☞The time allowed by law for shooting partridges and rabbits expired on the first of this month. Persons too fond of hunting had better be careful that they do not subject themselves to prosecution.

☞Harper's Weekly says, very truly and emphatically, "After the revelations of this rebellion, and in the circumstances of this time, whoever extenuates or defends slavery whatever may be his view of the true method of riddance—must be at heart a traitor."

☞The Philadelphia Press now circulates four thousand five hundred copies daily in the city of Washington. The Press is one of the best toned, most ably-conducted papers in the country. Unlike some city journals we might name, it is not filled day after day with petty objections to the policy of the Administration under the guise of extraordinary loyalty, but boldly, manfully and unreservedly supports that policy—cordially upholding the hands of the President, and strongly advocating the maintenance of the Government at all hazards. It richly merits the success it is realizing.

The address of the Company is Co. G, 53d Regt. Care of Col. John R. Brooke, Alexandria, Va.

☞We print on our first page, the very eloquent speech of Hon. S. B. Elliott, of Tioga County, delivered in the House of Representatives on Monday evening last. The speech was in response to the remarks of Hon. Geo. W. Zeigler, who had indulged in a defense of the claim of Jesse D. Bright to a seat in the United States Senate, the debate in the House then being on the Senate resolution instructing our Senators in Congress to vote for the expulsion of the traitor Bright from his seat in the Senate of the United States. It will be observed by a perusal, that the speaker holds the true ground of an American citizen only occupying one position in this contest. He cannot be loyal while he sympathizes with, or apologizes for traitors. He must devote his energies and resources to the government, and when he fails to do this, he is undeserving not only of the confidence of that government, but unworthy of a seat in its legislative halls. We commend Mr. Elliott's speech to the careful perusal of our readers.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

OUR SUCCESSES.

The good news received within the last ten days has thrown sunshine into every face. The gratifying fact is being demonstrated to every one that we have a government—a government capable of asserting itself against the most formidable opposition. The fate of the rebellion is virtually sealed. The new Secretary of War has forced the Generals to do something by the example of his own energy. Weak and vascilating officers have been superseded by those who are brave and in earnest. Slavery-loving, rebel-cheering, protests against invading the sacred soil are no more heard of. The cry is changing from the "Union and Slavery" to "the Union, Slavery or no Savery." The North is more firmly united to-day than it has been at any time during the war, and the truth that Slavery must die if the country is ever preserved is now more apparent than ever. Eminent southerners, it is rumored, have pronounced the rebellion a failure. The trouble with foreign nations, which seemed but a short time since so imminent, is now almost avoided and when the news of our successes reach the nations of Europe it will serve to strengthen their convictions that "strict neutrality" is advisable, aye, is absolutely necessary to their own peace and safety. England, when she sees that present events seem to foreshadow an early crushing out of treason, will not be hasty in risking her hold of the British American possessions. The Queen, in her speech to Parliament, favors a strictly neutral course, and so do many of the prominnt men of the nation. Then, huzza! for our able Generals and brave soldiers! Huzza! for honest "Old Abe" who has so energetically and efficiently devoted himself to the task devolved upon him by his official oath of maintaining the Constitution and enforcing the laws! Huzza! for Secretary Stanton, who has learned to grapple with "treason in high places" and make Fort Lafayette do good service! Huzza! for every member of the Cabinet who has given his efforts to the arduous work. Huzza! for the people—if they will only wait until time is given to wipe out every vestige of slavery treason.

Capt. Graves.

We copy the following notice of Capt. J. H. Graves, of this county, from the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Hancock, Md., Jan. 31.—The Third Brigade, General Banks' Division, General Williams commanding, consisting of the Fifth Connecticut, Twenty-eight New York, Forty-sixth Pennsylvania, and Nineteenth New York Regiments is stationed here. The Rebels are almost daily in the habit of showing themselves on the high bluff across the Potomac, which, at this place is quite narrow. Sometimes they come in small parties, and at others a whole cavalry company will be seen regarding us with considerable curiosity. It is supposed that there are about 3000 of them encamped at Bath, which is five miles back from the Virginia side of the river, and among them is Colonel Ashby, with the "Black Horse Cavalry." Last week there was but two companies of infantry and one of cavalry there.

On Monday last, Capt. Graves, of the Forty-sixth Pennsylvania, crossed the river with a party of fifteen men for the purpose of opening a road, across which a breastwork had been thrown by our troops previous to the "shelling" of Hancock, to allow the passage of some Union families who were desirous of crossing to our side of the river. Captain Graves, after setting his men at work, left them in charge of his sergeant, and, accompanied by his corporal, started through the woods towards Bath, on a scouting expedition. He succeeded in approaching within a mile of the town, and, after learning all he could from observation, was on his return, and within, a mile of where his men were stationed, resting himself near the edge of a cleared space when he discovered two mounted Rebels in pursuit. Captain Graves and companion drew their revolvers and quietly waited for them to come up.

They rode up to within one hundred yards and then reined up their horses. At this moment nine or ten others appeared in sight; the two first then drew their carbines and the whole party, putting spurs to their horses, charged down upon the two Unionists. The Captain took to the woods, and gave the corporal orders, in a loud tone to "deploy right and left, as skirmishers." The rebels, supposing him to have a large party in concealment, immediately wheeled their horses and fled. Capt. Graves and the corporal, laughing heartily at the success of their ruse, rapidly rejoined their party.

DIED:

In Regimental Hospital at Alexandria, Va., ASHLEY A. LEACH, of typhoid fever, aged about 21 years, formerly of Hector township, Potter county, Pa.

At the Brigade Hospital, Hancock, Md., Jan. 28th, 1862, Private A. J. WARD of Company H., 46th Regiment, P. V.

Another of the brave band which started from Potter the 1st of September, 1861, has gone. The news, sad and sorrowful though it be, is passed from one to another of us his comrades. "Three of us gone, and who next will be called?" We know not but wait anxiously, sorrowfully, for a number more are already very low. Too soon it comes.

As a soldier, a man, and a comrade, Ward was loved by us all. No duty however arduous and disagreeable made him shrink. His never-failing cheerfulness was a source of pleasure to all. He has fallen early but gloriously; and has done all—everything for his country that one can: He has sacrificed his life. "I want to do all in my power for my country" were his words to me as we were leaving Potter. He has worked zealously, nobly, and accomplished much.

At the same place and in the same company, on the 7th inst., Orderly Serg't J. HOXIE AUSTIN, in his 26th year.

And the tidings of another gone and one so well loved too, have come as unexpected as sudden. Sergeant Austin joined us at Troy, Bradford Co., was elected Orderly Sergeant at Harrisburg and acted in that capacity when his health permitted until his death. Probably he would have been our 2d Lieut. in a short time. Soon after our arrival upon the Potomac he was taken sick and has been under medical treatment since. However, he resumed duty I think while at Frederick. From that time he improved surely though slowly until for some cause was taken suddenly and dangerously ill. In a few hours was unconscious and remained so much of the time until his death, which took place but three days after. Sorrowfully we buried him, for we had all lost a friend—the country a noble soldier.

Four times have we, in less than five months, mourned last comrades; but they are not lost to us. Their memory is still green in our hearts and shall live while our country is remembered. Two of them officers. But they fell without a stain. None knew them but respected them. Co. H.
