The death of Omar Kingsley at Bom-The death of Omar Kingsley at Bom-bay, India, closes the career of one who gained a wide-spread reputation as Ella Zoyara. For years he appeared as an equestrienne under this title in almost every country on the globe, and few of those who have witnessed the graceful performance of the beautiful Zoyara dreamed that the performer was a man. Letters and lovers were abundant, and among the latter figured no less impor-tant a personage than Victor Emmanuel, of Italy, who fell in love with the dash-ing young rider. Soldiers and civillans Ing young rider. Soldiers and civilians figured also on the 1st of Zoyara's lovers, and a dispute about her among the former finally caused her or him to be placed in durance vile at Manila.

Kingsley was born in St. Louis, where its mother and sister still reside, about his mothe his mother and sister still reside, about 1840. At the early age of six a travelling circus fired his fancy for sawdust and spangles, and he soon ran away from the parental roof. He apprenticed im-self to Spence Stokes, a circus proprietor of Philadelphia. Stokes trained him to do an equestrian act, and he soon ap-neared under the name of Ella Zoyara

The Best Remedy Known to Man | The Best Remedy Known to Man I Dr. Clark Johnson having associated himself with Mr. Edwin Eastman, an escaped captive, long aslave to Wakametkia, the medicine man of the Comanches, is now prepared to lend his aid in the introduction of the wonderful remedy of that tribe. The experience of Mr. Eastman being similar to that of Mrs. Chas, Jones and son, of Washington Co., Lowa, an account of whose sufferings were thillingly narrated in the New Tork Hersid of Dec. 15th, 1878, the facts of which are so widely known, and so nearly parallel, that but little men-tion of Mr. Eastman's experiences will be given here. They nee, however, published in a near vol-ume of Jöb pages, entitled, "Seven and Nine Years Among the Comanches and Apaches," of which in nion will be made hereafter. Suffice it to say, that for several years, Mr. Eastman, while a cap-tive, was compeled to rather the roots, guins, larks, herbs and berries of which Wakametikin's medicine was made, and is still prepared to pro-vide the scars materials for the successful intro-duction of Lie medicine to the world; and assures the public that the remedy is the same pow as duction to the fair Zoyara. It was in the sunny clime of Italy, however, that the greatest conquest took place. Victor Emmanuel saw him at the circus, and afterward scent for him. He attended, though accompanied by his woman ser-yant, without whom he reads vant, without whom he rarely appeared in public. Emmanuel frequently at-tended the performance, and Zoyara called upon him. The King of Italy pre-sented him with a magnificent black stal-lion, of which Stokes immediately took possession, and afterward sold whom in the medicine to the world; and assures that the remedy is the same now as amethia compelled him to make it. possession, and afterward sold when in financial difficulties in Madrid.

When Zoyara returned to New York he was advertised as thegreatest female rider was advertised as thegreatest female rider that Europe had ever seen, and crowds were nightly attracted by his perform-ances. He rode a graceful act, was more daring and brilliant than any equestri-enne that had or has appeared before an American audience, while long experi-ence enabled him to impersonate female character in a manner that almost de character in a manner that almost defied detection. His sex was a secret even to many of those employed in the same establishment. In this respect the success of George Fordham, the rider of the winner, Sir Bevys was completed. Fordham has been on the turf for nearly twenty-five years and had ridden the winner of every important race in the kingdom, but time and time again he had been beaten for the Derby. Last year, when he was so ill that he had to retire from the turf, it was regretted by all that he could not claim the Derby. Last winter he took mphilis residence in France, owing to bad health. In the spring he returned to Engiand and rode at some of the early meetings, only to be again forced to re-tire. He was not seen during the Sec-

It was won by Sir Charles Bunbury's Diomed, by Florizel, with Major O'Kelly's Burdroo second and Mr. Walker's Spithre third. For some few years the weights and distance continued as in the initial race but eventually the distance was in-creased to a mile and a half, the weights being raised to 118 pounds and 112 pounds. They were subsequently raised some time during the "forties" to 122 pounds, at which they have remained since.—New York World.

