

FARM, GARDEN AND HOUSEHOLD

Cabbage should not be allowed to remain in the ground through winter after night.

Parsnips may be frozen in the ground until the very last. If they are left until spring they will not be injured.

Hogs intended for slaughter should receive all the food they will eat, and should have a warm, dry bed, that will sleep comfortably and grow fat.

A Mississippi farmer dashes cold water into the ears of choking chickens, because the animal to shake its head violently and the muscular action dislodges the obstruction.

Professor Caldwell states that parsnips appear to rank first in value for horses. In some parts of France this root is substituted for oats, four pounds being given in a daily ration.

It is said that eggs may be preserved indefinitely by washing the shells with whites of eggs, thoroughly heated, and washing, they are laid on a piece of blotting paper to dry.

At six feet apart, it will require 1,210 vines to the acre; at nine feet, 537; at twenty-one feet, ninety-eight; at one foot, 13,500; at two and a half feet, 4,000.

Poultry intended for immediate killing should fast for twenty-four hours before being killed, since the food injures the appearance of the bird and is also apt to sour and damage the meat.

Delicious Ways of Cooking Apples. Put in an excellent apple pudding can be made from the remains of a rice pudding.

CHAMOTTE.—The ordinary apple which is not nearly so rich as this, which is slightly a laboratory.

POMMES AU BEURRE.—Peel and core a number of apples, lay them in a baking tin plentifully buttered, fill the core of each apple with brown sugar.

APPLE CHEESE.—Peel and quarter a quantity of apples, stew them with a little water, a good deal of sugar, or a stick of cinnamon.

COMFOTE.—Pare and core half a dozen large fair apples, throwing each as it is pared into cold water to keep it from turning.

There is an old saying to the effect that a woman's house-keeping capacity can be told by the state in which her broom is kept.

Mr. Joseph Cairn Simpson gives the following measurement of the trotting horse "St. Julien"—record 2:12 1/2.

Table with 2 columns: Measurement and Length. Includes items like Height of withers, Length of neck, Round of muzzle, etc.

How Eugenie Re-entered Paris.

The London Globe has an article describing the ex-Empress Eugenie's passage through Paris on her way to the bedside of her dying mother in Spain.

The travelers, most of them English, started at the station, and passed in the yard of the station knew that the empress was about to visit Paris for the first time since she quitted the capital in 1870.

As she sat, the plain gray skirt was trimmed with rich fringe, and a broad-brimmed black felt hat, set back on the head enough to show the light hair parted on the forehead, and waved away from the face.

As further evidence of the extent to which bright colors are worn are wine-colored and blue cloth wraps bordered with bands of cashmere, and ruby gloves, just now the fancy in Paris.

Satin is the principal element of all elaborated toilets at present, whether for house, street or evening wear.

Buttons of finely grained woods, taking on a brilliant polish and having monograms cut on them, are seen on some of the handsome imported cloaks.

Numbered with new bodies introduced in Paris dresses is the Guernsey, or Veronese cuirass, and it is respectively called in England and Paris.

For truffles are carried with costumes trimmed with fur, otherwise they should match the bonnet, not the dress.

The age of ninety years of age, Littleton Smith, of Edgefield, S. C., can jump up and strike his feet together twice before touching the ground.

A Lake Roofed with Salt. No, it isn't frozen salt; and it isn't under the ground. It is in summer time, and open to the sky.

In Siberia, where this wonder is to be found, the summer here is intense, and the lake into a light mist, which floats away into the air.

A Lake Roofed with Salt. No, it isn't frozen salt; and it isn't under the ground. It is in summer time, and open to the sky.

FOR THE FAIR SEX.

When it is Best to Declare One's Love. The following lines were taken from the scrapbook of a grandmother.

Long-lived will the happy maiden prove. Whose lover on Monday declares his love.

Plutus and Hymen will sweetly smile. If on Tuesday she yields to her lover's will.

Wednesday they tell me is lucky but rain. Will dampen your prospects, oh refrain!

Friday, tho' some foolish folk may doubt it, Is perfectly safe, all that's about it.

Have no fears, maiden, all you will get. If on Saturday he his tale do tell.

