How the Tariff of 1846 Works.

It is said that the price of Railroad iron in England has gone up from twenty-one to thirty-one dollars per ton. This adds—says the Reading Gazette—under our ad valorem tariff, six dollars per ton to the duty, thus increasing the protection on our side.

The Gazette however, is wrong in the addition of duty, it only adds three instead of six dollars on the ton; moreover it plainly shows the principle of the ad valorem tariff which is but a shade better than Free Trade. Nothing that we have seen, illustrates the ad valorem principle better than the above. On the ton of iron at twenty one dollars the duty is six dollars and thirty cents, when that same article advances in price to thirty-one dollars, the duty rises to nine dollars and thirty cents. It plainly shows, that protection only begins when it is not needed, in other words, it protects British instead of American Iron Works. When British iron in this country brings twenty-one dollars per ton—manufactured by pauper labor at from 10 to 25 cents a day, that British Iron is found here with a low tariff of 30 per cent. ad valorem, which adds to its cost $6,30, making the cost of Railroad Iron in this country $27,30, adding freight, commission, storeage, &c. Now add the 30 per cent. ad valorem on the rise in price to $31, and you will find the duty on it $9,30 making the cost $40,30 Does this not plainly show that the tariff of 1846 protects British instead of American interests, and should not this tariff be done away with, and one passed in its place that protects American instead of British interests?—Allentown Register.

General Scott and the Treasury.

Mr. Meriwether, the short-term Senator from Kentucky, and his coadjutors of the Democratic press, have arraigned General Scott for having received a certain allowance from the Government in aid of his expenses during a trip to Europe in 1816, when he was charged with important public negotiations.

On looking into this matter, (says the Washington Republic,) we find in all directions, when we examine Gen. Scott's character and transactions, new testimony to his deserts. Had it not been for the attack of these Democratic worthies on General Scott, it is probable that the following letter from James Monroe would not have fallen under our eye.

Let those who say that General Scott has rendered no "civil services," read the document, and circulate it among their neighbors:

James Monroe to Major General Scott.

WASHINGTON, June 13, 1816.

DEAR SIR—It is decided to settle your claim on the Government on the principle established by the Department of War, before your departure for Europe, in such manner that you may sustain no loss by depreciation of paper or unfavorable exchange. As soon as you designate a person to act for you, the account will be settled.

Your communications abroad were very interesting. The opportunities which you had of deriving information from military men of high rank, especially in the Prussian army, of the views of the several powers, at a crisis the most important and extraordinary that has occurred in modern times, were peculiarly favorable; and it gives me pleasure to state that the ZEAL AND JUDGMENT with which you improved them for the ADVANTAGE OF YOUR COUNTRY, GAVE GREAT SATISFACTION.

I am, with great respect and esteem, very sincerely yours,

(Signed) JAMES MONROE.

Major General Scott.

HORRIBLE TRAGEDY.—Two brothers, named Hiram and Warren Francisco, who followed the business of clock peddling in Indiana, were frequently in the habit of meeting each other on their rounds. One of them arrived at Brownville, Ind., a few days ago, and inquired if his brother had arrived, and was informed by the landlord that he had not. After eating his supper, he called for a light, and asked to be shown to bed. Francisco followed the landlord into a dark room, and undressed himself and retired to rest. The bed seemed to be wet, and having some matches about him he struck a light. Upon examinig the bed he found it was wet with blood. Discovering a candle on the table near by, he lit it, and looking under the bed, saw the body of his brother with his throat cut from ear to ear, and perfectly lifeless. Fastening the door immediately, he proceeded to load a revolver which he had, but before he could do so there was an effort made by several men to enter his room. Pretending not to be alarmed, he asked them to wait until he dressed himself. As soon as he had finished loading his pistol, he opened the door and the landlord and two other men rushed on him, when he fired two barrels of his pistol, immediately killing the landlord and one of his accomplices, after which the other man fled.

A WIFE STAKED AT CARDS.—We have heard of slaves being staked on a game of chance on the Missisippi, and wives being put up at auction in England, but we believe it has been reserved for the French to introduce the staking of wives at a game of cards! A recent French paper reports a case that was brought before the Correctional Police, in which Madam T. brought a suit for divorce against her husband. In the course of the evidence it was said that on two different occasions the wife had been staked and lost at cards, and the key of her room handed over to the winners! In the first case she escaped by jumping out of the window, and in the other the winner was to much intoxicated to be dangerous. The Court granted an act of separation but refused to divorce the parties. This case presents rather a curious picture of French manners and morals.

THE WHITE HOUSE IN 1794.— A Mr. Wansey, whose published notes of a tour in this country in 1794, have recently been the subject of notice in the American papers, gives the following description of a breakfast at the White house. Will the breakfast there in these days bear comparison with this?

"Mrs. Washington herself made tea and coffee for us. On the table were two small plates of sliced tongue, dry toast bread and butter, but no boiled fish, as is the general custom. Miss Custis, her grand-daughter, a very pleasing young lady about sixteen, sat next to her brother, George Washington Custis, about two years older than herself. There was but little appearance of form, no livery. A silver urn for hot water was the only expensive thing on the table. Mrs. Washington appears to be something older than the President, although born in the same year, short in stature, rather robust, and very plain in dress."