FARM, GARDEN AND HOUSEHOLD.

Orchard and Garden Notes. Asparagus must be allowed time to Asparagus must be allowed time to grow its foliage, and prepare the nourish-ment for next year's crop. From not understanding this, many exhaust their beds by cutting too late. The old rule to stop when green peas come is a good one. When entring ceases, let the tops grow; their shade will keep down the small weeds, and the few large ones that may appear are to be pulled by hand.

THEGRAFEVINES.—One-year-old vines, set this spring, should not be al-lowed to grow more than one shoot. Remove all others, reserving of course the strongest. If older vines were set, these should not be allowed to bear, as it is necessary for them to become thoroughly established and prepare for

His beautiful boyish face, a profusion of rich black curly hair, and his slender form assisted the impersonation. He was advertised and rode under this name for several years, attracting no particular attention, but keeping the secret of his sex carefully concealed. He accompanied Spence to Europe, where he rode as a female in all the principal cities. In Moscow a Russian count is said to have fallen mady in love with him, and offered Stokes a large sum for an introduction to the fair Zoyara. It was in the sunny citime of Italy, however, that Astrology and Astrologers.

The origin of astrology is involved in obscurity. It may probably be at-tributed to the Chaldeans. The Hindoos and Chinese have always attached the greatest importance to it, and the Arabs do, and the fight begins, or should begin, as soon as the ragged appearance of the leaves show that the worms are at work. White hellebore is the remedy, and while it may be dusted upon the bushes, it is better to mix it with water, a table-spoonful to a pailful of water, and ap-plied with a syringe or pump. In mix-howl or other dish and pour on hot water gradually, stirring until all is thoroughly moistened, adding a pint or more of hot water; pour this into the pail and fill up with cold water. The application should be repeated every few days so long as worms appear. In our or evil fortune likely to befall any person during his lifetime from the aspect of the heavens and the relative position of the planets and other heavenly bodies at the planets and other heavenly bodies at the time of his birth. In ancient times astrologers had meny perils, as the following instance will show: "Dost thou know where thou will pass Christmas?" asked Henry VII. (1488) of an astrologer. He could not tell. Whereupon the king's grace, "which did love a merry jest," made answer, "Then I am wiser than thou, for I know that thou will spend Christ-mas in prison." Galleazzo, Duke of Milan, was even merrier at the expense of an astrologer who foretold him that he would die early. "And how long do you expect to live?" he inquired of the astrologer. "My lord, my star promises me a long life." "Never trust in your star, man; you are to be hanged this moment." And the duke took good care that his own prediction should be fulfiled. "Just Like a Boy."

Every well-regulated family should have a boy about fourteen years old, a have-mower and grass enough to set the boy to work for half an hour after school. It is an interesting study to see a boy shoving a lawn-mower around. No boy can strike a bee-line with a mower. He starts out to do it, but he sees a boy on stills up the street and he stops to rest. He has just started off again when he sees a boy with a ball down the street, and it is also time to oil the mower. He has just braced himself for a new effort when a stray dog comes trotting along, and it is that boy's duty to watch that dog out of sight. He turns and shoves the mower along for about ten feet and then he must have a drink of water. If Every well-regulated family should then he must have a drink of water. If the old gent is at home a boy can drink a gallon of water and get back to his work in about twenty minutes, but all depends on circumstances. If he gets back he stands and wonders whether it is a right or left-handed mower, and why it wasn't rigged to run itself.

