town of San Jacinto, California, was the focal point of a severe earthquake shock on Christmas day. Buildings were shaken and damaged and people were frightened into a panic. It was hard on brick houses. The effect of an earthquake in a town of 10 to 15 story high buildings would be appalling. The thought of the brick being rattled out of the iron frame of the high buildings is almost enough to give the inhabitants of such high houses the nightmare. The houses in San Jacinto were two stories high. The cause of an earthquake is not known. Some one says it is only an effort of nature to produce a volcano.

Dwight L Moody, the distinguished preacher, died at his home at Northfield, Mass., at noon on the 22nd day of December. He was born at Northfield, and was one of a family of nine children. His father was a farmer and died when his family was young. Dwight obtained such schooling as the common school gave, and afterwards educated himself during spare hours in the evening. At the age of 17, he became a clerk in a shoe store in Boston, and joined the Congregational church and became a Sunday school worker. Afterwards he went to Chicago as a clerk in a shoe store, and there proposed becoming a Sunday school teacher. He was told he could become a teacher if he would gather a class. He at once went out into the high ways and byways of the city and gathered a class of Sunday school scholars. That was the beginning of his new work. He did not stop with a class, he rented an old tavern and put seats in it and started a whole Sunday school. He soon had a large school with 60 teacher, and soon had a school with a 1,000. He taught, he sang, he preached, and quit all business to devote to religious work and mission Sunday school work, and thence on to more prominent work in the large centers of population. He visited England and met with a great reception in London and elsewhere. Many rich men gave him thousands of pounds and people by the thousands attended his services, and were made to feel that there is a higher and better life than that lead by most men and women. The sweet singing Sankey sang, noble inspiring songs, and Moody preached faith and the better life to come. He built a seminary for girls, an academy for boys, an auditorium at Northfild, and organized schools there for relegions and Sunday school work.

Interesting Facts About the Census.

1. The first really valuable Census of Agriculture in the United States was taken in 1850, of the crops of 1849. The next enumeration of Agriculture will be taken in June, 1900, of the products of 1899.

2. Instead of recording several farms on the schedule in the Twelfth Census, as heretofore, each farm will be accorded a separate blank, the entries on which will not be known to any save sworn officers of the Department. No names will be published in connection with information secured from the people.

3. Tax assessors, collectors, and equalizers can not serve as enumerators, or have access to the Census returns, or to the information therein contained.

4. There are more than 5,000,000 farms, plantations, ranches, stock ranges, and market gardens in the United States, all of which, for Census purposes, will be designated as "farms."

5 A "farm" is all the land cultivated or held for agricultural purposes under one management, whether in a single body or separate parcels.

6. The enumeration will ask for the size and value of each farm, the value of buildings, and the aggregate value of all machinery, implements, vehicles, harness, etc., used thereon; and the amount of land owned and leased, respectively, by said occupant.

7. He will also ask for the acreage and value of each crop, and the acreage of improved, unimproved, and irrigated lands.

8. The designation "each crop" includes all grains, cotton, corn, rice, sugar cane, sugar beets, sorghum, hay, clover, wild grasses, gathered forage, flax, hemp hops, peanuts, tobacco, seeds, nuts, tropical fruits, small fruits, orchard fruits, nursery and greenhouse stock, broom corn, Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes and yams, all vegetables, including the products of all family, truck and market gardens, etc; also new or unusual crops, when found.

9. The enumerator will ask for the number and value of the live stock on the farm June 1, 1900, which will be reported under a number of heads, such as horses, colts, mules, asses, cows, heifers, steers, calves, bulls, ewes, rams, lambs, swine, goats, chickens (including guinea fowl), turkeys, geese, ducks, bees, etc.

10. He will also ask for the quantity and value of milk, cream, butter, cheese, raisins, prunes, molasses, sirup, sugar, eggs, beewax, honey, wool, wine, cider, vinegar, dried and evaporated fruits, forest products, poultry and meat products, and, generally, all articles made at home, or for the home, from farm materials in 1899.

11. If a person who moves from a farm between the end of the crop year 1899 and June 1, 1900, will leave a written record of the products and crops of that farm for 1899 where it will reach the appropriate enumerator, the statistics of his operations for that year will not be lost. He will be required to give the enumerator of the district in which he lives on June 1, 1900, the acreage, value, buildings, machinery, implements, and live stock of the farm he then occupies.

12. If every farmer will begin at once to prepare a careful record of all the facts which the enumerator will be instructed to record in June, 1900, he will save time for himself and the officer, and insure more accurate returns to the Government.

13. The twentieth century will begin on January 1, 1901. Therefore, the pending Census will afford to future generations a measure of the strength and condition of the United States at the threshold of the new hundred-year cycle. For that reason everyone should take an active interest in making it as nearly perfect as possible. If each farmer will make his own report perfect, the aggregated report for every community, and for the nation, will be perfect.

It is published that human character is largely bred on the kind of food that is used. A constant beef diet makes people energetic, bold, and often foolhardy. An exclusive pork diet produces sadness, makes people melancholy, and too much pork diet often leads to suicide, it makes people coarse, rude, and often brutal. Too much mutton and lamb breeds stupidity. Too much veal diet deprives people of courage and softens the muscles. Too much cheese has the same effect as pork Eggs and milk are good all sound articles of diet. Eggs are good for both muscle and intellect, are good for the memory, and their better quality is improved by sparing use of mustard. Too many potatoes produces bodily and mental weariness. Too many fish produces stupidity. Fruit is wholesome for both body and mind

The Douglass Shoe is another of their specialities. It talks for itself. We carry twice as many dress overcoats as any other house. We have the largest and best Line of Men's, Boy's and Children's Suits—The very latest out—We are agents for the Sweet Orr Overalls. We buy by the case from Sweet Orr Co, not by the dozen pairs from second-hand. We are head-quarters for those goods. The other fellow is Hind-quarters. —Selah!

All we ask is a comparison of Our Line, and if the line is not superior in price, in finish, in Quality of Material and in fit, we won't ask you to buy. We take pleasure in showing our goods, because we have them to show—all new, all up to date.