☞ We learn from The Cincinnati Gazette of Friday last, that a rich scene came off in the XVth Ward of that city a day or two before. The Democracy having gathered in considerable numbers, an attempt was made to organise the meeting. A motion was made that a certain well-known Democrat take the chair, which was unanimously carried; whereupon, to the dismay of the meeting, the chairman elect rose and stated that he was a Democrat, had always been a Democrat, but that he could not preside over the meeting, because he did not intend to vote the ticket. The meeting was thunder-struck, and kept silence for some time, until somebody moved that another well known Democrat take the chair, which was carried with the like unamity—but, to the utter amazement and consternation of the meeting, this chairman elect also announced to the meeting that he could not vote the ticket but that he would take the chair and put their motions for them, if they desired it. Not wishing to try any more experiments, and not knowing how far the disaffection might extend, they concluded to let him preside in spite of his disloyalty. Of course there was not much enthusiasm in the meeting after these occurrances, and after attempting to hold a Democratic meeting for some time, they gave it up in despair, and adjourned with three rousing cheers for Scott!

☞ The London Times has a correspondent in New York, from whose letter, dated July 31, and published in the Times of Aug. 13, we quote the following:

"The result of the elections in Great Britain forms the subject of universal congratulation among the Democrats of America, who, as a party, have long been favorable to the principles of free trade. You have, probably, fought out the free trade battle in England for the last time. We borrow the prestige from your victory, and prosecute the warfare here with still greater confidence."

Every one ought to know that Pierce is an avowed Free Trade man, and that should he become President, he would doubtless veto any bill passed by Congress amending the pressent Tariff. All who think the Tariff of '46 should be a "final settlement" of that question should vote for Franklin Pierce; all who think the contrary should vote for Winfield Scott—for American interests & against the present policy which is building up British manufacturers and breaking down American manufacturers.

VERMONT ELECTION.—The election in Vermont has resulted in a substantial Whig victory. Fairbanks, the Whig candidate for Govener, beats his regular Locofoco opponent about 7,000, but as a third candidate was in the field, will fall a few votes short of an election by the people. Both branches of the Legislature being strongly Whig. Whig state officers are sure to be chosen. Two Whigs are elected to Congress. In one district there is no choise but will be filled by a Whig at the next trial, when a plurality elects. The vote of the State is sure for Scott and Graham by 10,000 majority.

☞ "JUNIUS," the Washington correspondent of the Pittsburg Gazette, under date of August 24, writes:

"It is certain that the accounts from the South representing the perfect restoration of harmony and unanimity among the Whigs, in that quarter, have introduced a very bad state of feeling among the Democrats, and render them peculiary sensitive to any criticism upon their candidate. They are compelled to acknowledge that all hope based upon Whig disaffection has vanished, and that General Scott will carry every Whig State of the South. This makes them bad tempered and quarrelsome."

THE HON. JOHN P. HALE has addressed a letter to the Hon. Henry Wilson, President of the Free Soil National Convention, which is published in the newspapers. In it he accepts the nomination for the President, stating, at the same time, that his previously announced decision not to accept was not only in accordance with his own taste and judgment, but was also in pursuance of the earnest and oft-repeated request of those whose wishes he felt bound to respect—his wife and children. He also announces his intention not to answer the letters addressed to him, asking his opinions on various subjects.

☞ The New Hampshire Patriot says, that "whenever Gen. Pierce speaks upon any question he covers the whole ground." We don't know how much ground he covers when he speaks, but, as often as he undertakes to fight, he covers as much as his small proportions can.—Louisville Journal.

It (the Louisville Journal) seems to have forgotten that Scott is afraid to speak.—Yeoman.

Gen. Scott afraid to speak! Why bless your simple soul, he isn't afraid to fight.—Lou. Jour.

STAMPED ENVELOPES.—The Post Route bill, recently passed by Congress provivides, in one of its sections, for the furnishing to all post-masters, to be sold to the public, letter envelops, with such watermarks or other such guards against counterfeits as the Postmaster Genetal may deem expediant, and with one or more suitable postage stamps, with such device and of such denomination and value as he may direct, printed or impressed thereon, to be sold at the cost of procuring or furnishing the same.—Providence Mirror.

TOM BENTON, while expressing his preference to Mr. Pierce over all his "Old Fogy" competitors, we believe is very cold in his support of him. Indeed, Col. Benton has for two years been opposed to the "Regular" Democratic Party in Missouri—and in the recent canvass, he distinctly advocated two cardinal Whig principles—Protection to American Iron, and River and Harbor Improvements. On these points, he is opposed to Pierce and his party.

☞ There were but twelve acts of public importance including the necessary and ordinary Appropriation bills, passed by Congress at its last session! The session was nine months long! and of course time and money were most recklessly squandered by the extraordinary protraction of the session. It is needless to add, both Houses were strongly Locofoco. No other party would have so shockingly plundered the National Treasury.

A FACT THAT TELLS TO TAX-PAYERS.—We copy the following from the Pottstown Ledger:

"The shipment of iron over the State works will not be half as heavy this year as in 1843. Cause—the use of foreign iron—Poor policy for Pennsylvania."