If a rap on the window admonishes the boy that procrastination is the thief of time, he buckles right down to the business and rushes the mower over four brick-bats, a hoop and several coal clinkers, and then comes an examination of the knives. Let a boy get in the shade with a good brace for his back, and he can examine a lawn-mower from base-ment to garret in about half an hour. At the end of the second cut across the sward it is the boy's duty to scan the

A good boy can do this in about fifteen minutes, and he can put in ten more looking across the street at a white-washed fence and a cat. By this time he feels hungry, and when he has hunted the house over for cake it is high time to can arguing the corner and act if they go around the corner and see if that Smith boy has got that bird-trap finished.—Detroit Free Press.

I tried everything few minutes before, and then again within ten minutes the snort of the loco motive would re-echo from the bottom of a deep gulch up the sides of the very cliffs from which we had just descended. After passing through several tunnels in rapid succession, the ninth is reached. Here the locomotive almost comes to a standstill, as if preparing for the effort and then it dashes through up a steep grade and describing an almost perfect oval it crosses over the tunnel it had four minutes previously passed through, thus forming a loup. In making the loup the road rises seventy-eight feet in a distance of less than four thousand feet. After making the loup we emerge into the arid desert. This is a most desolate region, presenting no relief to the eye from the waste of sand. Nothing grows here. The only thing that is raised here is an occa-sional sand storm, blinding and penetra-ting. To get out of this sandy westerthe ting. To get out of this sandy waste the train dashes through the San Fernando tunnel-piercing the mountain-a distance of nearly seven thousand feet, and lhen emerges into the Los Angeles val-tey, presenting a picture in grateful contrast with the scenes just passed through. Here the lemon and orange flourishes.

should so often have been fools. Few seem to have the presence of mind of Trasulus, who once saved his neck with a commendable readiness of wit. Tiberius, when living in exile in Rhodes, whither he had been banished by the Emperor Augustus, loved to while away the time by consulting diviners. The interview usually took place on a lofty eminence overlooking the sea, and if the diviner, by some foolish answer, convicted himself of ignorance or trickery, some slaves were in attendance to pitch him head foremost over the cliff into the waves below. It chanced on a certain day that Trasulus had been invited to one of these charming seances. "Tell me," said Tiberius, with a serious look, "how long do you expect to live?" Trasulus, who was not a fool, appeared to be absorbed in mysterious calculations; then, suddenly, with an expression of alarm that was not altogether feigned, he ex-claimed that he was menaced at that very hour by a great danger. Satisfied with the answer, Tiberius embraced him, and from thenceforth Trasulus be-came of the number of his feigned.

In this case we happen to know Dr. Kuffman, and can say that he is a thoroughly painstaking gentleman, and thoroughly painstaking gentleman, and very careful to know what he is to write about before he takes his pen in hand. the house of life; the second was the about before he takes his pen in hand. We have great faith in what he may say, and so give here his plan: During the summer of 1874 I procured from the gas-house several gallons of a long-handled stew-pan, and with a few shavings and a match soon had a dense, black smoke. This I carried un-der my plum tree, so that the dense smoke pervaded all parts of the tree. My first efforts were very gratifying in see-ing insects of all sorts hurry out of the der my plum tree, so that the dense smoke pervaded all parts of the tree. My first efforts were very gratifying in see-ing insects of all sorts hurry out of the tree. Ants came running down the tree, various kinds of worms and spiders let them elves down by their webs, and and winged insects flew out, leaving the tree deserted of all insect life. I spent about half an hour in smoking forty-two trees, and this I repeated three or four times each week, unless rain had washed off r the smudge, when I again repeated the smoking. After my first efforts I tried the shaking process, but invariably failed to catch or see a single specimen of the curculio. I continued this process until near the time of ripening, and got my first crop of plums—over thirty bushels. The whole cost of coal tar for those forty-two trees during the sum-remedy; if neglected, often attacks the lungs. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" give sure and almost immediate relief.

Thirty of the best organ makers of the world were competitors at the Paris Exposition. A cable dispatch to the Associated Press says two highest awards have been awarded to the American makers, Mason & Hamlin. Soldiers--Pensioners.
