VOLUNTEER & REPUBLICAN

CARLISLE, PA.

Wednesday Morning, December 11, 1844.

A Word for Ourself!

☞ We would earnestly appeal to those who stand indebted on our books for subscription, advertising and job work, to call at the captain's office and settle, at the very first opportunity they have. We do not make these disagreeable requests often, but our expenses are very considerable, and we have many pressing engagements which require money immediately. A large portion of our subscribers are arrears for two years, and would do us gross injustice by delaying payment any longer.

☞ There is a capital article on our first page from the Louisville "Journal," on "the great advantage of obscurity to aspirants for office." It is needless to say that the late Presidential election suggested such a theme and such thoughts.

☞ Mr. Joseph S. Gitt, announces in the last "Statesman" that he has purchased that establishment, and will be the future Editor of the paper. We cordially welcome him to the editorial corps of our borough.

Mr. Gitt does not distinctly announce what the political course of the "Statesman" will be, but we learn that he has always acted with the "democratic" party, and will probably stand by the old colors.

The Electoral College.

☞ The Electoral College of Pennsylvania assembled at the State House, in Harrisburg, on Wednesday last, and organized by electing Wilson McCandless, President, and John J. McCahen Secretary. Two Electors, viz: Messrs. Christian Kneass and Isaac Ankney were absent, and their places were filled by the election of Horn R. Kneass and Isaac Huger. The entire vote of the College was of course given to Polk and Dallas.

From Washington.

☞ Few matters of interest have yet transpired at Washington. An abstract of the President's Message, giving the pith and spirit of it, will be found on the opposite page, which we have thought would be more satisfactory than the entire document. It will be seen that he is determined to try and push the Annexation scheme through Congress with all despatch.

A letter from Oliver Oldschool, correspondent of the U. S. Gazette, gives an account of the opening of Congress. On the second day agreeably to Mr. Adams' motion, the famous 25th rule, which prohibited the reception of Abolition petitions, was rescinded by a vote of 108 to 80! We observe Mr. Black of this district, whom we were wont to abuse for voting to retain the rule, has now under some new light, voted to rescind. We should like to know what new influence has been brought to bear upon our illustrious representative, to secure this change.

Mr. Joseph R. Ingersoll gave notice on the second day of the session, that he should introduce a bill to amend the Naturalization Laws. Mr. Davis introduced a joint resolution proposing the distribution of the fourth instalment of the surplus revenue withheld from the States, which was laid on the table. Notice was given of a bill to reduce the rates of Postage.

War with Mexico!

☞ The city papers are rife with rumors of a war between the United States and Mexico. It seems that Mr. Shannon, the U. S. Minister to Mexico has embroiled himself in an angry correspondence with the Mexican Minister of Foreign Affairs, and that in consequence of the high pitch to which matters were brought, has withdrawn himself from that country, and that all intercourse between this government and that of Mexico has entirely ceased. The difficulty arose in consequence of a letter from Mr. Shannon, protesting against the contemplated invasion of Texas by Mexico. The Mexican Minister replied, denying the right of the United States or any other government to interfere in the internal affairs of that Republic. This reply Mr. Shannon has chosen to construe into an insult to his government and has got into a passion and withdrawn all official intercourse with Mexico. Thus the matter ends for the present. That war may be the consequence is not improbable.

It is intimated from more than one source that Mr. Shannon was sent to Mexico with a view of creating the very disturbance that has resulted from his mission. Rather than be foiled in the favorite measure of "Annexation," the administration will risk war or any thing else. We shall endeavor to give an abstract of the correspondence hereafter.

Sabbath Address.

☞ The able and eloquent address of the National Sabbath Convention will be found on our first page. It is from the pen of Mr. J. M. Atwood, of Philadelphia. We commend it to a careful perusal.

As a marked sign of the times, in relation to the Sabbath, we notice that the running of passenger trains on Sunday, has been discontinued by the Reading Rail Road Company, from the 1st instant. The Philadelphia "Sun" says, as one grand and gratifying result of this salutary measure, two thousand five hundred men are relieved from labor, and allowed the gratifying privilege of resting one day in seven. This result is in the highest degree satisfactory and we hope the noble example will be speedily and extensively followed.

Rail Road to York!

☞ Since the destruction of the Rail Road Bridge at Harrisburg, the subject of constructing a Rail Road to York, to connect with the road to Baltimore is seriously spoken of. By means of this route the people of our fertile valley would have an opportunity of reaching either Philadelphia or Baltimore with their produce, and thus selecting the best market.

It is thought that the stock for this enterprise would be subscribed by the citizens of Baltimore, who are fully alive to the great importance of securing the trade of the Cumberland Valley.—Energetic efforts will be made to secure an act of incorporation from the next Legislature, to construct the work. The cost of the road, it is estimated, would not exceed twice the sum necessary to renew the Bridge.

Bank.

☞ Notices have been already given of the intention to apply to the Legislature of this State for charters of eight new Banks, with an aggregate capital of about $1,400,000. There will also be application for the rechartering of eight Banks. Among the latter is the application of the Carlisle Bank, whose present charter expires on May.

