tribe to swim from tide water to the rushing head waters of the river in the region of Altoona. An open stream for the fish would be hailed with delight by all the people.

The men at the factory guyed him, and Sayre, after recognizing him, was not a little ashamed to escort him through the streets to his residence, where he was kindly and tearfully received by his sister. Murray then told Sayre and his sister that he had come to spend the balance of his days with them, but that he proposed to bear his own expenses, and surprised them by producing $10,000, which he had secreted in his boot legs, in a belt, and in the lining of his coat. Murray pocketed $1000, gave the balance to Sayre for his maintenance and appeared this afternoon in a new suit from head to foot.

Communication.

Juniata county has many free bridges built at the expense of the property holders. The bridges that are free are in such places that are necessary for the public good, but in such thinly settled districts that it will not pay a company or corporation to build and keep up bridges. It is a principle of American goverment that a town a township or county ought never to engage in any business where the business may be done by individuals. That is why railroads, telegraphs and so forth, and bridges where they will pay private parties are left to the building of companies. The bridges in the townships of Juniata will not pay for companies to keep up, therefore it is the duty of the state of the county of Juniata to keep open the highway and give the people bridges, but when it comes to the roads that center at the river fordings or crossings there it is different, there companies are willing to step in and provide the highway for all who may have business to cross. It will be a great wrong to inflict the greater part of a hundred thousand debt on the people of Juniata just to make the bridges free so that a few men who walk from one side to the other do not need to pay, just because some lumbering and iron ore interests would be more profitable to the men engaged in the business. They want the public to pay for their river transportation. Free bridges across the river would not add to the business. Business is not increased unless the business add a population, and how free bridges would increase a producing population has not been explained. Because some interested individual snaked a bill through the Legislature providing for the creation of free river bridges is no argument in favor of making bridges free at the expense of the general public when a company will give transportation to every one who has business to cross the stream or who desires to cross. Harrisburg, Williamsport, Willkesbarre, three of the most important towns in the State of Pennsylvania have toll bridges and the man who proposes to make them free at the public expense is looked upon as a public enemy. The Brooklyn bridge, is not a free bridge and one would suppose that if any bridge in America might be free it would be Brooklyn bridge, but New York and Brooklyn knew full well that the taxpayers would not stand such a piece of business when a company would engage in the work and furnish a highway to all who had business or a desire to use it. When I want to cross the bridge at your town I don't begrudge the sum the bridge company asks of me for the use of the bridge, and I don't want to be so miserly as to ask the tax payers of the county to pay for my traveling over the bridge. There is a report that a fund of five hundred dollars is to be raised to be paid to some parties to free the river bridges. I don't know, whether that is true, and I don't know, who is meant to receive the five hundred dollars, but it will be well enough to look into the matter. How will it do to keep looking at the grand Jury when it meets? Perhaps it is intended to send a jury fixer among them in disguise. I ask you to publish this communication in the interest of the tax payers who have a convenient highway provided over the river by companies who charge moderate toll rates.

COUNTRYMAN.

RICHFIELD AND VICINITY.

The chilly winter blasts have now moved aside, and given room to smileing spring which dawned so beautiful; smileing a sweet welcome amongst our homes.

A child of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Lauver died on Monday the 11th inst. Its remains were intered at the Neimond Church on Friday.

Miss Birtie Harrass returned home Saturday, March 16. She had been in Philadelphia during the past winter.

Susan, wife of John D. McRinney is very low with lung fever.

We are surprised to notice that C. T., is becoming quite poetical in her compositions. But fact is every thing. We are well aware though that he or she who has studied the biography of a person for over two years, will not find it so very difficult to put a short sketch of that person's future in verse.

To my friends of Juniata, and especially to those whose eyes are dazed by the dazzling inducement offered in the far west. Those of you who are now contemplating to sell off your possessions, and leave this glorious spot, your birth, your home, surrounded by the beautiful old green capped hills of Juniata; When you tread over the wide expanse of the dreary and lonely prairies, and think of the quite home among the hills in the east. You may recall this little poem in which I have in vain attempted to express my feelings.

THE HILLS OF JUNIATA.

How proud and stately wave the trees
On yonder hills in every breeze;
While in their tops, with hymns of praise
The birds chime forth their happy lays;
In blue Juniata, dear Juniata,
Home of my youthful days.

Sweet zephyrs filled with rich perfume,
Float round about, and all to soon
Among those hills, and rippling streams
The days smile away in pleasant dreams
In blue Juniata, dear Juniata,
Land of my youthful dreams.

Land of my youth, and manhood too
Should I regret, or ever rue
My lot of being left to roam
Since childhood round my mountain home?
In blue Juniata, dear Juniata,
My bright blue mountain home.

Sweet home among those happy hills;
Pure water from those shinning rills;
Sweet lillies of the wild grown fields,
My heart with trust friendship seals;
With blue Juniata, dear Juniata,
Home where the lone heart treals.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS AND PIANOS

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues FREE TO ANY ADDRESS.

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1868, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians, and trusters, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

Pianos and Organs sold for cash or easy payments; also rented.