As home from church you wend your way, And one short word is all you say.

Oh, happy maiden, you'll be blest; Your joy begins on the day of rest.

Hoops. A Boston correspondent writes: I read somewhere lately a futile attempt at definition of the word "fashion."

It is an impossible task to put it in words, but we see it in facts every day of our lives.

One short year ago women wore the sheath-like costume, trimmed all over in patchwork style, with long close-fitting basques, and not a sail about the whole.

Now, but let me describe a beautiful lady who rode up town in a horse car opposite me the other day.

She was tall and graceful, and a blonde. The skirt of her dress was not richly furled, and she wore a broad-brimmed black felt hat.

As she sat, the plain gray skirt was trimmed with rich fringe, and a broad-brimmed black felt hat, set back on the head enough to show the light hair parted on the forehead.

Words of Wisdom.

Virtue is the safest helmet—the most secure defense. No rank or shield as from the impartiality of death.

The power of eloquence is sometimes superior to military force. Flattery is like your shadow; it makes you neither larger or smaller.

It is in the power of the meaneast to triumph over fallen greatness. We take lessons in art, literature—a thousand things; but that high sense of honor, man's obligation to man, is forgotten.

A mind unsteady of purpose is like a top, a balloon veering with every wind, drifting in many directions and arriving at nowhere.

Twenty men who believe what they profess and live as they believe, are worth more than five hundred hypocrites.

Write your name by kindness, love and mercy in the hearts of thousands you come in contact with year by year and you will never be forgotten.

Anybody can soil the reputation of any individual, however pure and chaste, by uttering a suspicion that his friends will believe and his friends never hear of.

Events are only the winged shuttles which fly from one side of the loom of life to the other, bearing the many colored threads out of which the fabrics of our character is made.

No man can be thoroughly manly nor carry the blossom, bloom and fruit unless he has in a large measure what belongs to a good body and a well regulated mind.

He who travels with his eyes open cannot fail to see that others, as well as himself, have their discomforts and drawbacks, and he will thus be all the more disposed to meet his own with a bright smile.

If all the naphkins that contain the one talent were unwrapped by those who have tied them up and sit complaining at the world for its favoritism, plenty, contentment and happiness would become universal.

Happiness is like manna; it is to be gathered in grains and enjoyed every day. It will not keep; it cannot be accumulated, nor have we to go out ourselves into remote places to gather it.

The Chicago Tribune has discovered that a petrified body indicates that the man is stone-dead.

The best guide to food that is needed to build up the wastes of the body. A morbid or unnatural appetite can usually be distinguished from a normal one.

House Tip. The liver if it is diseased and a train of evils which must otherwise ensue. Among anti-bilious medicines none rank so high as Heister's Stomach Bitters.

Published testimony establishes the fact that Scovill's Blood-purifier and syphilitic disorders of a formidable type. Also that it cures white swelling, carbuncles, eruptive eruptions of all kinds, gonorrhea, and other ailments.

An Athletic Statesman. The caricature that the French artist, Gill, recently made of Gambetta, representing him as an athlete, is said to be a really faithful likeness.

A Hot Water River.

The projector of the Sutro tunnel is of the opinion that the hot water which so troubles him in the Comstock mine in Nevada, comes from a depth of ten or fifteen thousand feet, where the rocks are at a high temperature.

One of the great advantages of the tunnel is the means it affords for draining the mines. The tunnel discharges about twelve thousand tons of water every twenty-four hours.

If left to flow through the open tunnel this water would fill the air with steam as to make the tunnel impassable. In flowing the four miles through a tight flume made of three inch yellow pine, the water loses but seven degrees of heat.

This large flow of warm water is now used for many purposes, the first to utilize it having been boys who first dug small ponds to swim in—pioneers, it may be, in establishing a system of warm baths, which may ultimately become a great sanitary resort.

"Died in Europe." "died in Denver;" and so on is the news received by friends at home daily, when in most cases an early use of Hop Bitters would have saved the occasion for such sad news.

Don't Get the Chills. If you are subject to the ague you must cure it long your liver, bowels and kidneys in good free condition.