☞ We see that the Editor of the Harrisburg Argus has a Political correspondent from Cumberland county, whose offusions he relishes very much and deservedly. Who can it be?

Disastrous Conflagration!

Cumberland Valley Rail Road Bridge destroyed by Fire!—Loss of Life!

☞ We give below the particulars of the conflagration of the splendid Bridge erected by the Cumberland Valley Rail Road Company over the Susquehanna at Harrisburg, which occurred on Wednesday afternoon last. The destruction cannot be otherwise regarded than as a great calamity, which will fall seriously not only upon the company but the public, and which must affect to a considerable extent the agricultural and business interests of Cumberland and the adjoining counties. We are glad to learn however that the Board of Managers have already taken steps to insure the erection of a new structure, and from the known character of the officers and company for enterprise and public spirit, we have little doubt that they will accomplish their object and that the Bridge will be rebuilt before the close of the next season. Their exertions to do this should have the hearty co-operation of business men and the public, as the Road is not only of great immediate advantage to the wealthy and fertile valley in which it is located, but is during the suspension of Canal navigation the only avenue of transportation through Pennsylvania to the West.

The operations of the Company remain undisturbed by the accident. Passengers will be carried across the old bridge at Harrisburg, in omnibuses or carriages, where they will take the cars and go forward without delay. The transportation of Freight will also go on as usual, though some delay and additional expense will be created by the transhipment at those points. The expense of wagoning freight across the river, we are told will not amount to more than thirty-seven and a half cents per ton, or about two cents a hundred.

The Harrisburg papers agree in attributing the origin of the fire to sparks from a locomotive. It is to be lamented that this immense destruction of property was also accompanied by loss of life. We find the following graphic sketch of the scene as detailed by a correspondent of the U. S. Gazette, writing from Harrisburg, on Wednesday evening:

"About two o'clock smoke and fire were seen to issue from the western end of the Rail Road Bridge. A general rush was then made by the inhabitants to the river bank, and behold! that beautiful edifice was wrapt in flames between the third and fourth piers from the western end. Soon the span fell with a crash into the river, and the flames then spread both ways, not more than ten minutes being necessary for the destruction of a single span. In this way the flames soon reached the western shore, where, with great exertion, the toll house and tavern stand were saved, but some smaller dwellings were destroyed.

On rolled the conflagration towards the Eastern shore, none being able to devise and execute a plan to arrest its progress, although an abundance of the opposing element flowed quietly beneath. At length, a number of persons undertook, some four or five piers ahead of the flames, to cut the bridge in two, and thus prevent the fire from extending beyond that point. This was attempted at the Island, about midway of the river, but before the plan could be executed the flames had reached the point, and the men were obliged to retreat, leaving the devouring element pursue its onward course. An attempt was then made to blow up the bridge with powder, some distance ahead of the flames; but the explosion did not remove a single timber. A last effort was then made between the forth and fifth piers from this shore, to arrest the progress of the fire, by cutting the timbers and removing the planks, &c. Hose were then introduced upon the bridge from the hydrants, and water freely flowed. When the fire reached this point, it lingered until the whole was entirely consumed at the further end of the span, and giving way at the fifth pier, instead of breaking off as was anticipated, at the middle, where it had been weakened, it broke short off at the fourth pier, and the whole span, with some fifty men and boys upon it, was precipitated into the river. The height of the bridge from the river was probably forty feet. One man, by the name of Zeuling, a Shoemaker, was instantly killed, being very much mashed among the fallen timbers. One other person was killed, whose name I could not learn, and several persons severely injured; amongst the latter was a son of Thomas De Moss, a lad of some 12 or 14 years of age.—The Railroad track is upon the top of the bridge, and the carriage way underneath, and fortunately for those persons who were in the lower part, the roof did not break in with the fall, or but few of them could have escaped. The breaking off of the bridge in this way had the effect of arresting the conflagration, as it was completely severed about 50 feet ahead of the flames.

The magnificence of the spectacle, as one after another of the sections fell into the river enveloped in lurid flames, while thick smoke, mingled with fitful blazes, ascended far on high, and the whole section, like one mighty raft of liquid flame, floated down the heedless current, can be better imagined than described. It was about half past 4 o'clock, when the last fatal span fell; even now while I write, long in the night, the blazes ascend from many spots between the piers and far down the river, where the floating fragments have not yet been consumed to the water's edge. About five o'clock here was an almost unbroken sheet of fire upon the surface of the water, from the western bank to the point where the flames were arrested.

Thus has this beautiful structure, which it cost $130,000 to erect, been destroyed in a few hours, leaving only the naked piers as monuments of its recent existence. The entire superstructure, except three or four spans on this side, is totally destroyed.

