No. 6. Since the certificate of Benjamin Stuart (in our last paper) was handed to us, we have seen numerous testimonials of the wonderful success of this syrup, several of the cures testified to were effected after the patients had been given up as incurable by their Family Physicians, which is testified to by the Physicians themselves. This is stronger testimony than any other medicine can boast of, and we feel confident that no medicine in existence is deserving of as high a reputation, (for the cure of coughs and consumption) as Dr. J. W. Cooper's Indian Vegetable Cough or Consumptive Syrup; and for the cure of Dyspepsia, no medicine is equal to his Vegetable Dyspepsia Bitters.

These medicines, together with Dr. J. W. Cooper's Rheumatic Drops, and Vegetable Compound Fever and Ague Pills and Vegetable Worm Powders, are for sale by T. Read, & Son, Huntingdon; G. W. Brehman, McVeytown; and J. M. Belford, Mifflintown;

The genuine are prepared only by C. P. Hewes.

Feeling thankful for past favors, he hopes, by strict attention to business, to merit a continuance of the same. [oct. 14, '52.

Mr. Editor:—

I was one of the many of our citizens who were attracted by the "Grand Exhibition," of our neighbor Charles S. Black, Esq., and I of course attended the opening exhibition. I am also one of the few who understand the value of a good newspaper: Being therefore "booked up" in the facts, and the price of the press, and anxious to impart substantial knowledge to the understandings of my neighbor, I have taken this method to say to all,—If you would have your Soles well cared for, call at Black's, and examine his stock of Ladies, and Gentlemen's, shoes and boots, he warrants the work not rip; and stitches without charge if it does. Neighbors try him.