The loss of the company cannot be short of sixty or seventy thousand dollars, and I believe there was no insurance, wherefore it is feared they will not be able to rebuild it speedily. Travelling, it is hoped, however, will not be seriously interrupted by the calastrophe, as an arrangement will be made to convey passengers over the old bridge in stages, when they can take the cars at the other side. It is believed that the fire originated from a spark, for the locomotive as the western train came for about 12 o'clock, from Carlisle.

☞ A card from B. R. Snyder, will be found in another column, in reply to a personal attack upon him in the "Volunteer." We think it would puzzle any one to determine upon what principles of fairness, justice or propriety the editor of the "Volunteer" is justified in making an attack, so unmelled for and scurrilous, upon an individual whose only offence consists in his having delivered an American address before an audience of Americans, on a subject that now interests every lover of Freedom. If nothing else could, it strikes us that in regard for the respectability of the Press it would have prompted a more courteous course than the one complained of.

The Volunteer's insinuation that Mr. Snyder was there by special invitation of the Whigs, is a mere gratuitous. We venture to say that the Whigs of this county knew of his intention to address the people on the subject of Foreign Influence, just as much and just as little as the Democrats did. We know that with as strong disapprobation of Whigs as locofocos.

United States Senators.

☞ Colonel Benton and Hon. D. R. Atchison, have been elected to the Senate of the United States, from Missouri. We presume Mr. Benton has not changed his views in respect to "immediate annexation," from the following paragraph in the last Missouri Reporter:

"It was known here at the time of Col. Benton's re-election, that he had declared in St. Louis, just before leaving for the East, that if Colonel Polk put the words "immediate annexation" into his message, or failed to expel from his confidence those by whom he has formed "the Texas in Texas," he (Col. B.) would make Col. Polk's Administration hotter than John Tyler's ever has been."

Governor Bouck, of New York, has appointed Messrs. Henry A. Foster and Daniel S. Dickinson United States Senators, to serve out the unexpired terms of Messrs. Wright and Tallmadge, of that State.

Colonel Chester Ashley has been elected United States Senator from the State of Arkansas, in the room of Senator Fulton.

We learn that the Legislature of Ohio have elected the Hon. Thomas Corwin United States Senator from Ohio, in place of Mr. Allen.

☞ We find the subjoined, from some author unknown, going the rounds of the papers, but should not have thought of copying it, perhaps, were it not that just such a "charming laugh" flashed upon us the other day from a fair young face enshrined in sunny ringlets:

A LAUGH.

She had that charming laugh which, it is a song,
The song of a spring bird, wakes suddenly
When we least look for it. It lingered long
Upon the ear, one of the sweet things we Treasure unconsciously. As steals along
A stream in sunshine, stole its melody,
As musical as it was light and wild,
The buoyant spirit of some fairy child;
Yet mingled with soft sighs, that might express
The depth and truth of earnestness.

☞ The Harrisburg "Union" asks, after the last election in Georgia, "will John M. Berrien resign?" Why is not the "Union" honest enough to address the same question to the Locofoco Senator from Ohio?

THE MARKETS.

BALTIMORE Dec. 6th, 1844.

FLOUR.—We have to note quite a dull market, and prices are looking down. City Mills have sold at $4 25 on time. Howard street remains nominally the same, with few or no transactions except in small lots, rather of a retail character than otherwise; from the cars it continues to be taken by dealers at $4 12½. Since our last report there have arrived several hundred bbls., Susquehanna, which sold at $4 25.

GRAIN.—Wheat continues steady; supply fair, and about adequate to the demand; inferior parcels of Virginia and Maryland reds are selling at 75 to 87, and good to prime 88 to 93 cents per bushel. The receipts of Rye are so small as hardly to merit notice. Corn has been tolerably steady during the week, but towards the close the market has become rather flat, and prices are barely supported; we quote white 38 to 39, and yellow 39 to 40 cents. Oats have been 26 to 27 cents.

WHISKEY.—Whiskey has been steady at 23½ cents in hhds. and 24½ in bbls.

MARRIED.

In this borough, on November 28th, by the Rev. John Davis, Mr. JOHN WUNDERLY, of Dickinson township, to Miss MARGARET ZUG, of South Middleto ntownship.

On Tuesday week, by the Rev. William Miller, Mr. THOMAS GREASON, to Miss MARGARET BARE, both of Cumberland county.

DIED,

Suddenly, in South Middleton township, on Thursday morning last, Mr. JAMES McCOMMON, a good citizen and honest man.

A CARD.

The subscriber has noticed with sorrow a most wanton and malicious attack upon himself by the Editor of the Carlisle Volunteer, in his paper of the 5th instant, which he cannot consent to notice, except to regret that the organ of a large and respectable party should be permitted to stoop to the lowest personal abuse of opposing partizans in effect a partizan purpose. For the Editor personally, the subscriber can have but one sentiment, that of pity, that he should be sunk so low as to have become but a common defamer of other and better men than himself.

If the leaders of the partizan press, however, suppose that they can retard or stop the progress of the Native American movement by abusing its advocates, they may find that they are about as much mistaken as were their Irish Kensington friends in the use of the rifle.

Respectfully,

BENJ. R. SNIDER, of Phila.
